The Mission of Bryn Mawr College

The mission of Bryn Mawr College is to provide a rigorous education and to encourage the pursuit of knowledge as preparation for life and work. Bryn Mawr teaches and values critical, creative and independent habits of thought and expression in an undergraduate liberal-arts curriculum for women and in coeducational graduate programs in the arts and sciences and in social work and social research. Bryn Mawr seeks to sustain a community diverse in nature and democratic in practice, for we believe that only through considering many perspectives do we gain a deeper understanding of each other and the world.

Since its founding in 1885, the College has maintained its character as a small residential community that fosters close working relationships between faculty and students. The faculty of teacher/scholars emphasizes learning through conversation and collaboration, primary reading, original research and experimentation. Our cooperative relationship with Haverford College enlarges the academic opportunities for students and their social community. Our active ties to Swarthmore College and the University of Pennsylvania as well as the proximity of the city of Philadelphia further extend the opportunities available at Bryn Mawr.

Living and working together in a community based on mutual respect, personal integrity and the standards of a social and academic Honor Code, each generation of students experiments with creating and sustaining a self-governing society within the College. The academic and cocurricular experiences fostered by Bryn Mawr, both on campus and in the College's wider setting, encourage students to be responsible citizens who provide service and leadership for an increasingly interdependent world.

Student Responsibilities and Rights

The Honor Code

The high degree of trust and responsibility that the College has always given to students is reflected in the academic and social Honor Codes. These delegate to individual students the responsibility for integrity in their academic and social behavior. Responsibility for administering the academic Honor Code is shared with the faculty; the Academic Honor Board, composed of both students and faculty, mediates in cases of infraction. In the social Honor Code, as in all aspects of their social lives, students are self-governing; a Social Honor Board, consisting of 10 students, mediates in cases where social conflicts cannot be resolved by the individuals directly involved. Trained student mediators work with students to resolve conflicts in effective ways.

The successful functioning of the Honor Code is a matter of great pride to the Bryn Mawr community, and it contributes significantly to the mutual respect that exists among students and between students and faculty. While the Honor Code makes great demands on the maturity and integrity of students, it also grants them an independence and freedom that they value highly. To cite just one example, many examinations are self-scheduled, so that students may take them at whatever time during the examination period is most convenient for their own schedules and study patterns.

In resolving academic cases, the Honor Board might fail a student on an assignment or in a course, or separate her from the College temporarily or permanently. Social infractions that are beyond the ability of the Honor Board to resolve might be brought to a Dean's Panel, which exercises similar authority. For details regarding Honor Hearings and Dean's Panels, please refer to the Student Handbook.

Privacy of Student Records

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 was designed to protect the privacy of educational records, to establish the right of students to inspect and review their educational records, and to provide guidelines for the correction of inaccurate or misleading data through informal and formal hearings. Students have the right to file complaints with the Family Policy Compliance Office, US Department of Education, 400 Maryland Avenue, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20202-5920, concerning alleged failures by the institution to comply with the act.

Copies of Bryn Mawr's policy regarding the act and procedures used by the College to comply with the act can be found in the Undergraduate Dean's Office. Questions concerning the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act may be referred to the Undergraduate Dean's Office.
DIRECTORY INFORMATION

Bryn Mawr College designates the following categories of student information as public or “directory information.” Such information may be disclosed by the institution for any purpose, at its discretion.

Category I  Name, address, dates of attendance, class, current enrollment status, electronic mail address
Category II  Previous institution(s) attended, major field of study, awards, honors, degree(s) conferred
Category III Date of birth
Category IV  Telephone number
Category V  Marital status

Currently-enrolled students may withhold disclosure of any category of information under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 by written notification, which must be in the Registrar’s Office by August 15. Forms requesting the withholding of directory information are available in the Registrar’s Office. Bryn Mawr College assumes that failure on the part of any student to request the withholding of categories of directory information indicates individual approval of disclosure.

CAMPUS SECURITY INFORMATION

As part of its compliance with Pennsylvania’s College and University Security Information Act, Bryn Mawr provides to all students and all applicants for admission a brochure describing the College’s security policies and procedures. The College also makes available to all students and applicants the crime report required by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the most recent three-year period.

RIGHT-TO-KNOW ACT

The Student Right-to-Know Act requires disclosure of the graduation rates of degree-seeking undergraduate students. Students are considered to have graduated if they complete their programs within six years of the normal time for completion.

EQUALITY OF OPPORTUNITY

Bryn Mawr College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national or ethnic origin, sexual orientation, age or disability in the administration of its educational policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic and other College-administered programs, or in its employment practices.

In conformity with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, it is also the policy of Bryn Mawr College not to discriminate on the basis of sex in its educational programs, activities or employment practices. The admission of only women in the Undergraduate College is in conformity with a provision of the Act. Inquiries regarding compliance with this legislation and other policies regarding nondiscrimination may be directed to the Equal Opportunity Officer, who administers the College's procedures, at 610-526-5275.

ACCESS SERVICES

Bryn Mawr welcomes the full participation of individuals with disabilities in all aspects of campus life and is committed to providing equal educational opportunity for all qualified students with disabilities in accordance with Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. Students who require assistance because of a learning, physical, or psychological disability are encouraged to contact the coordinator of Access Services as early as possible to discuss their concerns and to obtain information about our eligibility criteria, documentation requirements, and procedures for requesting accommodations. Disclosure of a disability is voluntary, and the information will be maintained on a confidential basis.

Faced with rising costs affecting all parts of higher education, the College has had to raise tuition annually in recent years. Further increases may be expected.

Schedule of Payments

By registering for courses, students accept responsibility for the charges of the entire academic year, regardless of the method of payment. The College bills for each semester separately. The bill for the fall semester is sent in late June and is due August 1. The bill for the spring semester is sent in late November and is due January 2.

As a convenience to parents and students, the College currently offers a payment plan administered by an outside organization that enables monthly payment of all or part of annual fees in installments without interest charges. Payments for the plan commence prior to the beginning of the academic year. Information about the payment plan is available from the Comptroller's Office.

No student is permitted to attend classes or enter residence until payment of the College charges has been made each semester. No student may register at the beginning of a semester, graduate, receive a transcript or participate in room draw until all accounts are paid, including the activities fee assessed by the student Self-Government Association officers. This fee covers class and hall dues and support for student organizations and clubs. All resident students are required to participate in the College meal plan.

A fee of $275 per semester will be charged to all undergraduates who are studying at another institution during the academic year and who will transfer the credits earned to Bryn Mawr College, with the exception of students in the Junior Year Abroad Program.
Students are permitted to reserve a room during the spring semester for the succeeding academic year, prior to payment of room and board fees, if they intend to be in residence during that year. Those students who have reserved a room but decide, after June 15, to withdraw from the College or take a leave of absence are charged a fee of $500. This charge is billed to the student’s account.

All entering students are required to make a deposit of $200. This deposit is applied to the student’s tuition account.

Refund Policy

Students will be refunded 100% of their previously paid tuition, room and board, and college fee if the Registrar receives written notice that the student has withdrawn from the College or begun a leave of absence before the first day of classes.

For a student withdrawing from the College or embarking on a medical or psychological leave of absence on or after the first day of classes, refunds of tuition, room and board occur according to the following schedule. Fall and spring breaks are not included in the calculation of refund weeks. Note that Student Government Association dues are non-refundable.

- Week 1  93%
- Week 2  86%
- Week 3  79%
- Week 4  73%
- Week 5  66%
- Week 6  61%
- Week 7  54%
- Week 8  47%
- Week 9  40%
- Week 10 and following: 0%

The date the student began the withdrawal process by contacting the Dean’s Office orally or in writing is considered the date of withdrawal for College refunds and for the return of Title IV funds. When a student continues to attend classes or other academically related activity after beginning the withdrawal process, the College may choose to use the student’s last date of documented attendance at an academically related activity as the date of withdrawal. For a student who leaves the College without notifying the College of her intent to withdraw, the College normally uses the student’s last date of documented attendance at an academically related activity as the date of withdrawal. If that date cannot be ascertained, the College will consider the midpoint of the enrollment period to be the date the student withdrew.
Treatment of Title IV Federal Aid When a Student Withdraws

This policy applies to all students receiving Federal Pell Grants, Federal Stafford Loans, Federal PLUS Loans, Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (FSEOG), Federal Perkins Loans, Federal Academic Competitive Grants, Federal SMART Grants, and in some cases, state grant aid.

When a recipient of Title IV Federal grant or loan assistance withdraws or takes a leave of absence from the College during the semester, the College must determine the amount of federal aid that the student may retain as of the withdrawal date per a federal formula. Any federal aid that the student is eligible to receive, but which has not been disbursed, will be offered to the student as a post-withdrawal disbursement. Any federal aid the student is not eligible to receive according to the federal refund policy will be returned to the federal government.

The amount of assistance the student has earned is based on the percentage of the semester completed. The College calculates the percentage by dividing the total number of calendar days in the semester into the number of calendar days completed as of the withdrawal date. Fall and spring breaks are excluded as periods of nonattendance in the enrollment period. Once the student has completed more than 60% of the semester, she has earned all of the Title IV assistance scheduled for that period.

The amount of Title IV assistance not earned is calculated by determining the percentage of assistance earned and applying it to the total amount of grant and loan assistance that was disbursed. The amount the school must return is the lesser of:

- the unearned amount of Title IV assistance or
- the institutional charges incurred for the period of enrollment multiplied by the unearned percentage.

The order of return of Title IV funds is:

- Unsubsidized Federal Stafford Loans
- Subsidized Federal Stafford Loans
- Federal Perkins Loans
- Federal PLUS Loans
- Federal Pell Grants
- Federal Supplemental Education Opportunity Grants (FSEOG)
- Other Title IV assistance

If the College has issued a refund of Title IV funds in excess of the amount the student has earned prior to the withdrawal date, the student is responsible for repaying the funds. Any amount of loan funds that the student (or the parent for a PLUS Loan) has not earned must be repaid in accordance with the terms of the promissory note, that is, the student (or parent for a PLUS Loan) must make scheduled payments to the holder of the loan over a period of time. Any amount of unearned grant funds is called an overpayment. The amount of a grant overpayment that the student must repay is half of the unearned amount. The student must make arrangements with the College or the Department of Education to return the unearned grant funds.

The calculation of Title IV Funds earned by the student has no relationship to the student's incurred charges. Therefore, the student may still owe funds to the College to cover unpaid institutional charges.

A leave of absence is treated as a withdrawal and a return of Title IV funds may be calculated. A student may take a leave of absence from school for not more than a total of 180 days in any 12-month period.

The calculation of the Title IV refund will be done by the Financial Aid Office in consultation with the Comptroller's Office.

Treatment of College Grants When a Student Withdraws

The amount of College grant funds a student will retain is based on the percentage of the period of enrollment completed.

Financial Aid

For general information about financial aid and how to apply for financial aid, consult the Financial Aid Office Web site at http://www.brynmawr.edu/financialaid. To obtain more information about the financial aid application and renewal process, types of aid available and regulations governing the disbursement of funds from grant and loan programs, contact the Financial Aid Office to request a copy of the Financial Aid Handbook, which is updated and published every year.
The Academic Program

The Curriculum

The Bryn Mawr curriculum is designed to encourage breadth of learning and training in the fundamentals of scholarship in the first two years, and mature and sophisticated study in depth in a major program during the last two years. Its overall purpose is to challenge the student and prepare her for the lifelong pleasure and responsibility of educating herself and playing a responsible role in contemporary society. The curriculum encourages independence within a rigorous but flexible framework of divisional and major requirements and fosters self-recognition for individuals as members of diverse communities and constituencies.

The Bryn Mawr curriculum obtains further breadth through inter-institutional cooperation. Virtually all undergraduate courses and all major programs at Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges are open to students from both schools, greatly increasing the range of available subjects. With certain restrictions, full-time Bryn Mawr students may also take courses at Swarthmore College, the University of Pennsylvania and Villanova University during the academic year without payment of additional fees.

