B. M. PATRIOTIC FARM HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL VENTURE

Girls Raise and Can Vegetables

Under the leadership of four alumnae, A. Price '03, M. Nearing '09, B. Ehlers '09, and A. Hawkins '07, the 20-acre Bryn Mawr Patriotic Farm on the P. M. Sharpless estate at West Chester has flourished during the past summer. Seventy-nine other young women, chiefly Bryn Mawr alumnae and undergraduates, worked on the farm, planting and cultivating, harvesting and canning vegetables for college consumption or immediate sale in the local market.

"It is the largest farm in the country worked by women, has the greatest acreage, and the fewest weeds", said Mr. A. D. Cromwell, the professor of agriculture at the West Chester State Normal School, who supervised the farm. Besides the large quantities of potatoes, corn, tomatoes, peas, cabbage, kohlrabi, onions, chard, navy beans, lima beans, string beans, beets, lettuce, celery, melons, Brussels sprouts, carrots, spinach, turnips, salsify, and endives that were raised, many bushels of peaches, bought from neighboring farms, were canned. Over 8000 cans filled by the workers in the cannery they themselves had built were sold to the college at the end of the season.

Canning, however, was not the only measure, for the "farmerettes" dried and salted beans, and put up marmalade and soup as by-products of the peach and tomato canning. Even the "split heads" of cabbage were used, a German lady in the town buying from the farm to use in the making of sauerkraut.

The leisure hours of the workers were divided between "Tenements A and B", as their sleeping quarters were termed; "Tillie Superford", the farm auto truck; the ice cream cone palace; and the Sharpless swimming hole. It was by "Tillie" that the girls were always recognized on their frequent trips through West Chester, and as a result of "Tillie's" popularity the Farm turned out almost as many Ford mechanics as expert cannery.

Whether or not the farm was a financial success it is as yet impossible to say. Workers will go out to West Chester on Saturdays for some weeks to come, and until the last vegetables are brought in and disposed of the outcome from a pecuniary viewpoint will be uncertain.

1919 heads the list of workers, having contributed 21 members to the Farm; 1920 and 1917 come close behind with 17 and 15 respectively. The alumnae workers were: A. Price '03, L. Windell '07, A. Hawkins '07, T. Nicholas '06, M. Converse '07, M. Nearing '09, B. Ehlers '09, M. Kirk '10, L. Watson '12, H. and M. McElree '14, H. Taft '15, and E. Steltzer '15.

LLYSYFRAN NEW FRESHMAN HALL

COLLEGE LEASING VAUX HOUSE

The unusual size of the odd classes this year has necessitated the leasing by the college of the Vaux house on Gulph Road opposite Denbigh for the winter. Under the name of Llysyfran, the new hall will probably hold about 24 Freshmen and graduates.

There will be no dining-room in connection with Llysyfran, but its members will take their meals in the other hall dining-rooms. At the time of going to print no warden had been appointed.

"Llysyfran" is the Welsh for "crow's nest".

MOCK ORALS TO BE WRITTEN

New A.B. Requirements in 1921

As a consequence of dropping the oral examinations in French and German for Seniors the Junior and Sophomore examinations in summer reading will be written instead of oral. They will be conducted by members of the Faculty. The committees for these examinations are: French, Dean Maddison, Miss Donnelly, and Dr. Beck; German, Dr. Marlon Parris Smith, Dr. Jessen, and Dr. DeHaan. The dates for these examinations are posted.

The four Senior examinations in French and German will be held as usual this year, except that they will be written instead of oral. The dates for the first examinations are: French, October 13th; German, October 20th.

In the fall of 1921, changes in the A.B. curriculum will go into effect. On the first Saturday of the college year, every undergraduate student must take an hour's written examination in the foreign language, Greek, French, or German, which are offered at entrance in accordance with the new entrance requirements. This examination must be taken every year of the college course until graduation. Students entering with Greek will be excused from the written examination in Greek at the beginning of the year following the year in which they have elected and passed a minor or major course in Greek. Students failing to pass any one of these four written examinations will be required to go into tutoring classes.

