Trifles Lacks Subtlety; Chekhov Play Reveals Lighter Touch

by Jean Ellis '49

Triflea by Susan Glaspell, the first of two one-act plays presented by the Maids and Porters in Goodhart last Friday evening, provided entertainment which was adequate although not exceptional. The other play, The Proposal by Anton Chekhov, was a more pol- Industrial Psych. ished and a genuinely better production.

The first presentation seemed to be an overly ambitious undertaking. The plot is concerned with the strange death of Farmer Wright and the inquiry which follows. The County Attorney and Sheriff have returned to the Wright farmhouse in an attempt to secure evidence to be presented at Mrs. Wright's trial for murder. The only piece of information which could lead to an accusation is hidden by Mrs. Peters, the sheriff's wife, and Mrs. Hale, a neighbor overwhelmed by sympathy for the misunderstood and lonely wife of Farmer Wright. The subtle treatment which the action of Trifles requires was not achieved and the play therefore became comic.

Louise Jones as the repentant neighbor turned in an excellent performance, maintaining a fairly even interpretation of her role. Carl Smith as Hale delivered his account of the discovery of the intelligent workers would be elimdead man with great poise and inated. Dean Broughton Explains Rules Of Written Work Coodhart, April 25. At the request of the Judicial Committee of the Senate, Dean Broughton explained in detail the Senate regulations concerning written work in a special college assembly. She pointed out the necessity of making every section of these rules clear to each student in order to maintain the standards expected at Bryn Mawr.

Legislative Body Hinchman Memorial Scholarship Clarifies Clause on Responsibility Awarded to Elizabeth McClure

The Legislative Body of the Self-Government Association met in the Common Room, Monday, April 28, to discuss the interpretation of the Constitution and Resolutions and the possibility of rewording certain sections. It has been felt that the clauses concerning the individual's responsibility as a member of the association are not explicit. Thus, the discussion focused on the issue: Is the student, by virtue of her membership in an organization, obligated to maintain an awareness of the rules in other members as well as herself?

It was unanimously voted by the Legislative Body that the wording of the Constitution be changed for clarification since the present wording has been questioned. The recent ballot of the Self-Government Association, stating that each member is responsible for "seeing" that rules are obeyed, was felt to be too nebulous. The question was whether only Board members are responsible, or whether every student should take on responsibility of seeing that the rules are obeyed.

After discussing various specific problems concerning the changing of the clause in question (Resolu-

Mr. Forster will read from his own works, selecting several passages "Mr. Forster," stated Miss Woodworth, of the English Department, "is the most distinguished living novelist of our time, best known for his Passage to India, and Howard's End." A new collection of Mr. Forster's supernatural stories is being published this year by Harcourt Brace. The wide-spread interest that Mr. Forster has created in this country, both by his writing and by his critical work, has been increased by the news of his approaching arrival in America to take part in a symposium on music at Harvard. There will be an informal discussion and a chance to'meet Mr. Forster after his talk.

Wild Woman, Balloons and Jeep Add to Frolic of Carnival-Goers

by Helen Martin '49

The crowds came and the crowds stayed, the surest sign that the Sophomore Carnival was a complete auccess. The pleid-vested, leather-tongued barkers, who set out in the the ubiquitous jeep to advertise "food, fun, and bee-yooti-ful women" to the Vill, Haverford College and points between, did not over-estimate their wares. The carnival-goers supplied their pockets freely to boost the profits for the Alumnae Drive.

Finger-crossing averted the rains, but not the high winds early in the morning, so Chairman Margo Vorys and Randy Bell, Construction chairman, effected, with their crews, a complete removal of the Carnival from Merion Green to the more shaltered Pem Green. Here the food booths were set up, and sided under the shadow of Taylor tower, and a portable Gay Nineties snapshot establishment moved from spot to spot. The duck pen in the middle of the Green held an especial fascination for the undertwelve contingent, who also were both startled and charmed by the bike-riding Teddy bear as be meandered about with a coke bottle.