Requirements for the A.B. Degree

Thirty-two units of work are required for the A.B. degree. These must include:

- One College Seminar (students who entered before the fall of 2004 must complete two).
- One unit to meet the quantitative skills requirement.
- Work to demonstrate the required level of proficiency in foreign language.
- Six units to meet the divisional requirements.
- A major subject sequence.
- Elective units of work to complete an undergraduate program.

In addition, all students must complete eight half-semesters of physical education, successfully complete a swim proficiency test and meet the residency requirement.

College Seminar Requirement

The aim of the College Seminar is to engage students in careful examination of fundamental issues and debates that can illustrate the choices we make in our daily lives. By encouraging critical thinking, focused discussion and cogent writing, the seminars help prepare students for a modern world that demands perceptive understanding both within and outside of the frameworks of particular disciplines.
Students who matriculate in the fall of 2004 or thereafter must complete one College Seminar in the fall of their first year. Students who entered before the fall of 2004 must complete two College Seminars, the first in the fall of the first year and the second before the end of the sophomore year. Students must attain a grade of 2.0 or higher in each seminar used to satisfy this requirement.

Foreign Language Requirement

Bryn Mawr recognizes the inherent intellectual value and fundamental societal importance of acquiring a level of proficiency in the use of one or more foreign languages. The study of foreign languages serves a number of convergent curricular and student interests, including the appreciation of cultural differences, a global perspective across academic disciplines, cognitive insights into the workings of language systems, and alternative models of perceiving and processing human experience.

Before the start of the senior year, each student must have demonstrated a knowledge of one foreign language by:

- Passing a proficiency test offered by the College every spring and fall or
- Attaining a score of at least 690 in a language achievement test of the College Entrance Examination Board, or by passing with an honor grade an Advanced Placement, International Baccalaureate or A-level test or
- Completing at the College two courses (two units) above the elementary level with an average grade of at least 2.0 or a grade of at least 2.0 in the second course or
- For a non-native speaker of English who has demonstrated proficiency in her native language, two semesters of College Seminars or one College Seminar and one writing intensive course.

Quantitative Requirement

Before the start of the senior year, each student must have demonstrated competence in college-level mathematics or quantitative skills by:

- Passing with an honor grade an Advanced Placement, International Baccalaureate or A-level examination in mathematics or
- Passing one course with a grade of at least 2.0 from those designated with a “Q” in the Tri-Co Course Guide.

The purpose of the quantitative requirement is to provide the Bryn Mawr graduate with the competence to evaluate and manage the wide array of information underlying many of the decisions she will make as a member of society and in her personal life. The range of potentially useful quantitative skills is extensive and cannot be covered by any individual course. However, a single course can give the student an appreciation of the value of quantitative analysis as well as increase the facility and confidence with which she uses quantitative skills in her later academic, professional and private roles.
A course meeting the quantitative requirement will provide the student with the skills to estimate and check answers to quantitative problems in order to determine reasonableness, identify alternatives and select optimal results. It will also provide her with a recognition that mathematical and statistical tools have limits. Such a course is designed to help students develop a coherent set of quantitative skills that become progressively more sophisticated and can be transferred to other contexts. In all cases, courses meeting the quantitative requirement will have rigor consistent with the academic standards of the department(s) in which they are located.

Students who matriculated in the fall of 2002 or thereafter may count a single course or exam towards both the quantitative requirement and a divisional requirement, so long as that course is identified as Q and Division I, II or III in the Tri-Co Course Guide. Students who entered before the fall of 2002, however, may not count the course or examination used to fulfill the quantitative requirement toward any other requirement.

Divisional Requirements

Before the start of the senior year, each student must have completed, with a grade of 2.0 or higher, two courses in the social sciences (Division I), two courses in the natural sciences and mathematics (Division II), and two courses in the humanities (Division III). Courses satisfying this requirement are marked “I,” “II” or “III” in the Tri-Co Course Guide. Courses identified as interdivisional, e.g. “I or III,” may be used by a student to satisfy either one — but not both — of the appropriate divisional requirements; but only one of the two courses used to satisfy any divisional requirement may be such an interdivisional course.

At least one required course in Division II must be a laboratory course, designated “IIIL” in the Tri-Co Course Guide. One performance course in music, dance or theater or one studio art course may be used to fulfill one of the two course requirements in the humanities. A student may not use courses in her major subject to satisfy requirements in more than one division, unless the courses are cross-listed in other departments. Only one of the two courses used to satisfy any divisional requirement may be fulfilled by tests such as the Advanced Placement, International Baccalaureate or A levels taken on work done before entering Bryn Mawr.

The goal of the divisional requirements is to increase the breadth and variety of the student’s intellectual experience at the College. The divisions represented in these requirements describe not only different portions of human experience, but also characteristic methods of approach. Although any division of knowledge is imperfect, the current divisions — social sciences, the natural sciences and mathematics, and the humanities — have the advantage of being specific while still broad enough to allow the student a good deal of flexibility in planning her coursework.
Social Sciences (Division I)
The social sciences are concerned with human social behavior; the motivations, institutions and processes that shape this behavior; and the outcomes of this behavior for different groups and individuals. The areas of social-sciences inquiry include such wide-ranging topics as policy-making, cultural change, revolutions, poverty and wealth, generational conflict and international relations. The social sciences disciplines provide the student with a set of theoretical frameworks with which to organize her analysis of these substantive areas, and a set of methodological tools with which to test empirically — in the uncontrolled laboratory of the real world — the hypotheses that these frameworks generate.

Natural Sciences and Mathematics (Division II)
Knowledge of the physical world is a fundamental part of human experience; understanding the workings of nature is essential to our lives. To achieve this understanding, the student should be familiar with the concepts and techniques of the natural sciences as well as mathematics, the language of science. This understanding must go beyond a knowledge of scientific facts to include a facility with the scientific method and the techniques of scientific inquiry, logical reasoning and clear exposition of results.

Humanities (Division III)
In humanities coursework, the student creates and interprets many different kinds of artifacts, compositions, monuments and texts that are and have been valued by human cultures here and throughout the world. The humanities encompass the histories, philosophies, religions and arts of different cultural groups, as well as the various theoretical and practical modes of their investigation and evaluation.

The Major
In order to ensure that the student’s education involves not simply exposure to many ideas and disciplines but development of competence and some degree of mastery in at least one, she must choose an area to be the focus of her work in the last two years at the College.

The following is a list of major subjects.

- Anthropology
- Astronomy (Haverford College)
- Biology
- Chemistry
- Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology
- Classical Culture and Society
- Classical Languages
- Comparative Literature
- Computer Science
East Asian Studies
Economics
English
Fine Arts (Haverford College)
French and French Studies

Each student must declare her major subject before the end of the sophomore year by consulting with the departmental adviser with whom she completes a major work plan that she then submits to her dean.

No student may choose to major in a subject in which she has incurred a failure, or in which her average is below 2.0.

A student may double major with the consent of both major departments and of her dean, but she should expect to complete all requirements for both major subjects.

Students may choose to major in any department at Haverford College, in which case they must meet the major requirements of Haverford College and the degree requirements of Bryn Mawr College. Procedures for selecting a Haverford major are available from the Haverford Dean's Office at all times and are sent to all sophomores in the early spring.

Every student working for an A.B. degree is expected to maintain grades of 2.0 or higher in all courses in her major subject. A student who receives a grade below 2.0 in a course in her major is reported to the Committee on Academic Standing and may be required to change her major. If, at the end of her junior year, a student has a major-subject average below 2.0, she must change her major. If she has no alternative major, she will be excluded from the College. A student who is excluded from the College is not eligible for readmission. A student whose numerical grade average in her major remains above 2.0 but whose work has deteriorated may also be required to change her major.

A student with unusual interest or preparation in several areas can consider an independent major, a double major, or a major with a strong minor or a concentration involving work in several departments built around one major as a core. Such programs can be arranged by consulting the dean and members of the departments concerned.

Each department sets its own standards and criteria for honors in the major, with the approval of the Curriculum Committee. Students should see departments for details.

The Independent Major Program

The Independent Major Program is designed for students whose interests cannot be accommodated by an established departmental or interdepartmental major. An independent major is a rigorous, coherent and structured plan of study — from introductory through advanced work in a recognized field within the liberal arts — constructed largely from courses offered at Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges.

The following is a list of some recent independent majors.

Creative Writing
Dance
Feminist and Gender Studies
Linguistics
Medieval Studies
Peace and Conflict Studies
Theater

Students interested in the Independent Major Program should attend the informational teas and meet with Associate Dean Judy Balthazar in the fall of their sophomore year. In designing an independent major, students must enlist two faculty members to serve as sponsors. One, who acts as director of the program, must be a member of the Bryn Mawr faculty; the other may be a member of either the Bryn Mawr or Haverford faculty. To propose an independent major, students must submit completed applications by the end of the fourth week of classes in the spring of their sophomore year or, for junior transfer students, by the end of the fourth week of classes in the fall of their junior year.

The application for an independent major consists of:

- A proposal developed with the advice of the sponsors describing the student’s reasons for designing the independent major and explaining why her interests cannot be accommodated by a related departmental or interdepartmental major.

- An independent major work plan of 11 to 14 courses, at least seven of which must be taken at Bryn Mawr or Haverford. The plan will include up to two courses at the 100 level and at least four at the 300 or 400 level, including at least one semester of a senior project or thesis (403).
- Supporting letters from the two faculty sponsors, discussing the academic merits of the independent major work plan and the student’s ability to complete it.
- A letter from the student’s dean regarding her maturity and independence.
- A copy of the student’s transcript.

The Independent Majors Committee, composed of four faculty members, two students and one dean, evaluates the proposals on a case-by-case basis. Their decisions are final. The fact that a particular topic was approved in the past is no guarantee that it will be approved again. The committee considers the following issues:

- Is the proposed independent major appropriate within the context of a liberal-arts college?
- Could the proposed independent major be accommodated instead by an established major?
- Are the proposed courses expected to be offered over the next two years?
- Will faculty members be available for consistent and good advising?
- Does the student’s record indicate likely success in the proposed independent major?

If the committee approves the proposed major and its title, the student declares an independent major. The committee continues to monitor the progress of students who have declared independent majors and must approve, along with the sponsors, any changes in the program. A grade of 2.0 or higher is required for all courses in the independent major. If this standard is not met, the student must change immediately to a departmental major.

Physical Education Requirement

Throughout its history, the College has been committed to developing excellence. The Department of Athletics and Physical Education affirms the College’s mission by offering a variety of opportunities to promote self-awareness, confidence and the development of skills and habits that contribute to a healthy lifestyle. The College’s comprehensive program includes competitive intercollegiate athletics, diverse physical education and wellness curricula, and leisure and recreational programs designed to enhance the quality of life for the broader campus community.

All students must complete eight credits in physical education and successfully complete a swim-proficiency test. Semester and half-semester courses are offered in dance, aquatics, individual sports, team sports, outdoor recreation, wellness and fitness. Physical-education credit is awarded for participation on intercollegiate teams, rugby, equestrian and ultimate frisbee club teams. Students may earn up to two credits in physical education for pre-approved independent study. Students are encouraged to complete the requirement by the conclusion of their sophomore year.

Residency Requirement

Each student must complete six full-time semesters and earn a minimum of 24 academic units while in residence at Bryn Mawr. These may include courses taken at Haverford and Swarthmore Colleges and the University of Pennsylvania during the academic year. The senior year must be spent in residence. Seven of the last 16 units must be earned in residence. Students do not normally spend more than the equivalent of four years completing the work of the A.B. degree. Exceptions to this requirement for transfer students entering as second-semester sophomores or juniors are considered at the time of matriculation.

Exceptions

All requests for exceptions to the above regulations are presented to the Committee on Academic Standing for approval. Normally, a student consults her dean and prepares a written statement to submit to the committee; a student may, in unusual cases, request permission to appear before the committee.

Academic Regulations

Registration

Each semester all Bryn Mawr students preregister for the next semester’s courses in consultation with their deans. Failure to do so results in a $15 fine. Once a student has selected a major, she must also consult her major adviser about her program each semester. Students must then confirm their registration with the deans and submit their final programs to the registrar on the announced days at the beginning of each semester. Failure to confirm registration results in a $25 fine.