On the second Saturday of her Junior year, each student must take an examination in a language which she did not offer at entrance, Greek, French, German, or Spanish. Students entering with French are required to take French or German. This examination will be elementary in character, about equivalent to five periods a week for one year in preparatory schools, or to elementary French, Greek, or German in college. Juniors who fail to pass this examination will be required to go into tutoring classes and pay for them at the present rates. They will not have another opportunity to be examined until the second Saturday of their Senior year. Students failing to pass this examination must wait over for their degree and try again at the beginning of the next college year, this rule admitting of no exception.

Great-Grandniece of Dr. Rhoads Matriculation Scholar

Five of the entering graduate students come from France. They are A. Chalufour, M. Fabin, J. Pade, M. Poursy, M. Schoell. Eight members of the Class of 1917 have returned as graduate students. B. Greenough, M. Halle, I. Haupt, S. Jelliffe, A. MacMaster, M. Milne, R. Sato, M. Willard.

The great-grandniece of Dr. Joseph Taylor, founder of Bryn Mawr, Ann Richards Taylor, and the granddaughter of Dr. James Rhoads, first President of the College, Margaret Rhoads Ladd, are members of the Class of 1921. Miss Ladd, whose mother was Anna Rhoads Ladd '89, is matriculation scholar for Pennsylvania and the South with an average of 85.65. She was prepared by the Baldwin School.

Jean Atherton Flexner, the daughter of Abraham Flexner, a leader in practical education at Columbia, won the matriculation scholarship for New York, New Jersey, and Delaware. She entered on Greek and was prepared by the Brearley School; her average was 86.35. She is the niece of Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute.

Winaton Churchill, the novelist, and Walter Cope, the college architect, have daughters in the Class of 1921.

Dorothy Wyckoff, of Norwich Free Academy, and Eugenia Sheppard of the Columbus School for Girls, are the matriculation scholars for New England and the West with averages of 86.35 and 70.25.

TO DANCE OR NOT TO DANCE?

UNDERGRADUATE ASSOCIATION TO DECIDE

"Shall there be May Day this year?" is one of the first questions to be decided this semester by the Undergraduate Association. With this question is involved the distribution of the proceeds. War relief, several have suggested, with the idea that this would draw a larger audience and create more enthusiasm among the students.

War work, aside from the Red Cross which is now under the jurisdiction of the Christian Association, and arrangements for war courses similar to those given here last spring must be brought up at one of the first meetings of the year, according to V. Kneeland '18, president of the Undergraduate Association. May Day, if it is given, she added, must be considered a factor in the planning of war work of courses for the year, as it takes up most of the spare time of the students during the second semester.

The list complete on going to press is: Rockefeller—Graduates: M. Flather, M. Halle, I. Haupt, O. Marx, M. Milne, R. Sato, E. Stark 1921; C. Barton, E. Boswell, M. Crile, F. Hollingshead, L. CLASS ELECTION IN TAYLOR

Having lured Miss Dimon to a remote part of Taylor, and having escaped unobtrusively from the mob of parents and "membership" people, shortly after noon yesterday, a number of Juniors and Freshmen congregated in the office of the Recording Secretary and elected Marynia Foot Freshman Chairman.

Miss Foot's home is Red Wing, Minnesota, and she was prepared for college by Miss Wheeler's School in Providence. She rooms at 31 Pembroke East.

The college tradition which insists on the celebration of an untimely May Day is gradually meeting with objections. A large part of the regular army is now in Europe, and the first two divisions of the new National Army are in training camps. A few Americans have already fallen. By next May the expected spring drive on the Western battlefronts will have exacted the lives of many more. Under these conditions investment in the second Liberty Loan seems a more practical sort of patriotism than preparation for an elaborate festival, even should it be given for war relief.