The wild woman, an exchange student from Southern Borneo, was the prime attraction of the sideshow, clad in a scant leopard akin. She looked like comething you would see lurking around Bryn Mawr the night before midyears. With her were a bost of other belles: the red-bearded lady, the long-head lady who contracts jumbo-sized hangovers, the anake charmer, the intellectual tattooed lady, and the fat lady, who again looks like something you've seen before, say, at the Inn. Five Can-Can girls glittered through their one-two-three kicks, with considerable poise, notwithstanding the quavering flats which threatened to equelch the ect. A joyous inter-Continued on Page 4

B. M. Steps Out

Last weekend has proved that books and papers can be pleasantly, if temporarily, dismissed, in favor of festivities ranging from one-act plays Friday night to picnics and lemonade Sunday afternoon, highlighted by the near-professional Sophomore Carnival and the gay Junior Prom.

Congratulations are due the well-coordinated committees which worked hard and intelligently to arrange an entire Broughton Clarifies weekend program. For the first time Bryn Mawr had what could actually be termed a Weekend, instead of an isolated evening into which too much is jammed. A dance should be a dance, not an epilogue to a play.

Marshall's Speech

Cold, hard facts unadorned by political ambiguities are hard to take. Secretary of State Marshall's speech made us realize that peace will be difficult, but not impossible, to achieve. Now that we have a clear picture of the aims of other nations, we can approach future peace meetings more objectively and intelligently.

On the surface, the conference seems to have accomplished little. Certainly, there were no material gains on the German and Austrian tractices, but Stalin is confident that agreement can be reached after protracted negotiation. Marshall warned that time is running out for German and European settlement, that Russia has time as a weapon on her use of reading notes. In summar- BEN or THE BEAVER WHO side. Therefore, the United States must take immediate action.

Molotov and Marshall are both unyielding bargainers. Neither made any major concessions. Marshall's speech emphasized the clash of Eastern and Western ideas. It is these differences between political and economic democracy which are causing the deadlock. It remains to be seen whether the brutal frankness and disagreement at the Moscow Conference will lead to discord or to compromise in the peace.

We must not be disgusted nor too impatient with the peace conference, remembering that treaties have never been mode in a day, but, _____ but mand, we must realize the situation ______ zerious and ought not to be hampered by avoidable delays.

Hoon Analyzes False Prophecy

Music Room, April 27.—"The Relation of Religion to the Contemporary World" was the subject of the address given at the chapel service directed by Dr. Paul Waitman Hoon, Rector of the First Methodist Church of Germantown.

Dr. Hoon based his sermon on the fourth chapter of the book of winning five of its debates. John, particularly on the verse which says "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God: because many false prophets are gone out into the world." Saying that our our world, he felt that we must "try the spirits" to win the ideal we seek.

The spirit of nationalism was analyzed as a false prophet which we have been unable to shake off even in our cessions to internationalism. Dr. Hoon pointed out the many aspects of nationalism which Princeton Tigers To Debate B. M.

The pros and cons of the delicate question: "Are Women Domincering?" will be aired on Tuesday, May 6, when the Princeton Debating team will invade Bryn Mawr for the second time. The debate will be held in the Common Room at 8:00, with 25 cents admission for the benefit of the Drive.

The panel of experts will include Margie Low, '50, and Pam Stillman, '49, for Bryn Mawr, Warren and Nixon for the Tigers, with either Collier, of Princeton, or Phyl Bolton, '49, acting as moderator.