Students normally carry a complete program of four courses (four units) each semester. Requests for exceptions must be presented to the student’s dean. Students may not register for more than five courses (five units) per semester. Requests for more than five units are presented to the Committee on Academic Standing (CAS) for approval.

A student may take four units over four years, not more than one in any semester, under the Credit/No Credit (CR/NC) option. A student registered for five courses is not permitted a second CR/NC registration.

Transfer students may take one CR/NC unit for each year they spend at Bryn Mawr.
A student registered for a course under either option is considered a regular member of the class and must meet all the academic commitments of the course on schedule. The instructor is not notified of the student’s CR/NC registration because this information should in no way affect the students responsibilities in the course.

Faculty members submit numerical grades for all students in their courses. For students registered CR/NC, the registrar converts numerical grades of 1.0 and above to CR and the grade of 0.0 to NC. Numerical equivalents of CR grades are available to each student from the registrar, but once the CR/NC option is elected, the grade is converted to its numerical equivalent on the transcript only if the course becomes part of the students major.

The grade submitted by the faculty member is not factored into the student’s grade point average. However, that grade is taken into consideration when determining the student’s eligibility for magna cum laude and summa cum laude distinctions.

Students may not take any courses in their major subject under this option, but they may use it to take courses towards the College Seminar, Quantitative, Divisional or Foreign Language Requirements. While all numerical grades of 1.0 or better will be recorded on the transcript as CR, the registrar will keep a record of whether the course meets the 2.0 minimum needed to count towards a requirement.

Students wishing to take a course CR/NC must sign the registrar’s register by the end of the sixth week of classes. No student is permitted to sign up for CR/NC after that time. Students who wish to register for CR/NC for year-long courses in which grades are given at the end of each semester must register CR/NC in each semester because CR/NC registration does not automatically continue into the second semester in those courses. Haverford students taking Bryn Mawr courses must register for CR/NC at the Haverford Registrars Office.

Some courses, including many introductory survey courses, are designed as two-semester sequences, but students may take either semester without the other and receive credit for the course. There are, however, a very few courses designed as yearlong, two-semester sequences that require students to complete the second semester in order to retain credit for the first semester. Such courses are designated in each department’s course list. Students must have the permission of the professor to receive credit for only one semester of such a course.

Most departments allow students to pursue independent study as supervised work, provided that a professor agrees to supervise the work. Students pursuing independent study usually register for a course in that department numbered 403 and entitled Supervised Work, unless the department has another numerical designation for independent study. Students should consult with their deans if there are any questions regarding supervised work.
Students may audit courses with the permission of the instructor. There are no extra charges for audited courses, and they are not listed on the transcript. Students may not register to take the course for credit after the stated date for Confirmation of Registration.

Some courses are designated as limited enrollment in the Tri-Co Course Guide. The Tri-Co Course Guide provides details about restrictions. If consent of the instructor is required, the student is responsible for securing permission. If course size is limited, the final course list is determined by lottery. Only those students present on the first day of class will be considered for a lottery.

Students who confirm their registration for five courses may drop one course through the third week of the semester. After the third week, students taking five courses are held to the same standards and calendars as students enrolled in four courses.

No student may withdraw from a course after confirmation of registration, unless it is a fifth course dropped as described above. Exceptions to this regulation may be made jointly by the instructor and the appropriate dean only in cases when the student's ability to complete the course is seriously impaired due to unforeseen circumstances beyond her control.

Cooperation with Neighboring Institutions

Full-time students at Bryn Mawr may register for courses at Haverford, Swarthmore and the University of Pennsylvania during the academic year without payment of additional fees according to the procedures outlined below. This arrangement does not apply to summer schools. Credit toward the Bryn Mawr degree (including the residency requirement) is granted for such courses with the approval of the student’s dean, and grades are included in the calculation of the grade point average. Bryn Mawr also has a limited exchange program with Villanova University.

Students register for Haverford courses in exactly the same manner as for Bryn Mawr courses, and throughout most of the semester will follow Bryn Mawr procedures. If extensions beyond the deadline for written work or beyond the exam period are necessary, a Bryn Mawr dean will consult a Haverford dean to make sure a student is in compliance with Haverford regulations.

To register for a Swarthmore course, a student must take a note of permission from her dean to Parrish Hall at Swarthmore and return it, with the Swarthmore registrar’s signature, to the Bryn Mawr registrar. She must also secure the instructor’s permission.

Bryn Mawr students may register for up to two liberal-arts courses a semester in the College of Arts and Sciences or the College of General Studies at the University of Pennsylvania, on a space-available basis, provided that the course is not regularly offered at Bryn Mawr or Haverford. Scheduling problems are not considered an adequate reason for seeking admission to a course at Penn.

In order to register for a course at Penn, the student should consult the Penn Course Guide, take a note of permission from her dean to the College of General Studies at Penn and return it, with an appropriate signature, to the Bryn Mawr registrar. Notes of permission are available in the Dean’s Office.

If the Penn Course Guide indicates that permission of the instructor is required for enrollment in a course, the student is responsible for securing this permission. Bryn Mawr students may not register for courses at Penn until the first week of each semester and must meet all Penn deadlines for dropping and adding courses. It is the student’s responsibility to make arrangements for variations in academic calendars. Students should consult their deans if they have any questions about Penn courses or registration procedures.

Bryn Mawr juniors and seniors may take one course per semester in the College of Arts and Sciences at Villanova University on a space-available basis, provided that the course is not offered at Bryn Mawr or Haverford. If the course is fully enrolled, Bryn Mawr students can be admitted only with the permission of the Villanova instructor. This exchange is limited to superior students for work in their major or in an allied field; students must have permission of both their major adviser and their dean.

Courses at Villanova may be taken only for full grade and credit; Bryn Mawr students may not elect Villanova’s pass/fail option for a Villanova course. Credits earned at Villanova are treated as transfer credits; the grades are not included in the student’s grade point average, and these courses do not count toward the residency requirement.

In order to register for a course at Villanova, the student should consult the Villanova Course Guide, available in the Dean’s Office, and obtain a registration form to be signed by her major adviser and returned to the Dean’s Office. The Dean’s Office forwards all registration information to Villanova; students do not register at Villanova. Students enrolled in a course at Villanova are subject to Villanova’s regulations and must meet all Villanova deadlines regarding dropping/adding, withdrawal and completion of work. It is the student’s responsibility to make arrangements for variations in academic calendars. Students should consult their deans if they have any questions about Villanova courses or registration procedures.

Bryn Mawr students enrolled in courses at Swarthmore, the University of Pennsylvania, Villanova, or by special agreement with other institutions, are subject to the regulations of these institutions. It is the student’s responsibility to inform herself about these regulations.
Conduct of Courses

Regular attendance at classes is expected. Responsibility for attendance, and for learning the instructor's standards for attendance, rests solely with each student. Absences for illness or other urgent reasons are excused, and it is the student's responsibility to contact her instructors and dean. The student should consult her instructors about making up the work. If it seems probable to the dean that a student's work may be seriously handicapped by the length of her absence, the dean may require the student to withdraw from one or more courses.

Quizzes, Examinations and Extensions

Announced quizzes — written tests of an hour or less — are given at intervals throughout most courses. The number of quizzes and their length are determined by the instructor. Unannounced quizzes may also be included in the work of any course. If a student is absent without previous excuse from a quiz, she may be penalized at the discretion of the instructor. The weight is decided by the instructor. If a student has been excused from a quiz because of illness or some other emergency, a make-up quiz is often arranged.

An examination is required of all students in undergraduate courses, except when the work for the course is satisfactorily tested by other means. If a student fails to appear at the proper time for a self-scheduled, scheduled or deferred examination, or fails to return a take-home exam, she is counted as having failed the examination.

A student may have an examination deferred by her dean only in the case of illness or some other emergency. When the deferral means postponement to a date after the conclusion of the examination period, she must take the examination at the next Deferred Examination Period.

Within the semester, the instructor in each course is responsible for setting the date when all written reports, essays, critical papers and laboratory reports are due. The instructor may grant permission for extensions within the semester; the written permission of the dean is not required, although instructors may ask students to inform their dean of the extension or may themselves inform the dean that they have granted an extension.

All essays and written reports in any course must be submitted to the instructor no later than the last day of classes in each semester. In special cases when a student has been prevented from completing her work due to circumstances beyond her control, with the joint written permission of the instructor and her dean, the date for handing in a piece of written work may be extended beyond the last day of classes, and the date for handing in a paper in lieu of examination may be extended beyond the examination period. In these cases, the student must request an extension slip from her dean, take it to the instructor for approval and signature, and return it to her dean.
When written extensions are submitted to the registrar by the student’s dean, the instructor submits a grade of Incomplete, which is temporarily recorded on the transcript. If the student does not meet the date set in her extension, and does not request and receive a further extension, the instructor is required to submit a final grade. When official extensions are not received by the registrar from the dean, and the instructor submits a grade of Incomplete or fails to submit a grade, that grade is temporarily recorded on the transcript as an Unauthorized Incomplete. No grade, except a failure, can be recorded in place of an Unauthorized Incomplete without an extension or other appropriate action taken jointly by the student’s dean and instructor.

Seniors must submit all written work at least 48 hours before the time senior grades are due in the Registrar’s Office. Extensions beyond that date cannot be granted to any senior who expects to graduate that year.

Specific dates for all deadlines are published and circulated by the registrar. It is the student’s responsibility to inform herself of these dates.

Once reported to the registrar, a grade may be altered by the faculty member who originally submitted the grade, or by the department or program chair on behalf of the absent faculty member, by submitting a change-of-grade form with a notation of the reason for the change. Once reported to the registrar, no grade may be changed after one year except by vote of the faculty.

A student must attain grades of 2.0 or higher in at least one-half of the total number of courses taken while at Bryn Mawr. She may be excluded from the College at the close of any semester in which she has failed to meet this requirement and is automatically excluded if more than one-half of her work falls below 2.0 at the close of her junior year. A student who is excluded from the College is not eligible for readmission.

Every student working for an A.B. degree is expected to maintain grades of 2.0 or higher in all courses in her major subject. No student may choose as her major subject one in which she has received a grade below 1.0 or one in which her average is below 2.0.

A student receiving a grade below 2.0 in any course in her major subject (including a course taken at another institution) is reported to the Committee on Academic Standing and may be required to change her major.

At the end of the junior year, a student having a major subject average below 2.0 must change her major. If she has no alternative major, she is excluded from the College and is not eligible for readmission.

The Committee on Academic Standing (CAS) reviews the records of all students whose work has failed to meet the academic standards of the College. A student’s record is brought to the attention of the CAS when she has incurred a failure or NC following a previous failure or NC, or when her work has failed to meet either the general standards embodied in the Merit Rule or the specific standards in the major subject. The CAS also reviews the record of any student whose work has seriously deteriorated.

A student whose record is brought before the CAS has a consultation with her dean and receives a letter specifying the standards she must meet by the end of the following semester or before returning to the College. The student’s parent(s) or guardian(s) receive a copy of this letter. A student whose record has been reviewed by the council is put on probation the following semester, or the semester of her return if she has been asked to withdraw, and may be required to meet regularly with her dean. Faculty members are requested to submit mid-semester reports for students whose work has been unsatisfactory. Students who meet the standards specified by the council during the semester on probation are then no longer on probation.

Any student whose record is reviewed by the CAS may be required to withdraw from the College and present evidence that she can do satisfactory work before being readmitted. The CAS may also recommend to the president that the student be excluded from the College. An excluded student is not eligible for readmission to the College.

Cumulative Grade Point Averages

In calculating cumulative grade point averages, grades behind CR, NC or NNG are not included. Summer school grades from Bryn Mawr earned on this campus are included, as are summer school grades from Avignon and Pisa. No other summer school grades are included. Term-time grades from Haverford College, Swarthmore College and the University of Pennsylvania earned on the exchange are included. Term-time grades transferred from other institutions are not included.

Distinctions
The A.B. degree may be conferred cum laude, magna cum laude and summa cum laude.

Cum laude
All students with cumulative grade point averages of 3.40 or higher, calculated as described above, are eligible to receive the degree cum laude.