The expenses which must be met for May Day before anything is cleared are enormous; and this year, more than ever before, a large audience cannot be counted on. People will think twice before taking a trip from New York or Boston to buy a two-dollar ticket for a war charity. They will prefer to give outright. The pleasure to be gained from May Day is still more doubtful; gambling on the green lacks zest unless it is spontaneous.

The War and Academic Work

With the beginning of a new college year conditions on campus as elsewhere will probably be largely abnormal. Already the war is felt in the changed personnel of the Faculty. In the next few weeks further by-products will undoubtedly appear in a curtailment of various college activities.

Whether the sacred field of the academic work is to be exempted from the general retrenchment becomes a problem. President Wilson, it is true, has advised the colleges in so far as possible to maintain their courses on a normal basis. Yet with the patriotic activities of women increasing daily, the fever for emergency work is in the air. The question, so stormily discussed last spring, of dropping one or more hours of lectures in favor of Preparedness Courses bids fair to be revived, and if so will have to be faced squarely.

The solution, of course, is not yet. It is to be feared, however, that in the heat of the crisis many will be inclined to forget that it is the academic courses for which, ostensibly, they are here, and which the Faculty is peculiarly fitted to give them. On the other hand, a frank curtailment of the regular studies would open the way to wider achievement in the preparedness courses, and perhaps even to more concentrated effort in the college work itself. The chief danger lies in a scattering of energies. To avoid this, students will, in many cases, be able to select academic courses bearing on the preparedness work they intend to pursue; or, conversely, project their emergency training in a line with their majors. By such a co-ordination a firm foundation would be laid for future patriotic service, while the academic work, in spirit, if not in letter, could be kept inviolate.

WAR MACHINERY AND MEDICINE IS PROGRAM OF SCIENCE CLUB

English Club Narrows Basis

The recent developments in machinery and medicine since the outbreak of the war will be discussed before the Science Club by special speakers during the coming year. The club will continue its bi-weekly meetings, addressed by members of the Science Department.

The English Club has changed its constitution to admit only those students who have obtained a High Credit in the General English Composition Course, or a Credit in an elective writing course. Formerly, a student with two semesters of Credit in any writing course, were eligible.

The Forum, an organization for the discussion of current topics, is open both to graduates and undergraduates. Meetings are held every Sunday afternoon at five o'clock. The Forum has no elected officers, depending for its success on the voluntary support of its enthusiasts.

STUDENTS AND PROFESSORS WORK SIDE BY SIDE

COLBURN GARDEN CANNERY A SUCCESS

The Colburn Garden Cannery at Paris, Maine, conducted by Dr. and Mrs. William Roy Smith, M. Peacock '19, M. Thurman '19, and A. Thorndike '19, during the summer months, was such a success financially and agriculturally that its five managers are planning to start a larger one next year on a joint-ownership basis. This season's work included the cultivation, canning, and sale of five acres of vegetables, and also the canning at fixed prices of vegetables raised by other farmers of the neighborhood.

According to an expert the Colburn peas and beans were the best the county had produced for years.

325 PEOPLE ENJOY VACATIONS AT BATES HOUSE

GOOD SUMMER FOR LONG BRANCH WORKERS

140 adults, 165 children, and 20 babies from the neighborhood of Spring Street, New York City, enjoyed vacations of one or two weeks' length at Bates House during the past summer. From Clean-Up Week in June to the closing of the house in September detachments of Bryn Mawr students, headed by Isabel Bering '14, and Ann Davis '17, and with Mrs. Annie Meredith, housekeeper of Merion Hall, as housekeeper, were at work amusing the children and running a household which averaged from 60 to 70 people.

The first guests of the house were members of a Ladies' Missionary Society. They were succeeded by 43 day-nursery and kindergarten children, whose visit was terminated abruptly when one baby came down with measles. As a result the workers appeared a day early in New York, and one of them had the unusual experience of taking two little boys home to a mother who failed to remember ever having seen them before.