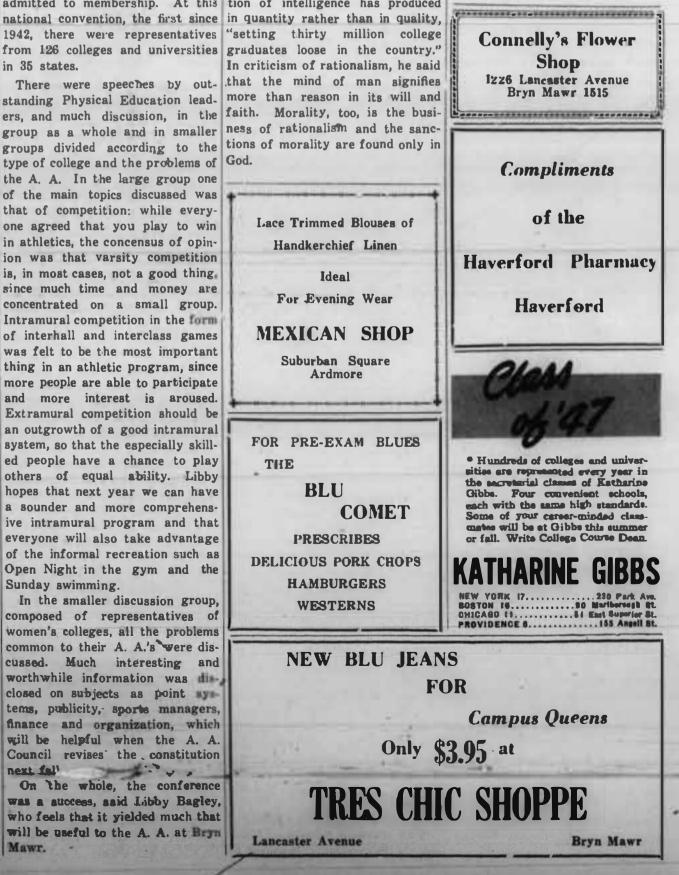

The Bryn Mawr Debate team recently participated in the ten-college Benjamin Franklin Debate Conference held in Princeton. April 18 and 19. There, Phyl Bolton, '49, and Betsy Curran, '49, for the affirmative; Hanna Holborn and Marjie Low, '50, for the negative each debated five teams. The subject was "Resolved: Labor should have a direct share in management." The hitherto "unconquering" Bryn Mawr team, reports Pam Stillman, new head of the club, came in fourth in the contest, according to common sense methods." This method, utilizing the interview, references, etc., has not been supplanted, but merely supplemented by psychological tests.

Seideman, '49.

Arts Night

The total profits of Arts Night amounted to $62.65. This sum has been applied to the student quota

Better results are obtained when tests are used. Dr. Viteles showed several slides of graphs illustrating the great increase in the percentage of workers who proved satisfactory in their jobs, when psychological tests are applied in their selection.

These tests are, of course, not 100 per cent dependable. They merely increase the chance of good selection. From these tests, it can be calculated accurately how many workers must be hired in order to end of a training period.

Here's a perfectly strange man looking you in the eye. You've been introduced...but it's up to you to carry on from there. Maybe your gobetween threw in some clues along with your names. Maybe you're exposed to each other without benefit hat on earth is there to say to this man?

The thought punies some of you into sticky silences. You grin sheepishly at him, wishing with your whole heart he'd hurl an opener at you. But maybe he thinks ladies should make the opening gambit. So it could be a draw ...

with each of you muffing your chances of making an impression on the other. But it needn't ... when it's so easy to start the ball rolling.

What is there to talk about? People are the liveliest topic. "Do you know ...?" always gets an answer. People do things, say things, wear things, win honors, go places. Things happen to people ... funny things, weird things, odd things. "Had you heard ...?" can start you off. Places are easy to talk about too. Places you've been ... places you're going ... places you'd rather be than where you are right now. When you've exhausted the tangibles, start on ideas. "What do you think about ... ?" will set him chatting. You'll even find yourself being talked down if you come out flatly with "I think ... !" Talk about things you've never done ... people you've never met ... places you've never seen ... things you know nothing about. It's a sure way to pry information out of a stranger.

Conversation's a game of associated ideas. One thing leads to another. And like most games, it requires at least two players. It's not a monologue. Toss words out... then wait for responses. It takes two active ears ... as well as a nimble tongue !

College Chorus Sells Recordings

Orders are now being taken for the two records recently made by the College Chorus. The records will arrive on May 9 and will be sold at the auction on that day and at the Faculty Show on May 10.

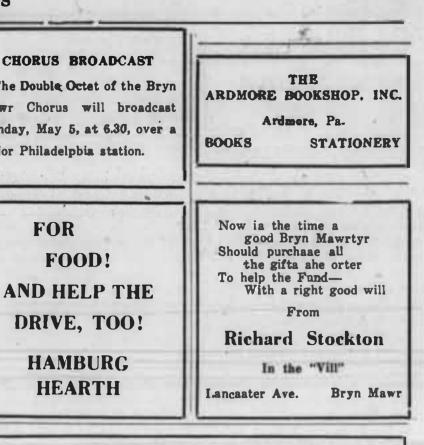

One of the Chorus recordings features "Concao" on one side and "Sacerdotes Domini" on the other. The second has "Hi Ho the Preacher 'Man" and "Blooming on the Hilltop" on one aide and "Watercresses" on the reverse. The two Appalachian folk songs were written especially for the Chorus and all were featured on the recent Chorus radio broadcast with the exception of "Sacerdotes Domini," The price of the records will be $1.25 apiece, or $2.50 for the pair.