Magna cum laude
To determine eligibility for magna cum laude, grade point averages are recalculated to include grades covered by CR, NC and NNG. All students with recalculated grade point averages of 3.60 or higher are eligible to receive the degree magna cum laude.

Summa cum laude
To determine eligibility for summa cum laude, grade point averages are recalculated to include grades covered by CR, NC and NNG. The 10 students with the highest recalculated grade point averages in the class receive the degree summa cum laude, provided their recalculated grade point averages equal or exceed 3.80.

Credit for Work Done Elsewhere
All requests for transfer credit must be approved by the Transfer Credit Committee. Credit may be transferred for liberal-arts courses taken at accredited four-year colleges and universities, provided that the student earns grades of 2.0 or C (C- grades are not acceptable for transfer credit) or better in these courses. Credit will not be transferred for a course taken by correspondence or distance learning, even if it is sponsored by an accredited four-year institution. Work done at approved foreign institutions is also accepted for transfer credit; in cases where numerical or letter grades are not given, the Transfer Credit Committee considers written evaluations of the student's work to determine whether she has earned the equivalent of at least 2.0 grades for this work. Grades earned in courses accepted for transfer credit are not included in the grade point average.

A student wishing transfer credit must submit an official transcript to the registrar. A student who wishes to meet College requirements (such as the College Seminar, quantitative or divisional requirements) with courses taken elsewhere must obtain approval from her dean or the registrar. In some cases, the student may be asked to obtain the approval of the appropriate department. Note that the foreign language requirement cannot generally be satisfied via transfer credit.

One unit of credit at Bryn Mawr is equivalent to four credits (or four "semester hours") at most schools on the semester system. One unit of credit at Bryn Mawr is also equivalent to six credits (or six "quarter hours") at most schools on the quarter system. Students taking a semester or year of coursework away from Bryn Mawr must take the normal full-time course load at the institution they are attending in order to receive a semester (four units) or a year (eight units) of transfer credit. Usually 15 or 16 semester hours, or between 22 and 24 quarter hours, is the equivalent of four units at Bryn Mawr; between 30 and 32 semester hours, or 45 and 48 quarter hours, is the equivalent of eight units at Bryn Mawr. Students who complete less than a full-time program with grades of at least 2.0 or C receive proportionally less transfer credit.

A student who wishes to spend a semester or a year away from Bryn Mawr as a full-time student at another institution in the United States should have the institution and her program approved in advance by her dean, major adviser and other appropriate departments. A student who plans foreign study needs the approval of the Foreign Study Committee in addition to that of her dean, major adviser and other appropriate departments.

Students who transfer to Bryn Mawr from another institution may transfer a total of eight units. Exceptions to this rule for second-semester sophomores and for juniors are considered at the time of the student’s transfer application.

Students may use work that is not transferred for credit to satisfy College requirements, provided that such work would meet the standards for transfer credit.

A student who wishes to present summer school work for credit must obtain advance approval of her plans from her dean and must submit an official transcript to the registrar. No credit is given for a course graded below 2.0 or C (C- grades are not acceptable). Credit is calculated as closely as possible on an hour-for-hour basis. A total of no more than four units earned in summer school may be counted toward the degree; of these, no more than two units may be earned in any one summer.

Students may receive up to four units of transfer credit for courses taken prior to graduation from secondary school, provided that these courses were taught at the college and not at the high school and were not counted toward secondary school graduation requirements. These courses may include those taken at a community college. In all other respects, requests for transfer credit for work done prior to secondary school graduation are subject to the same provisions, procedures and limits as all other requests for transfer credit.

Departure from the College prior to Graduation

Every student who leaves Bryn Mawr prior to graduation should see her dean and complete a Notice of Departure.

Academic Leaves of Absence

Any student in good standing at the College may apply for a semester- or year-long leave of absence. For a fall-semester or year-long leave, she should notify her dean by June 15.
For a spring-semester leave or one spanning spring and fall semesters, the deadline is November 15. With the dean's permission, she may later extend her leave for one additional semester by applying by June 15 for an extension through the fall or by November 15 for an extension through the spring. She should confirm her date of return by March 1 for a return in the fall semester and by December 1 for a return in the spring. Reinstatement is contingent on the availability of space in the residence halls.

Medical Leaves of Absence
A student may, on the recommendation of the College physician or her own doctor, at any time request a medical leave of absence for reasons of health. The College reserves the right to require a student to take a leave of absence for reasons of health if, in the judgment of the medical director, she is not in sufficiently good health to meet her academic commitments or to continue in residence at the College. Permission to return from a medical leave is granted when the College's Health Center receives satisfactory evidence of recovery (see below, Readmission following a Psychological or Medical Leave of Absence).

Psychological Leaves of Absence
Occasionally a student experiences psychological difficulties that interfere with her ability to function at college. Taking time away from college to pursue therapy may be necessary. The College sees this choice as restorative, not punitive. With evidence of improvement in health, Bryn Mawr welcomes the student's return. The College believes that time away for psychological reasons should, in most cases, be for an entire academic year to allow sufficient time for growth, reflection and meaningful therapy — students who hurry back prematurely tend to risk a second failure. Therefore, leaves of absence for psychological reasons are granted for a period of one year except in unusual situations (see below, Readmission following a Psychological or Medical Leave of Absence).

Readmission following a Psychological or Medical Leave of Absence
When a student is ready to apply to return following a psychological or medical leave of absence, she must apply for readmission. She should request an application for readmission from their dean. In addition, her readmission also requires the approval of Bryn Mawr's medical director or the appropriate member of the College’s counseling staff. The student should ask the physician or counselor with whom she has worked while on leave to contact the appropriate person at the College’s Health Center. Students who want to return in September must submit all readmission materials by June 1. Those who want to return in January must submit all readmission materials by November 1.

Voluntary Withdrawals
A student in good standing who leaves the college in the following circumstances will be categorized as “withdrawn” rather than on leave and will need to apply for readmission (see below, Readmission After Withdrawal):
• if she leaves the college in mid-semester (unless she qualifies instead for a medical or psychological leave of absence),
• if she matriculates as a degree candidate at another school,
• if her leave of absence has expired, or
• if she loses her good standing after having applied for a leave of absence.

Required Withdrawals
Any student may be required to withdraw from the college because she fails to meet the academic standards of the college (page 30, Committee on Academic Standing), because of an infraction of the honor code or other community norm (page 10, “The Honor Code”), or because she is not healthy enough to meet her academic commitments (see above).

In addition, any student whose behavior disrupts either the normal conduct of academic affairs or the conduct of life in the residence halls may be required to withdraw by the Dean of the Undergraduate College. If the student wishes to appeal the decision, a committee consisting of three faculty members from the Undergraduate Council, the president of the Self Government Association and the head of the Honor Board hears the student and the dean. The committee makes its recommendations to the president of the College; the president’s decision is binding. In cases of required withdrawal, no fees are refunded.

Readmission After Withdrawal
Students who withdraw, whether by choice or as a result of the above procedures, must apply for readmission if they wish to return. Students who wish to return from withdrawal should request an application for readmission from their dean. Students must submit their readmission application and all supporting documents no later than June 1 (for return in the fall) or November 1 (for return in the spring).
ACADEMIC OPPORTUNITIES

Minors and Concentrations

Many departments, but not all, offer a minor. Students should see departmental entries for details. The minor is not required for the A.B. degree. A minor usually consists of six units, with specific requirements to be determined by the department. If a course taken under the Credit/No Credit (CR/NC) or Haverford College's No Numerical Grade (NNG) option subsequently becomes part of a student's minor, the grade is not converted to its numerical equivalent. There is no required average for a minor.

The following is a list of subjects in which students may elect to minor. Minors in departments or programs that do not offer majors appear in italics.

Africana Studies  German and German Studies
Anthropology  Greek
Biology  Growth and Structure of Cities
Chemistry  History
Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology  History of Art
Classical Culture and Society  International Studies
Comparative Literature  Italian
Computational Methods  Latin
Computer Science  Linguistics
Creative Writing  Mathematics
Dance  Music
East Asian Studies  Philosophy
Economics  Physics
Education  Political Science
English  Psychology
Film Studies  Russian
French and French Studies  Sociology
Gender and Sexuality  Spanish
Geology  Theater Studies

The concentration, which is not required for the degree, is a cluster of classes that overlap the major and focus a student's work on a specific area of interest:

Creative Writing (with a major in English)
East Asian Studies
Environmental Studies (with a major in anthropology, biology, chemistry, economics, English, geology, growth and structure of cities, or political science)
Gender and Sexuality
Geoarchaeology (with a major in anthropology, classical and Near Eastern archaeology, or geology)
Hispanic and Hispanic-American Studies
Neural and Behavioral Sciences (with a major in biology or psychology)
Peace and Conflict Studies

Combined A.B./M.A. Degree Programs

The combined A.B./M.A. program lets the unusually well-prepared undergraduate student work toward a master's degree while still completing her bachelor's degree. Students in this program complete the same requirements for each degree as do students who undertake the A.B. and then the M.A. sequentially, but are offered the unique opportunity to work toward both degrees concurrently and to count up to two courses towards both degrees. A full description of requirements for the program and application procedures appear at http://www.brynmawr.edu/deans/Comb_AB_MA_prog.shtml.

3-2 Program in Engineering and Applied Science

The College has negotiated arrangements with the California Institute of Technology whereby a student interested in engineering and recommended by Bryn Mawr may, after completing three years of work at the College, transfer into the third year at Cal Tech to complete two full years of work there. At the end of five years she is awarded an A.B. degree by Bryn Mawr and a Bachelor of Science degree by Cal Tech. Programs are available in many areas of specialization.

In her three years at Bryn Mawr, the student must complete the College Seminar, quantitative, foreign language and divisional requirements, as well as a prescribed science program and the basis for a Bryn Mawr major. (Students completing the program have had majors at Bryn Mawr in mathematics, physics and chemistry.) Students do not register for this program in advance; rather, they complete a course of study that qualifies them for recommendation by the College for application in the spring semester of their third year at the College. Prerequisites for recommendation include completion of courses required by Bryn Mawr and a minimum of one year each of chemistry, mathematics (including multivariable calculus and differential equations) and physics. Approval of the student's major department is necessary at the time of application and for the transfer of credit from the Cal Tech program to complete the major requirements at Bryn Mawr.

Students considering this option should consult the program liaison in the Department of Physics at the time of registration for Semester 1 of their first year and each semester thereafter to ensure that all requirements are being completed on a satisfactory schedule. Please note that Cal Tech does not provide financial aid to international students.
3-2 Program in City and Regional Planning

This arrangement with the Department of City and Regional Planning at the University of Pennsylvania allows a student to earn an A.B. degree with a major in the growth and structure of cities at Bryn Mawr and a degree of Master of City Planning at the University of Pennsylvania in five years. While at Bryn Mawr the student must complete the College Seminars, quantitative, foreign-language and divisional requirements and the basis of a major in growth and structure of cities. The student applies to the M.C.P. program at Penn in her sophomore or junior year. No courses taken prior to official acceptance into the M.C.P. program may be counted toward the master’s degree, and no more than eight courses may be double-counted toward both the A.B. and the M.C.P. after acceptance. For further information students should consult Carola Hein early in their sophomore year.

Combined Master’s and Teacher Certification Programs at the University of Pennsylvania, Graduate School of Education (GSE)

Bryn Mawr and Haverford students interested in obtaining both the M.S.Ed. degree as well as faculty approval for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania teaching certificate may choose to submatriculate as undergraduates into the University of Pennsylvania, Graduate School of Education’s 10-month, urban-focused Master’s Program in Elementary or Secondary Education. Students usually submatriculate at the beginning of their junior year.

Bryn Mawr and Haverford students who submatriculate may take up to two graduate-level education courses at Penn while they are undergraduates (usually during their junior or senior years) that will double count toward both their undergraduate and graduate degrees. To submatriculate into the program, students must have a GPA of a 3.0 or above and a combined GRE score of at least 1000 and must complete an application for admission.

More information about the secondary education and elementary education master’s programs are available on the GSE Web site: http://www.gse.upenn.edu/degrees_programs/.