There were 25 student workers at Bates this year, one of whom, H. Bittenwieser '20, was there for the whole season.

B. M. Farm Defeats West Chester WINS IN HOCKEY BY 2-0 SCORE

A scratch team representing the Bryn Mawr Patriotic Farm defeated a team of younger West Chester girls in hockey at the Friends' School, West Chester, September 14th, by a score of 2-0. According to the West Chester Daily, "The college girls, by reason of their intensive outdoor work on the Farm, showed better form in their playing than did the younger girls of the home team, and manifested less exhaustion from the strenuous playing; they were able to make more forceful drives of the ball, and they gave a fine exhibition of 'dribbling', though penalized several times on 'sticks'."

"Best work for Bryn Mawr was done by Miss Rogers, who scored the first goal; Miss Tyler, who scored the second; Miss Biddle, Miss Nearing and Miss Day, while the others filled their respective positions creditably".

FORMER BRYN MAWR PROFESSOR BECOMES PRESIDENT OF SMITH

Dr. William Allan Neilson, professor at Bryn Mawr in the year 1898-1900 and late Professor of English at Harvard, has been elected to the presidency of Smith College, to succeed Dr. Marion LeRoy Burton, who resigned last winter to become President of the University of Minnesota.

Professor Neilson, who is a graduate of the University of Edinburgh, has held his chair in English at Harvard since the year 1906 and has been actively interested there in undergraduate affairs, particularly the college publications. He has also been connected with Upper Canada College, Toronto, and with Columbia University.

No Varsity Matches This Year

Harvard, Yale, Princeton, and Cornell have all declared a policy of no Varsity games for the coming year. Within the colleges, however, a systematic effort will be made to encourage more general participation in athletic, as well as military, training. The Freshmen intercollegiate matches will be played as usual.

STUDENT LABOR TO CONTINUE Gangs to Work at 25 Cents an Hour

The work on the athletic fields, with the exception of grass cutting, is again to be done by student labor, at a rate of 25 cents per hour. Gangs grouped by halls and under head workers will have the work allotted to them in hour shifts the evening before it is to be done. Notices are posted on the bulletin board, where students wishing to do this work may sign up.

The head workers will include T. Howell '18, A. Stiles '19, E. Lauter '19, and B. Weaver '20.

YALE OFFERS NAVAL COURSE

A course of training to prepare students for the position of ensign in the United States Navy will be one of the innovations this year at Yale. The four-year college course has also been shortened to three, by the addition of extra work. The new naval course parallels the course in artillery training started last spring to fit students for commissions in the artillery branch of the army.

MEDICAL SCHOOLS OPEN

The Harvard Medical School and the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University have at last decided to admit women to their courses, on equal footing with men. At the Harvard School the women's M.D. degrees will be conferred by the Council of Radcliffe College.

It is probable that the admission of women to these medical schools was hastened by the altered position of women in Europe and America since the outbreak of the war.

Model School Starts Hockey — MORE PUPILS THAN EVER BEFORE

Like its neighbor the college, the Model School is now larger than ever before with an enrollment of 62 pupils. A new art room twice the size of the old one is considered a great improvement. The school will play hockey this fall for the first time.

Among new members of the staff are the assistant director, Miss Margaret Turner, A.B., of West Virginia University and graduate student at Bryn Mawr 1916-'17; and three alumnae, E. Rambo '08, J. Batchelor '14, and R. Lautz '16, teachers respectively of Greek, English, and Science.

SPORTING NEWS

The Freshman tennis tournament opens to-day.

Freshmen are not allowed in the pool until they have been authorized. Swimming authorization will begin Monday evening, October 8th. The time of swimming up the pool will be taken and will count for medal time.

The hockey captains have decided to have only four practices a week and to release the fields on Thursday afternoons for third, fourth, and fifth team practices.

T. Howell '18 has been elected Varsity water-polo captain for this year. She has made Varsity and captained her class team every year.

