The Executive Committee,
The Deanery,
Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Mesdames:

We submit herewith our appraisal of the furniture and furnishings, pictures, china and glassware, silverware, linens and rugs comprising the movable equipment of The Deanery, located at Bryn Mawr, Pa., made as of June 29, 1963.

This report shows the insurable valuation of each item comprising the various classifications, as determined by our representative Mr. Edward Wiener, III, after complete investigation of the fair market value of the items under present conditions.

We trust that the report will be found complete in all respects.

Respectfully submitted,

THE MANUFACTURERS' APPRAISAL COMPANY,

Philadelphia 2, Pa.,
July 12, 1963.

FINE ARTS COMMITTEE

REPORT ON THE ORIENTAL CARPETs IN THE DEANERY
A college such as Bryn Mawr is a repository of learning and a supporter of the arts and therefore has a special responsibility not to be spendthrift of its own artistic heritage, even those phases of it which are not currently in vogue. Fashions change from time to time; objects considered unimportant forty years ago may become very valuable tomorrow. The only safe rule for trustees to follow in the disposition of articles bequeathed for the education and pleasure of future generations is: does it exhibit originality in its conception and fine workmanship in its execution? Any article which fills both these requirements must be regarded as falling into the category of the Fine Arts and preserved as such, if at all possible.

In the case of oriental carpets, which obviously qualify in the realm of the Fine Arts, the responsibility is even more difficult to execute than in the case of furniture. Due to their very nature, carpets are a wasting asset when used on the floors, and because Orientals of the variety and quality of those in the Deanery are no longer made, it is particularly important that care be taken to conserve them. They would be exceedingly expensive to replace now and eventually impossible.

Ideally the College would be best served if we could both use and preserve the carpets, which is obviously impossible. However, we believe that it is possible to accomplish this in part, provided certain needs are met and procedures are followed.

Our carpets fall into four categories: I. those that with proper care can be used on the floors for years to come (and will eventually pass into group II); II. those that are presently either too fragile or too rare to be left on the floor; III. those that will not hold up well under our traffic con-tions and, perhaps, should be sold; IV. those that are too far worn to be worth mending and using should be disposed of.

In order to preserve the life of our carpets in category I the procedure is simple though costly. First, the carpets must be cleaned and mended, whether they are to be used now or later. Next, each carpet must be carefully placed in Wynyndham so that it will not only enhance the total effect but also not be subjected to undue wear and tear. Lastly, the carpets in use must have proper pads provided for them.

We cannot overemphasize the importance of placing. Orientals should not be used in hallways and pass-through rooms or where heavy furniture and traffic will continually be moving over them. Our carpets are too old to continue this treatment. In fact, we have only seven runners left, of which five can still be used. (Of the two, one rumples badly and hence will wear out quickly as well as providing a safety hazard, and should probably be sold; the other is too fragile and must not be used as a runner, but will last a long time in a bedroom.) It might be wise to use carpeting in the halls and heavy traffic areas: it is more easily vacuumed, cheaper to clean, easier to replace, and will not require the floors underneath to be finished.

There are only three carpets which presently fall into category II. One, an antique Sena, is presently mounted and hanging on the wall of the staircase to the second floor. The second is an antique Shiraz (7'x16'), which was moved from the Dorothy Vernon Room to Room 2 because of the traffic problem, and probably should be hung up. The third is a blue Chichi Shirvan (7' x 12½'), now in the Lounge outside the Dorothy Vernon Room, which is also too thin to be used on the Perhaps space could be found on the walls of the Deanery for the second and third carpets where they can be enjoyed and endure for a long time. (The third, in Mr. Temoyan's opinion, is the most valuable and finest in the Deanery).

To properly mend and wash every usable carpet will cost in the neighborhood of $800. This does not include the large Persian from the Ely Room. There are approximately 17 pads needed, requiring roughly 71 square yards, the cost of which would be $177.50 using $2.50 per square yard as the average cost. All these figures are based on costs from last year and may have to be changed.

Those Orientals not to be used immediately should be cleaned and mended now and stored in an especially designed closet in the cellar of Wyndham. In addition, it is most important that the carpets not be separated from their pads during the moving and storage, for which a "modus operandi" must be devised.

In conclusion, we wish to repeat that these requirements must be met if our carpets are to be preserved: proper and prompt cleaning and mending, careful placing, and proper padding. It may seem unduly expensive at the moment and it is also a continuing expense, but the carpets from the Deanery are decidely a part of the Art Treasures of the College. The Persian carpet in the Ely Room is also to be regarded this way. Many people do not know and love Oriental carpets but those of us who have learned to love them through our exposure to them while at the College or elsewhere feel that we must do everything in our power to make it possible for future generations to learn about and appreciate this nearly lost art.

Respectfully submitted,

Caroline S. Bartol