Summer Language Programs

Summer language programs offer students the opportunity to spend short periods of time conducting research, studying a language and getting to know another part of the world well.

Bryn Mawr offers a six-week summer program in Avignon, France. This total-immersion program is designed for undergraduate and graduate students with a serious interest in French language, literature and culture. The faculty of the Institut is composed of professors teaching in colleges and universities in the United States and Europe. Classes are Applicants for admission must have strong academic records and have completed a course in French at a third-year college level or the equivalent. For detailed information concerning admission, curriculum, fees, academic credit and scholarships, students should consult Professor Brigitte Mahuier of the Department of French and/or visit the Avignon Web site at http://www.brynmawr.edu/avignon.

Bryn Mawr offers a summer program of intensive study in Pisa. Focusing on Italian language, culture, art and literature, the coeducational program is open to students from Bryn Mawr and other colleges and universities. Courses carry full, transferable credit and are taught by professors from institutions in both the United States and Europe. Applicants must have a solid academic background and a serious interest in Italian culture, but need not have previous course work in Italian; introductory classes are offered. Students can make their own travel and housing arrangements, though most choose to stay at a hotel conveniently located in the center of Pisa and close to where classes are held. Information about these accommodations is available through the program. Some need-based financial aid is available. For information, contact Professors Nicholas Patruno (x5047) or Roberta Ricci (x 5048) in the Department of Italian.

The College also participates in summer programs with the American Council of Teachers of Russian (A.C.T.R.) in Moscow, St. Petersburg and other sites in Russia. These overseas programs are based at several leading Russian universities and are open to Bryn Mawr students who have reached the Intermediate level of proficiency in speaking and reading. Summer programs are 8 weeks in length and provide the equivalent of 2 course units of work in advanced Russian language and culture. Many Bryn Mawr students also take part in the semester (4 units) or academic year (8 units) programs in Russia as well. For further information about the A.C.T.R. programs, students should consult the Department of Russian or ACTR at http://www.actr.org

Study Abroad in the Junior Year

Bryn Mawr encourages eligible students to consider studying abroad for a semester as a part of their undergraduate education, subject to the requirements of their majors and enrollment at the College. Study abroad can enhance students' language skills, broaden their academic preparation, introduce them to new cultures, and enhance their personal growth and independence. The College has approved about 70 programs in colleges and universities in other countries. Students who study abroad include majors across the humanities, the social sciences and the natural sciences. Last year students studied in Argentina, Australia, Austria, Canada, Chile, China, Costa Rica, Czech Republic, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Egypt, France, Germany, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Mexico, New Zealand, Philippines, Russia, Senegal, South Africa, Spain, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

The Foreign Studies Committee determines a student’s eligibility by looking at a variety of factors, including the overall and major grade point averages, the intellectual coherence of the study abroad experience with the academic program, and faculty recommendations. An applicant must have a declared major and a strong academic record, and meet the language requirements set forth by the overseas program where she intends to study. Students with a grade point average below 3.0 should consult the Director of International Programs regarding eligibility. Most non-English speaking programs expect students to meet at least intermediate proficiency level before matriculation, and some require more advanced preparation. The student must also be in good disciplinary standing.

Only foreign language majors or students eligible to study with programs for which one semester is not an option may receive a full year of credit for study abroad. The Foreign Studies Committee will consider requests for exceptions to this policy from students who present a compelling academic plan requiring a full year of study outside the United States.

All students interested in study abroad in their junior year must declare their major(s) and complete the Bryn Mawr applications by February 5 of their sophomore year. Study abroad students continue to pay Bryn Mawr tuition, and in most cases, pay the overseas programs directly for housing and food. For programs that include room and board as part of comprehensive fees, students will pay Bryn Mawr room and board fees. The College, in turn, pays the program fees directly to the institution abroad. Financial aid for study abroad is available for students who are eligible for assistance and have been receiving aid during their first and sophomore years. If the study abroad budget is not able to support all of those on aid who plan to study abroad, priority will be given to those for whom it is most appropriate academically and to those who have had the least international experience. For details, see the Study Abroad Guide, which is updated and published every year.

Preparation for Careers in Architecture

Although Bryn Mawr offers no formal degree in architecture or a set preprofessional path, students who wish to pursue architecture as a career may prepare for graduate study in the United States and abroad through courses offered in the Growth and Structure of Cities Program (see page 184). Students interested in architecture and urban design should pursue the studio courses (226, 228) in addition to regular introductory courses. They should also select appropriate electives in architectural history and urban design (including classes in classical and Near Eastern archaeology, East Asian studies and history of art) to gain a broad exposure to architecture over time as well as across cultural tradi-
Preparation for Careers in the Health Professions

The Bryn Mawr curriculum offers courses that meet the requirements for admission to professional schools in medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine and public health. Each year a significant number of Bryn Mawr graduates enroll in these schools. The minimal requirements for most medical and dental schools are met by one year of English, one year of biology, one year of general chemistry, one year of organic chemistry and one year of physics; however, many medical schools and some dental schools do require one additional semester of upper-level coursework in biology. Schools of veterinary medicine usually require upper-level coursework in biology as well as extensive experience working with a diversity of animal species. Students considering careers in one of the health professions are encouraged to discuss their plans with the undergraduate health professions adviser in Canwyll House. The Health Professions Advising Office publishes the Guide for First- and Second-Year Students Interested in the Health Professions. This handbook is available at the meeting for first-year students during Customs Week and at the Health Professions Advising Office in Canwyll House. More information about preparing for careers in the health professions, including the Guide for First- and Second-Year Students, is also available at the Health Professions Advising Office Web site, http://www.brynmawr.edu/healthpro.

Preparation for Careers in Law

Because a student with a strong record in any field of study can compete successfully for admission to law school, there is no prescribed program of “pre-law” courses. Students considering a career in law may explore that interest at Bryn Mawr in a variety of ways — e.g., by increasing their familiarity with U.S. history and its political process, participating in Bryn Mawr’s well established student self-government process, “shadowing” alumnae/i lawyers through the Career Development Office’s externship program and attending law career panels and refining their knowledge about law-school programs in the Pre-Law Club. Students seeking guidance about the law-school application and admission process may consult with the College’s pre-law adviser, Jane Finkle, at the Career Development Office.

Teaching Certification

Students majoring in biology, chemistry, English, French, history, Latin, mathematics, physics, political science, Spanish and a number of other fields that are typically taught in secondary school, may get certified to teach in public secondary high schools in Pennsylvania. By reciprocal arrangement, the Pennsylvania certificate is accepted by most other states as well. A student who wishes to teach should consult her dean, the Education Program adviser and the chair of her major department early in her college career so that she may make appropriate curricular plans. Students may also choose to get certified to teach after they graduate through Bryn Mawr’s Continuing Education program. For further information, see the Education Program, page 130.

AFROTC — Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps

Bryn Mawr students are eligible to participate in the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (AFROTC) through an agreement with Saint Joseph’s University (SJU). All AFROTC Aerospace Studies courses are held on the SJU campus. This program enables a Bryn Mawr student to earn a commission as an Air Force officer while concurrently satisfying her baccalaureate degree requirements.

The Department of Aerospace Studies at Saint Joseph’s University offers both two-year and four-year curricula leading to a commission as a second lieutenant in the Air Force. In the four-year curriculum, a student takes the General Military Course (GMC) during the first and second years, attends a four-week summer training program, and then takes the Professional Officer Course (POC) in the third and fourth years. The student is under no contractual obligation to the Air Force until entering the POC or accepting an Air Force scholarship. In the two-year curriculum, the student attends a six-week summer training program and then enters the POC in the third year.

The subject matter of the first and second years is developed from a historical perspective and focuses on the scope, structure and history of the military with an emphasis on the development of air power. During the third and fourth years, the curriculum concentrates on the concepts and practices of leadership and management, and the role of national security issues in contemporary American society.

In addition to the academic portion of the curriculum, each student participates in a two-hour Leadership Laboratory each week. During this period, the day-to-day skills and working environment of the Air Force are discussed and explained. The Leadership Lab uses a student organization designed for the practice of leadership and management techniques.

The AFROTC program offers one-, one-and-a-half-, two-, two-and-a-half-, three-, and three-and-a-half-year scholarships on a competitive basis to qualified applicants. All scholarships cover tuition, lab fees, a flat-rate allowance for books and a tax-free monthly stipend. All members of the POC, regardless of scholarship status, receive the tax-free monthly stipend plus additional support for those POC not on scholarship.

Degree credit allowed toward the Bryn Mawr A.B. for AFROTC courses is determined on an individual basis. For further information about the AFROTC cross-enrollment program, scholarships and career opportunities, contact the Professor of Aerospace Studies, AFROTC Det 750, Saint Joseph’s University, 5600 City Avenue, Philadelphia, PA, 19131 or by phone at (610) 660-3190 or via e-mail at rotc@sju.edu. Interested students should also consult their deans.

Continuing Education Program

The Continuing Education Program provides highly qualified women, men and high-school students who do not wish to undertake a full college program leading to a degree the opportunity to take courses at Bryn Mawr College on a fee basis, prorated according to the tuition of the College, space and resources permitting. Students accepted by the Continuing Education Program may apply to take up to two courses per semester; they have the option of auditing courses or taking courses for credit. Alumnae/i who have received one or more degrees from Bryn Mawr (A.B., M.A., M.S.S., M.L.S.P. and/or Ph.D.) and women and men 60 years of age and older are entitled to take undergraduate courses for credit at the College at a special rate. This rate applies only to continuing-education students and not to matriculated McBride Scholars. Continuing-education students are not eligible to receive financial aid from the College. For more information or an application, contact the Continuing Education Program office at (610) 526-6515 or send a request to Continuing Education, Bryn Mawr College, 101 North Merion Avenue, Bryn Mawr, Pa., 19010-2899.

Katharine E. McBride Scholars Program

The Katharine E. McBride Scholars Program serves women beyond the traditional college entry age who wish to earn an undergraduate degree at Bryn Mawr. The program admits women who have demonstrated talent, achievement and intelligence in various areas, including employment, volunteer activities and home or formal study. McBride Scholars are admitted directly as matriculated students.

Once admitted to the College, McBride scholars are subject to the residency rule, which requires that a student take a minimum of 24 course units while enrolled at Bryn Mawr. Exceptions will be made for students who transfer more than eight units from previous work. Such students may transfer up to 16 units and must then take at least 16 units at Bryn Mawr. McBride Scholars may study on a part-time or full-time basis. For more information or an application, visit the McBride Program Web site at http://www.brynmawr.edu/mcbride, send an e-mail to mcbrides@brynmawr.edu or call (610) 526-5375.

Postbaccalaureate Premedical Program

Women and men who hold bachelor’s degrees but need introductory science courses before making initial application to schools of medicine, dentistry and veterinary medicine may apply to the Postbaccalaureate Premedical Program. The Postbac Program stresses intensive work in the sciences. It is designed primarily for students who are changing fields and who have not previously completed the premedical requirements. Applications are considered for admission in the summer or fall only. Applications should be submitted as early as possible because decisions are made on a rolling admissions basis. The Postbac Program is highly selective. Please visit http://www.brynmawr.edu/postbac for more information.

Students enrolled in the Postbac Program may elect to apply early for provisional admission to an outstanding group of medical schools with which Bryn Mawr has a “consortial” arrangement. Students who are accepted at a medical school through the consortial process enter medical school in the September immediately following the completion of their postbaccalaureate year. Otherwise, students apply to medical school during the summer of the year they are completing the program.

The following are Bryn Mawr’s “consortial” medical schools:

- Brown University School of Medicine
- Dartmouth Medical School
- Drexel University College of Medicine
- George Washington University School of Medicine and Health Sciences
- Jefferson Medical College of Thomas Jefferson University
- SUNY Downstate College of Medicine
- SUNY at Stony Brook School of Medicine Health Sciences Center
- Temple University School of Medicine
- University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey — Robert Wood Johnson Medical School
- University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine
- University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine
- University of Rochester School of Medicine

Summer Courses

During Summer Sessions I and II, qualified women and men, including high-school students, may take courses in the sciences, mathematics and intensive language studies in Russian. Students may use these courses to fulfill undergraduate requirements or prepare for graduate study. The current summer-session calendar should be consulted for dates and course descriptions. Each course carries full academic credit.