The captain of Varsity tennis has not yet been elected. M. Stair '18, who made Varsity in her Sophomore and Junior years, is the probable candidate.

Extra hockey practices for the tennis not playing at the regular athletic time will be held on the lower fields daily at 3.45.

SPECIAL EXCELLENCE TEST FOR NEW SCHOLARSHIPS

Four new undergraduate scholarships were awarded for the first time last spring.

The Charles S. Hinckman Memorial Scholarship, value $500, is awarded to a member of the Freshman, Sophomore, or Junior Class, for special rather than general ability, and is based on the student's written work in her group subjects and recommendations from her instructors. By an exception, a member of the graduating class was the recipient in 1917, Katharine Burr Blodgett, who was next in grade to the European Fellow.

The Shippen European Scholarship, value $200, goes regularly to the European Fellow, the recipient for 1917 being Thalia Howard Smith, grade 88.4.

The Shippen Scientific Scholarship, value $100, is awarded to the member of the Junior Class majoring in science, who has attained the highest average grade in science courses covering not less than fifteen hours. The holder of this scholarship for 1917-18 is Virginia Kneeland, group Chemistry and Biology, grade 90.62.

The Shippen Language Scholarship, value $100, is awarded to the member of the Junior Class with majors in languages, who has received the highest average grade in her language courses covering not less than fifteen hours. This was given in 1917 to Therese Born, group Latin and English, grade 87.91.

BRYN MAWR WINS SECOND PLACE IN SILVER BAY WATER SPORTS

FIRST DELEGATION THERE IN SIX YEARS

The conquest of second place in water sports and second honorable mention in the song contest attended the debut of the first Bryn Mawr delegation at Silver Bay in several years. T. Howell '18, and K. Tyler '19, respectively, led Bryn Mawr to victory.

The twenty-five delegates, ten from 1918, nine from 1919, and six from 1920, were led by E. Biddle '19, and chaperoned by Miss Applebee. About forty other Eastern women's colleges, including Smith, Vassar, and Wellesley, were represented.

One of the most popular of the Bible courses offered was that by Dr. J. V. Moldenhauer of Albany. Dr. Moldenhauer will give a series of Wednesday evening lectures this year at college, under the auspices of the Bible and Mission Study Committee.

Special Meetings Valuable

War relief, self-government, and the management of college periodicals were talked over at special meetings held in the different cottages. Of particular interest among Bryn Mawr activities were the establishment of the college Farm and the fact that the College News does not run on a deficit. Several editors stated that the only way they could make their publications clear expenses was by having the subscription compulsory and put on the college term-bill.

It was learned in the war relief meetings that the question of substituting emergency courses for the academic work was, in the majority of the colleges, decided entirely by the Faculty. Teacher's College, Columbia, instead of running preparedness courses parallel with the regular work, had found it practical to devote the last two weeks of the second semester to concentrated training in canning, preserving, and similar industries.

ATHLETIC MEETING MONDAY

Freshman Attendance Required

The first meeting of the Athletic Association will be held in Taylor Hall on Monday evening, October 8th. T. Howell '18, the President of the Association, will speak, and the Secretary, E. Lanier '19, will read the rules. The meeting is open to Graduate students. Freshmen are required to attend.

CUTTING STATISTICS DIFFER

1920 Had Least Unexcused Cuts

490 more cuts appeared to the discredit of the undergraduates on the office record than on the Undergraduate Association record kept by the hall representatives. V. Kneeland, president of the Association, mentions two probable causes for this discrepancy. First, the students do not always record their cuts on their own cards on the day that the cuts are taken, and so some are forgotten and never recorded. Second, the students are late to lectures, and are consequently marked absent on the roll call. The students should speak to the professor under these circumstances, said Miss Kneeland.

The Undergraduate Association compiled their statistics on a slightly different basis than the office. The student organization counted cuts taken on account of illness in a student's family as excused. In number and date of excused cuts both records agreed in general, except in the totals of the student system, where the different basis of compiling operated.

1920 had the least unexcused cuts last semester, with 1917 a close second. The 1917 record is more an estimate than a fact, as their hall representatives found it impossible to collect all the cut cards for May.

"The Voice of the People"

The indelible impression left on West Chester by the Bryn Mawr Farm workers has been ably expressed by a citizen of that town. The citizen in question, a wood cutter by trade, seeing a group of the "fair bloomed agriculturalists" hauling logs from the woodpile to the waiting "Tillie" gave voice to the popular opinion in a hoarse, "Gee, you're too good to be true!"

 West Chester Daily Local News, September 14, 1917.*

At Silver Bay

"Won't you all come on a picnic with us"? The two Bryn Mawr delegates accepted enthusiastically and the glad news was soon published. "Radcliffe has invited Bryn Mawr on a picnic"! It was rather embarrassing, and very disappointing, to find the Southern "you-all" was not meant for the hungry Bryn Mawr horde, but only for the two persons addressed.

Memorial Room to Miss Garrett

Built for Women Students at Johns Hopkins University

A memorial to Miss Garrett, in the form of a much needed building for women students, was completed last spring in connection with the Medical School of the Johns Hopkins University. The building was erected by the Women's Committee of the Johns Hopkins Medical School, of which President Thomas is chairman, from subscriptions given in memory of Miss Garrett by the former and present women students of the School, the members of the Women's Committee, and other friends. The rest-room is modeled after the stair hall of the Bryn Mawr Deanery, and the easy chairs and reading lamps placed in a circle about the fireplace suggest the arrangement around the fireplaces in the reading room of the college library.

The rest-room furnished cost about $14,000 and commemorates in a very practical way the part taken by Miss Garrett in opening the Johns Hopkins Medical School to women.

Battle Horrors Prove Too Much For Wearer of Croix De Guerre

To aid in the relief work of Mme. Louis Cons in France we take pleasure in printing the following extract from a letter dated Aug. 10, 1917 by Mme. Cons to her sister in this country. Mme. Cons' husband was Associate in French at Bryn Mawr until the outbreak of the war.

"There are so many calls from everywhere, I am harassed with the difficulty of making the monthly fund cover the month's distresses. Unless I can get more cash, I shall have to cut down the packages—send one where I have been sending two—a small one in place of a large one, five francs where I have given ten."

"Ten of my men are in German prison-camps, and packages to prisoners are expensive, yet I cannot abandon them to starvation. The men at the front are desperately tired, after weeks of hard fighting. My youngest soldier, only 20 years old, nearly fainted in my room to-day.

"One of my best soldiers, Maurice Delattre—wearing the 'croix de guerre' and the 'fourragere' (given to each member of a regiment that has been 'cité' three times) was at the Chemin des Dames, which the Germans were determined to hold at any cost. They lost it finally, after innumerable attacks and counter-attacks, and some of the fiercest fighting of the war. There was no rest, day or night. The man, Maurice—huge for a Frenchman, and brave—suddenly lost his nerve. He has had terrible headaches lately, and a comrade at his side had just been struck by a shell and killed. Maurice was unharmed, but covered with blood, and perhaps the shell-shock made him temporarily insane. At any rate, it seemed to him that he could not endure for another instant the horrors of the battle—the noise, the dirt, the heat, the slaughter. When ordered to the rear, he did not stop at the cantonment, but kept right on, mounted a bicycle, and rode 60 miles to Paris to see me.

"When he reached the city, however, he suddenly realized what he had done, and was ashamed to come to me, but wrote a pitiful little note telling me about it, and saying that when he had rested a bit he would go straight to the military authorities in Paris, and deliver himself up. He did this, was court-martialed for desertion, and sent back to the front, punishment deferred until after the war. He felt terribly downcast over his 'disgrace', but I am sure it was the result of physical exhaustion rather than moral weakness."

Contributions may be sent to Miss Elizabeth White, Marlborough-Blenheim, Atlantic City, New Jersey.