Centers for 21st Century Inquiry

Bryn Mawr’s interdisciplinary centers encourage innovation and collaboration in research, teaching and learning. The four interrelated centers are designed to bring together scholars from various fields to examine diverse ways of thinking about areas of common interest, creating a stage for constant academic renewal and transformation.

Flexible and inclusive, the centers help ensure that the College’s curriculum can adapt to changing circumstances and evolving methods and fields of study. Through research and internship programs, fellowships and public discussions, they foster links among scholars in different fields, between the College and the world around it, and between theoretical and practical learning.

With the opening of the newly renovated Dalton Hall in September 2006, a new Center for the Social Sciences will be established to respond to the need for stronger linkages and cooperation among the social sciences at Bryn Mawr College. Uniting all the social sciences under an inclusive umbrella, the Center will provide opportunities for consideration of broad substantive foci within the fundamentally comparative nature of the social science disciplines, while training different disciplinary lenses on a variety of issues.

The Center for International Studies brings together scholars from various fields to define global issues and confront them in their appropriate social, scientific, cultural and linguistic contexts. The Center supports collaborative, cross-disciplinary research and prepares students for life and work in the highly interdependent world and global economy of the 21st century.

The Center for Science in Society was founded to facilitate the broad conversations, involving scientists and nonscientists as well as academics and nonacademics, that are essential to continuing explorations of the natural world and humanity’s place in it. Through research programs, fellowships and public discussions, the Center supports innovative, interdisciplinary approaches to education in the sciences, novel intellectual and practical collaborations, and continuing inquiry into the interdependent relationships among science, technology and other aspects of human culture.

The Center for Visual Culture is dedicated to the study of visual forms and experience of all kinds, from ancient artifacts to contemporary films and computer-generated images. It serves as a forum for explorations of the visual aspect of the natural world as well as the diverse objects and processes of visual invention and interpretation around the world.

Praxis Program

The Praxis Program is part of the Civic Engagement Office and is located in Dolwen on Cambrian Row. Praxis is an experiential, community-based learning program that integrates theory and practice through student engagement in active, relevant fieldwork, enhances student learning and builds citizenship skills. The program provides consistent, equitable guidelines along with curricular coherence and support to students and faculty who wish to combine coursework with fieldwork and community-based research. The three designated types of Praxis courses — departmental courses, interdepartmental seminars and independent studies — are described on page 45 and at http://www.bryn-mawr.edu/praxis.

Praxis courses on all levels are distinguished by genuine collaboration with fieldsite organizations. A dynamic process of reflection incorporates lessons learned in the field into the classroom setting and applies theoretical understanding gained through classroom study to work done in the broader community. The nature of fieldwork assignments and projects varies according to the learning objectives for the course and according to the needs of the organization.

The role of the Praxis Office is to assist faculty in identifying, establishing and supporting field placements and to develop ongoing partnerships with community organizations, such as social service agencies, schools, government offices and museums. Field supervisors orient the student to the fieldsite, identify placement objectives and oversee the work of the student at the site. Field supervisors frequently visit the classroom as guest presenters and co-teachers. Faculty members retain ultimate responsibility and control over the components of the Praxis Program that make it distinctly academic: course reading and discussion, rigorous process and reflection, and formal presentation and evaluation of student progress.

There are three levels of Praxis courses (see below), which require increasing amounts of fieldwork but do not need to be taken successively: departmental courses (Praxis 1), interdepartmental seminars (Praxis 2) and independent study (Praxis 3). Praxis courses may be offered in any department and students may enroll in more than one Praxis course at a time. Students enrolled in more than one Praxis course are sometimes able to use the same field placement to meet the requirements of both courses. Praxis-style courses taken at other institutions are subject to prior approval by the Praxis Office and faculty supervisor.

A Praxis I Departmental Course uses fieldwork as a form of experiential learning to enrich the study and understanding of a single disciplinary topic. Fieldwork typically constitutes 25 percent of total coursework assigned. Students typically complete one 2- to 3-hour fieldsite visit a week. Students are eligible for Praxis I courses according to departmental guidelines.

A Praxis II Interdepartmental Seminar is a multidisciplinary course combining more substantial fieldwork with an academic focus on a central topic (e.g., geographic location, historical period, social issue, etc.) studied from several disciplinary perspectives. Field-work typically constitutes 50 percent of total coursework assigned. Students typically complete two 2- to 3-hour fieldsite visits a week. Praxis II courses are available to sophomore and higher-level students who are in good academic standing.

A Praxis III Independent Study places fieldwork at the center of a supervised learning experience. Fieldwork is supported by appropriate readings and regular meetings with a faculty member who must agree in advance to supervise the project. Faculty are not obligated to supervise Praxis III courses and may decline to do so. Departments may limit the number of Praxis III courses that a faculty member may supervise.
Students who plan to undertake a Praxis III Independent Study should submit a completed Praxis III proposal to their dean for her/his signature at pre-registration and then return the form to the Praxis Office to be reviewed by the Praxis Program Director. The Praxis III learning plan — which must include a description of the student's course, all stipulated coursework, a faculty supervisor, a fieldsite, a fieldsite supervisor and fieldwork responsibilities — must be approved by the Praxis Program Director by the beginning of the semester in which the course will take place. The Praxis Program Director will notify the Registrar's Office when the Praxis III learning plan is approved, at which point a course registration number will be created for the course. Students are encouraged to visit the Praxis Office to discuss possible field placements, although they are not discouraged from developing their own fieldsites.

Praxis III fieldwork typically constitutes 75 percent of total coursework assigned, with students typically completing two 4- to 5-hour fieldsite visits per week. Praxis III courses are available to sophomore and higher-level students who are in good academic standing. No student may take more than two Praxis III courses during her time at Bryn Mawr.

The College Seminars are discussion-oriented, reading- and writing-intensive courses for first-year students. All students are required to take a College Seminar during the first semester of their first year. Topics vary from year to year, but all seminars are designed to engage broad, fundamental issues and questions, ones that are not defined by the boundaries of any academic discipline. The purpose of the seminars is to help students become better close readers and interpretive writers. Course materials are chosen to elicit nuanced thinking and lively discussion, and may include, in addition to books and essays, films, material objects, social practices, scientific observations and experiments. Seminars offered in recent years include the following.
Memory and Imagination: The Self in Story and Society
In this course we consider the nature of memory and its relationship to imagination, both in the evolving life of the individual and in the development of the larger group or culture. We look at the relationship of identity to power, and address the question of how re-considering memory and identity might open up new imaginative spaces in global contexts. Our inquiry will include novels, memoirs, essays by anthropologists and poets as well as photographs, artwork and films. We will write descriptively and critically, drawing on memory and imagination as well as analysis to develop and revise our understandings.

We Live Here: Humans and the Environment
The purposes of this seminar are several: first, to examine some of the basic biological dynamics of ecology; second, to explore a variety of human impacts upon the environment and some problems they entail; third, to notice some of the ways in which different cultures and times have used the concept of “Nature” to frame the human place in the natural world; fourth, to sample some different disciplinary perspectives on the environment and its problems; and finally, to raise the question of improving and perhaps healing the rifts and tensions between the human and the natural.

Erotica: Love and Art in Plato and Shakespeare
At the heart of this course will be two plays of Shakespeare (As You Like It and Antony and Cleopatra) and two Platonic dialogues (the Phaedrus and the Symposium) that are centrally concerned with erotic love, and with its relationship to truth and to what we call “art” — but Plato would have called “poësis” and Shakespeare, “poetry.” These texts raise important questions about the relationship between eros and knowledge, sex and politics, love and identity. Is erotic love an art of lying, an exercise in frivolity, an “expense of spirit in a waste of shame” — or do lovers seek and gain access to new forms of knowledge, new ways of understanding and of being? How are love and art related, and what does each contribute to human flourishing? Strategically chosen essays by modern commentators (including Marjorie Garber, David Halperin, Iris Murdoch, Martha Nussbaum and Leo Strauss) will help us locate and address such questions as these.

Classical Mythology and the Contemporary Imagination
The myths of the Greeks and Romans have provided an inexhaustible imaginative source for artists throughout the history of Western civilization, and each age has rewritten these myths (by translating them or adapting them) to reflect its own interests and anxieties. Writers have superimposed their visions upon the source myth, and in turn these visions have been examined by literary criticism, creating a kind of archaeology of interpretation on three levels. In the tension between the source myth and its reinterpretations lies the interest and the challenge for us as critics and as writers.
The Injured Child in Psychology and Literature
Among 20th-century psychological and psychoanalytic theorists a broad consensus exists that childhood is a crucially important period in every human life. Patterns of behavior and feeling are established in childhood that persist into adulthood; a psychic wound received in childhood will leave scars that persist into adult life. This course will bring together psychological discussions of childhood injuries and their healing from the works of Erich Fromm, Karen Horney, Alice Miller and Donald Winnicott, and with fictional texts including Emily Bronte’s Wuthering Heights, F. Scott Fitzgerald’s The Great Gatsby, Thomas Hardy’s Tess of the d’Urbervilles and Leo Tolstoy’s Childhood.
Academic Awards and Prizes

The following awards, fellowships, scholarships and prizes are awarded by the faculty and are given solely on the basis of academic distinction and achievement.

The Academy of American Poets Prize, awarded in memory of Marie Bullock, the Academy’s founder and president, is given each year to the student who submits to the Department of English the best poem or group of poems. (1957)

The Seymour Adelman Book Collector’s Award is given each year to a student for a prize-winning collection on any subject, single author or group of authors, and may include manuscripts and graphics. (1980)

The Seymour Adelman Poetry Award was established by Daniel and Joanna Semel Rose, Class of 1952, to provide an award in honor of Seymour Adelman. The award is designed to stimulate further interest in poetry at Bryn Mawr. Any member of the Bryn Mawr community — undergraduate or graduate student, staff or faculty member — is eligible for consideration. The grant may be awarded to fund research in the history or analysis of a poet or poem, to encourage the study of poetry in interdisciplinary contexts, to support the writing of poetry or to recognize a particularly important piece of poetic writing. (1985)

The Horace Alwyne Prize was established by the Friends of Music of Bryn Mawr College in honor of Horace Alwyne, Professor Emeritus of Music. The award is presented annually to the student who has contributed the most to the musical life of the College. (1970)

The Areté Fellowship Fund was established by Doreen Canaday Spitzer ’31. The fund supports graduate students in the Departments of Greek, Latin and Classical Studies, History of Art, and Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology. (2003)

The Bain-Swiggett Poetry Prize was established by a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Levin Swiggett. This prize is to be awarded by a committee of the faculty on the basis of the work submitted. (1958)

The Berle Memorial Prize Fund in German Literature was established by Lillian Berle Dare in memory of her parents, Adam and Katharina Berle. The prize is awarded annually to an undergraduate for excellence in German literature. Preference is given to a senior who is majoring in German and who does not come from a German background. (1975)

The Bolton Prize was established by the Bolton Foundation as an award for students majoring in the growth and structure of cities. (1985)
The Bryn Mawr European Fellowship has been awarded each year since the first class graduated in 1889. It is given for merit to a member of the graduating class, to be applied toward the expenses of one year’s study at a foreign university. The European Fellowship continues to be funded by a bequest from Elizabeth S. Shippen.

The Commonwealth Africa Scholarship was established by a grant from the Thorncroft Fund Inc. at the request of Helen and Geoffrey de Freitas. The scholarship is used to send a graduate to a university or college in Commonwealth Africa, to teach or to study, with a view to contributing to mutual understanding and the furtherance of scholarship. In 1994, the description of the scholarship was changed to include support for current undergraduates. (1965)

The Hester Ann Corner Prize for distinction in literature was established in memory of Hester Ann Corner, Class of 1942, by gifts from her family, classmates and friends. The award is made to a junior or senior on the recommendation of a committee composed of the chairs of the Departments of English and of Classical and Modern Foreign Languages. (1950)

The Katherine Fullerton Gerould Memorial Prize was founded by a gift from a group of alumnae, many of whom were students of Mrs. Gerould when she taught at Bryn Mawr from 1901 to 1910. It is awarded to a student who shows evidence of creative ability in the fields of informal essay, short story and longer narrative or verse. (1946)

The Elizabeth Duane Gillespie Fund for Scholarships in American History was founded by a gift from the National Society of Colonial Dames of America in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in memory of Elizabeth Duane Gillespie. Two prizes are awarded annually on nomination by the Department of History, one to a member of the sophomore or junior class for work of distinction in American history, a second to a senior doing advanced work in American history for an essay written in connection with that work. The income from this fund has been supplemented since 1955 by annual gifts from the society. (1903)

The Maria L. Eastman Brooke Hall Memorial Scholarship was founded in memory of Maria L. Eastman, principal of Brooke Hall School for Girls, Media, Pennsylvania, by gifts from the alumnae and former pupils of the school. It is awarded annually to the member of the junior class with the highest general average and is held during the senior year. Transfer students who enter Bryn Mawr as members of the junior class are not eligible for this award. (1901)

The Charles S. Hinchman Memorial Scholarship was founded in the memory of the late Charles S. Hinchman of Philadelphia by a gift made by his family. It is awarded annually to a member of the junior class for work of special excellence in her major subject(s) and is held during the senior year. (1921)
The Sarah Stifler Jesup Fund was established in memory of Sarah Stifler Jesup, Class of 1956, by gifts from New York alumnae, as well as family and friends. The income is to be awarded annually to one or more undergraduate students to further a special interest, project or career goal during term time or vacation. (1978)

The Pauline Jones Prize was established by friends, students and colleagues of Pauline Jones, Class of 1935. The prize is awarded to the student writing the best essay in French, preferably on poetry. (1985)

The Anna Lerah Keys Memorial Prize was established by friends and relatives in memory of Anna Lerah Keys, Class of 1979. The prize is awarded to an undergraduate majoring in classical and Near Eastern archaeology. (1984)

The Sheelah Kilroy Memorial Scholarship in English was founded in memory of their daughter Sheelah by Dr. and Mrs. Phillip Kilroy. This prize is awarded annually on the recommendation of the Department of English to a student for excellence of work in an English course. (1919)

The Richmond Lattimore Prize for Poetic Translation was established in honor of Richmond Lattimore, professor of Greek at Bryn Mawr and distinguished translator of poetry. The prize is awarded for the best poetic translation submitted to a committee composed of the chairs of the departments of classical and modern languages. (1984)

The Helen Taft Manning Essay Prize in History was established in honor of Helen Taft Manning ’15, in the year of her retirement, by her class. The prize is awarded to a senior in the Department of History for work of special excellence in the field. (1957)

The McPherson Fund for Excellence was established through the generous response of alumnae/i, friends, and faculty and staff members of the College to an appeal issued in the fall of 1996. The fund honors the achievements of President Emeritus Mary Patterson McPherson. Three graduating seniors are named McPherson Fellows in recognition of their academic distinction and community service accomplishments. The fund provides support for an internship or other special project.

The Nadia Anne Mirel Memorial Fund was established by the family and friends of Nadia Anne Mirel ’85. The fund supports the research or travel of students undertaking imaginative projects in the following areas: children’s educational television, and educational film and video. (1986)

The Martha Barber Montgomery Fund was established by Martha Barber Montgomery ’49, her family and friends to enable students majoring in the humanities, with preference to those studying philosophy and/or history, to undertake special projects. The fund may be used, for example, to support student research and travel needs, or an internship in a nonprofit or research setting. (1993)
The Elinor Nahm Prizes in Italian are awarded for excellence in the study of Italian at the introductory, intermediate and advanced levels. (1991)

The Elinor Nahm Prizes in Russian are awarded for excellence in the study of Russian language and linguistics and of Russian literature and culture. (1991)

The Milton C. Nahm Prize in Philosophy is awarded to the senior philosophy major whose thesis is judged most outstanding. (1991)

The Elisabeth Packard Art and Archaeology Internship Fund was established by Elisabeth Packard ’29 to provide stipend and travel support to enable students majoring in history of art or classical and Near Eastern archaeology to hold museum internships, conduct research or participate in archaeological digs. (1993)

The Alexandra Peschka Prize was established in memory of Alexandra Peschka ’64 by gifts from her family and friends. The prize is awarded annually to a member of the first-year or sophomore class and writer of the best piece of imaginative writing in prose. The award is made by a committee of the Department of English, which consults the terms stated in the deed of gift. (1969)

The Jeanne Quistgaard Memorial Prize was given by the Class of 1938 in memory of their classmate, Jeanne Quistgaard. The income from this fund may be awarded annually to a student in economics. (1938)

The Laura Estabrook Romine ’39 Fellowship in Economics was established by a gift from David E. Romine, to fulfill the wish of his late brother, John Ransel Romine III, to establish a fund in honor of their mother, Laura Estabrook Romine ’39. The fellowship is given annually to a graduating senior or alumna, regardless of undergraduate major, who has received admission to a graduate program in economics. (1996)

The Barbara Rubin Award Fund was established by the Amicus Foundation in memory of Barbara Rubin ’47. The fund provides summer support for students undertaking internships in nonprofit or research settings appropriate to their career goals, or study abroad. (1989)

The Gail Ann Schweiter Prize Fund was established in memory of Gail Ann Schweiter ’79 by her family. The prize is to be awarded to a science or mathematics major in her junior or senior year who has shown excellence both in her major field and in musical performance. (1993)

The Charlotte Angas Scott Prize in Mathematics is awarded annually to an undergraduate on the recommendation of the Department of Mathematics. It was established by an anonymous gift in memory of Charlotte Angas Scott, professor of mathematics and a member of the faculty of Bryn Mawr College from 1885 to 1924. (1960)
The Elizabeth S. Shippen Scholarship in Foreign Language was founded under the will of Elizabeth S. Shippen of Philadelphia. It is awarded to a junior whose major subject is French, German, Greek, Italian, Latin, Russian or Spanish for excellence in the study of foreign languages. (1915)

The Elizabeth S. Shippen Scholarship in Science was founded under the will of Elizabeth S. Shippen of Philadelphia and is awarded to a junior whose major subject is biology, chemistry, geology or physics for excellence in the study of sciences. (1915)

The Gertrude Slaughter Fellowship was established by a bequest of Gertrude Taylor Slaughter, Class of 1893. The fellowship is to be awarded to a member of the graduating class for excellence in scholarship to be used for a year's study in the United States or abroad. (1964)

The Ariadne Solter Fund was established in memory of Ariadne Solter '91 by gifts from family and friends to provide an annual award to a Bryn Mawr or Haverford undergraduate working on a project concerning development in a third world country or the United States. (1989)

The Katherine Stains Prize Fund in Classical Literature was established by Katherine Stains in memory of her parents, Arthur and Katheryn Stains, and in honor of two excellent 20th-century scholars of classical literature, Richmond Lattimore and Moses Hadas. The income from the fund is to be awarded annually as a prize to an undergraduate student for excellence in Greek literature, either in the original or in translation. (1969)

The M. Carey Thomas Essay Prize is awarded annually to a member of the senior class for distinction in writing. The award is made by the Department of English for either creative or critical writing. It was established in memory of Miss Thomas by her niece, Millicent Carey McIntosh '20. (1943)

The Emma Osborn Thompson Prize in Geology was established by a bequest of Emma Osborn Thompson, A.B. 1904. From the income of the bequest, a prize is to be awarded from time to time to a student in geology. (1963)

The Laura van Straaten Fund was established by Thomas van Straaten and his daughter, Laura van Straaten '90, in honor of Laura's graduation. The fund supports a summer internship for a student working to advance the causes of civil rights, women's rights or reproductive rights. (1990)

The Esther Walker Award was founded by a bequest from William John Walker in memory of his sister, Esther Walker '10. It may be given annually to a member of the senior class who, in the judgment of the faculty, has displayed the greatest proficiency in the study of living conditions of northern African Americans. (1940)
The Anna Pell Wheeler Prize in Mathematics is awarded annually to an undergraduate on the recommendation of the Department of Mathematics. It was established by an anonymous gift in honor of Anna Pell Wheeler, professor emeritus of mathematics and a member of the faculty of Bryn Mawr College from 1918 until her death in 1966. (1960)

The Thomas Raeburn White Scholarships were established by Amos and Dorothy Peaslee in honor of Thomas Raeburn White, trustee of the College from 1907 until his death in 1959, counsel to the College throughout these years, and president of the trustees from 1956 to 1959. The income from the fund is to be used for prizes to undergraduate students who plan to study foreign languages abroad during the summer under the auspices of an approved program. (1964)

The Anne Kirschbaum Winkelman Prize, established by the children of Anne Kirschbaum Winkelman ’48, is awarded annually to the student judged to have submitted the most outstanding short story. (1987)

Scholarships for Medical Study

The following scholarships may be awarded to seniors intending to study medicine, after their acceptance by a medical school, or to graduates of Bryn Mawr intending or continuing to pursue a medical education. Applications for the scholarship should be made to the premedical adviser before March 15 preceding the academic year in which the scholarship is to be held. Applications for renewal of scholarships must be accompanied by letters of recommendation from instructors in the medical school.

The Linda B. Lange Fund was founded by bequest of $30,000 under the will of Linda B. Lange, A.B. 1903. The income from this fund provides the Anna Howard Shaw Scholarship in Medicine and Public Health, awarded on recommendation of the president and faculty to a member of the graduating class or a graduate of the College for the pursuit, during an uninterrupted succession of years, of studies leading to the degrees of M.D. and Doctor of Public Health. The award may be continued until the degrees are obtained. (1948)

The Hannah E. Longshore Memorial Medical Scholarship was founded by Mrs. Rudolf Blankenburg in memory of her mother by a gift of $10,000. The Scholarship is awarded by a committee of the faculty to a student who has been accepted by a medical school. It may be renewed for each year of medical study. (1921)

The Jane V. Myers Medical Scholarship Fund of $10,000 was established by Mrs. Rudolf Blankenburg in memory of her aunt. The scholarship is awarded by a committee of the faculty to a student who has been accepted by a medical school. It may be renewed for each year of medical study. (1921)
The Harriet Judd Sartain Memorial Scholarship Fund was founded by bequest of $21,033 under the will of Paul J. Sartain. The income from the fund is to establish a scholarship which is awarded to a member of the graduating class who, in the judgment of the faculty, needs and is deserving of assistance for the study of medicine. The scholarship may be continued for the duration of her medical course. (1948)
Areas of Study

Definitions

Major

In order to ensure that the student's education involves not simply exposure to many ideas and disciplines but development of competence and some degree of mastery in at least one, she must choose a major subject at the end of sophomore year. With the guidance of the major adviser, students plan an appropriate sequence of courses. The following is a list of major subjects:

Anthropology
Astronomy (at Haverford College)
Biology
Chemistry
Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology
Classical Culture and Society (see “Greek, Latin and Classical Studies”)
Classical Languages (see “Greek, Latin and Classical Studies”)
Comparative Literature
Computer Science
East Asian Studies
Economics
English
Fine Arts (at Haverford College)
French and French Studies
Geology
German and German Studies
Greek (see “Greek, Latin and Classical Studies”)
Growth and Structure of Cities
History
History of Art
Italian
Latin (see “Greek, Latin and Classical Studies”)
Mathematics
Music (at Haverford College)
Philosophy
Physics
Political Science Psychology
Religion (at Haverford College)
Romance Languages
Russian
Sociology
Spanish

Minor

The minor typically consists of six courses, with specific requirements determined by the department or program. A minor is not required for the degree. The following is a list of subjects in which students may elect to minor. Minors in departments or programs that do not offer majors appear in italics.

Africana Studies
Anthropology
Biology
Chemistry
Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology
Classical Culture and Society (see “Greek, Latin and Classical Studies”)
Comparative Literature
Computational Methods
Computer Science

Theater Studies

Concentration

The concentration, which is not required for the degree, is a cluster of classes that overlap the major and focus a student’s work on a specific area of interest:

Creative Writing (with an English major)
Environmental Studies (with an anthropology, biology, chemistry, economics, English, geology, growth and structure of cities, or political science major)
Gender and Sexuality
Geoarchaeology (with an anthropology, classical and Near Eastern archaeology, or geology major)
Hispanic and Hispanic-American Studies
Neural and Behavioral Sciences (with a biology or psychology major)
Peace and Conflict Studies

to receive credit for both semesters. Full-year courses are indicated by the phrase "both semesters are required for credit" in the course description. Other courses listed together are designed as two-semester sequences, but students receive credit for completing either semester without the other.

A semester course usually carries one unit of credit. Students should check the course guide for unit listing. One unit equals four semester hours or six quarter hours.

Key to Requirement Indicators

Quantitative Skills: Indicates courses that meet the requirement for work in Quantitative Skills.

Division I: Indicates courses that meet part of the divisional requirement for work in the social sciences.

Division III: Indicates courses that meet the laboratory science part of the divisional requirement for work in the natural sciences and mathematics.

Division II: Indicates courses that meet part of the divisional requirement for work in the natural sciences or mathematics, but not the laboratory science part of the Division II requirement.

Division III: Indicates courses that meet part of the divisional requirement for work in the humanities.

Division I or II: Indicates courses that can be used to meet part of the divisional requirement for work in either the social sciences or the humanities.

Neighboring College Courses

Selected Haverford College courses are listed in this catalog when applicable to Bryn Mawr programs. Consult the Haverford catalog for full course descriptions. Students should consult their deans or major advisers for information about Swarthmore College, University of Pennsylvania and Villanova University courses pertinent to their studies. Catalogs and course guides for Swarthmore, Penn and Villanova are available in the Undergraduate Dean's Office.

Course Descriptions

In parentheses following the description are the name(s) of the instructor(s), the College requirements that the course meets, if any, and information on cross-listing. Information on prerequisite courses may be included in the descriptions. Descriptions for cross-listed courses are listed once in the home department of the primary cross-listed course.

At the time of this printing, the course offerings and descriptions that follow were accurate. Whenever possible, courses that will not be offered in the current year are so noted. There may be courses offered in the current year for which information was not available at the time of this catalog printing. For the most up-to-date and complete information regarding course offerings, faculty, status and divisional requirements, please consult the Tri-Co Course Guide, which can be found on the College Web site at http://www.trico.haverford.edu, or the Bryn Mawr-Haverford Course Guide, which is available in print prior to the start of the fall semester.

The Africana Studies Program brings a global outlook to the study of Africa and the African diaspora. Drawing on analytical perspectives from anthropology, history, literary studies, political science and sociology, the program focuses on African people and African cultures within the context of increasing globalization and dramatic social, economic and political changes.

Bryn Mawr's Africana Studies Program participates in a U.S. Department of Education-supported consortium with Haverford and Swarthmore Colleges and the University of Pennsylvania. Through this consortium, Bryn Mawr students have an opportunity to take a broad range of courses beyond those offered in our program by enrolling in courses offered by the three other participating institutions. Bryn Mawr's Africana Studies Program sponsors a study abroad semester at the University of Nairobi, Kenya, and participates in similar study abroad programs offered by its consortium partners in Zimbabwe, Ghana and Senegal.

Students are encouraged to begin their work in the Africana Studies Program by taking Introduction to Africana Studies (GNST 101). This introductory level course, which provides students with a common intellectual experience as well as the foundation for subsequent courses in Africana studies, should be completed by the end of the student's junior year.

Minor Requirements
The requirements for a minor in Africana studies are the following:

1. One-semester interdisciplinary course
   Bryn Mawr/Haverford GNST 101: Introduction to Africana Studies.
2. Six semester courses from an approved list of courses in Africana studies.
3. A senior thesis or seminar-length essay in an area of Africana studies.

Students are encouraged to organize their course work along one of several prototypical routes. Such model programs might feature:

1. Regional or area studies; for example, focusing on Brazil, the English-speaking Caribbean or North America.
2. Thematic emphases; for example, exploring decolonization, class politics, ethnic conflicts and/or economic development in West and East Africa.
3. Comparative emphases; for example, problems of development, public health, governance or family and gender.

The final requirement for the Africana studies minor is a senior thesis or its equivalent. If the department in which the student is majoring requires a thesis, she can satisfy the Africana studies requirement by writing on a topic that is approved by her department and the Africana Studies Program coordinator. If the major department does not require a thesis, an equivalent written exercise — that is, a seminar-length essay — is required. The essay may be written within the framework of a particular course or as an independent study project. The topic must be approved by the instructor in question and by the Africana Studies Program coordinator.

Africana studies courses currently offered at Bryn Mawr include:

ANTH B200/HIST B200 European Expansion and Competition: History of Three Worlds: The Atlantic World

Anthropology is a holistic study of the human condition in both the past and the present. The anthropological lens can bring into focus the social, cultural, biological and linguistic variations that characterize the diversity of humankind throughout time and space. The frontiers of anthropology can encompass many directions: the search for early human fossils in Africa, the excavations of prehistoric societies and ancient civilizations, the analysis of language use and other expressive forms of culture, or the examination of the significance of culture in the context of social life.

Major Requirements
Requirements for the major are ANTH 101, 102, 303, 398, 399, an ethnographic area course that focuses on the cultures of a single region, and four additional 200- or 300-level courses in anthropology. Students are encouraged to select courses from each of four subfields of anthropology: archaeology, bioanthropology, linguistics or sociocultural.

Students may elect to do part of their work away from Bryn Mawr. Courses that must be taken at Bryn Mawr include ANTH 101, 102, 303, 398 and 399.

Honors
 Qualified students may earn departmental honors in their senior year. Honors are based on the quality of the senior thesis (398, 399). Units of independent work may be taken with the approval of the instructor in the department.

Minor Requirements
Requirements for a minor in anthropology are ANTH 101, 102, 303, one ethnographic area course and two additional 200 or 300 level courses in anthropology.

Concentration in Environmental Studies
The Department of Anthropology participates with other departments in offering a concentration within the major in environmental studies (see page 147).

Concentration in Geoarchaeology
The Department of Anthropology participates with other departments in offering a concentration within the major in geoarchaeology (see page 100).

ANTH B101 Introduction to Anthropology
The place of humans in nature, human evolution and the history of culture to the rise of early civilizations in the Old and New Worlds. In addition to the lecture/discussion classes, there is a one-hour weekly lab. (Davis, Murphy, Division I)

ANTH B102 Introduction to Cultural Anthropology
An introduction to the methods and theories of cultural anthropology in order to understand and explain cultural similarities and differences among contemporary societies. (Pashigian, Weidman, Division I)

ANTH B185 Urban Culture and Society
(Arbona, McDonogh, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B185)

ANTH B190 The Form of the City: Urban Form from Antiquity to the Present
(Hein, Division I or III; cross-listed as CITY B190 and HART B190)

ANTH B200 European Expansion and Competition: History of Three Worlds: The Atlantic World
(Gallup-Diaz; cross-listed as HIST B200)

ANTH B201 Philosophy of Social Science: Introduction to Cultural Analysis
An examination of the relation between the philosophical theory of relativism and the methodological problems of cross-cultural investigation. Selected anthropological theories of culture are evaluated in terms of their methodological and philosophical assumptions with attention to questions of empathetic understanding, explanation, evidence and rational assessment. Prerequisite: ANTH 102 or another introductory course in the social sciences or philosophy, or permission of instructor. (staff, Division I or III; cross-listed as PHIL B210)

ANTH B203 Human Ecology
The relationship of humans with their environment; culture as an adaptive mechanism and a dynamic component in ecological systems. Human ecological perspectives are compared with other theoretical orientations in anthropology. Prerequisites: ANTH 101, 102 or permission of instructor. (Davis, Division I)

ANTH B204 North American Archaeology
For millennia, the North American continent has been home to a vast diversity of Native Americans. From the initial migration of big game hunters who spread throughout the continent more than 12,000 years ago to the high civilizations of the Maya, Teotihuacan and Aztec, there remains a rich archaeological record that reflects the ways of life of these cultures. This course will introduce the culture history of North America as well as explanations for culture change and diversification. The class will include laboratory study of North American archaeological and ethnographic artifacts from the College's Art and Archaeology collections. (Davis, Division I)

ANTH B206 Conflict and Conflict Management: A Cross-Cultural Approach
(Ross, Division I; cross-listed as POLS B206) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B208 Human Biology
A traditional focus in physical anthropology, human biology encompasses an overview of how humans, as individuals and populations, are similar and different in their biology, and how this can be studied and understood. We consider the relationships between human populations and their environment, integrating aspects of human physiology, demographic ecology and human genetics, both at the molecular and population levels. Prerequisite: ANTH 101 or permission of instructor. (staff, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B209 Human Evolution
The position of humans among the pri-mates, processes of biocultural evolution, the fossil record and contemporary human variation. Weekly lab. Prerequisite: ANTH 101 or permission of instructor. (Murphy, Division I)

ANTH B210 Medical Anthropology
This course examines the relationships between culture, society, disease and illness. It considers a broad range of health-related experiences, discourses, knowledge and practice among different cultures and among individuals and groups in different positions of power. Topics covered include sorcery, herbal remedies, healing rituals, folk illnesses, modern disease, scientific medical perceptions, clinical technique, epidemiology and political economy of medicine. Prerequisite: ANTH 102 or permission of instructor. (Pashigian, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B209)

ANTH B225 Paleolithic Archaeology
A study of the Paleolithic archaeological record from Europe, Asia and Africa, focusing on the dynamics of cultural evolution; cultural and natural transformations leading to the Neolithic Revolution are also examined. Laboratory work with prehistoric materials is included. Prerequisite: ANTH 101 or permission of instructor. (Davis, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B229 Comparative Urbanism
(McDonogh, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B229 and EAST B229) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B230 Native North American Cultures
This course explores the richness and diversity of Native North American cultures from their emergence on the continent and through the present time, using anthropological monographs, ethnographic film and the media. Coursework will include critiquing production of information on Native cultures from Native and non-Native viewpoints, examining federal policies and the use of institutions in dealing with Native Americans, and discussing issues affecting 21st-century Native North Americans. (staff, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B231 Cultural Profiles in Modern Exile
(Seyhan, Division III; cross-listed as COML B231 and GERM B231) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B232 Nutritional Anthropology
This course will explore the complex nature of human experiences in satisfying needs for food and nourishment. The approach is biocultural, exploring both the biological basis of human food choices and the cultural context that influences food acquisition and choice. Material covered will primarily be from an evolutionary and cross-cultural perspective. Also included will be a discussion of popular culture in the United States and our current obsession with food, such as dietary fads. (Murphy, Division I)
ANTH B234 Forensic Anthropology
Introduces the forensic subfield of biological anthropology, which applies techniques of osteology and biomechanics to questions of forensic science, with practical applications for criminal justice. Examines the challenges of human skeletal identification and trauma analysis, as well as the broader ethical considerations and implications of the field. Topics will include: human osteology; crime scene investigation; search and recovery of human remains; taphonomy; postmortem interval; trauma analysis; the development and application of innovative and specialized techniques; and the analysis and review of current forensic case studies and media representations. (Murphy, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B236 Evolution
(Gardiner; cross-listed as BIOL B236 and GEOL B236)

ANTH B240 Traditional and Pre-Industrial Technology
An examination of several traditional technologies, including chipped and ground stone, ceramics, textiles, metallurgy (bronze), simple machines and energy production; emphasizing the physical properties of various materials, production processes and cultural contexts both ancient and modern. Weekly laboratory on the production of finished artifacts in the various technologies studied. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. (Davis, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B242 Urban Field Research Methods
(Takenaka, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B242 and SOCL B242) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B243 Cultures of Technology: Aesthetics, Senses and the Body
Examines the impact of technologies such as photography, film and sound recording on ideas of authenticity and cultural value. Using readings on Western and nonwestern contexts, considers how such technologies affect notions of space and time, the conceptualization of the body and the definition and status of the "human" itself. Prerequisite: ANTH 102 or permission of the instructor. (Weidman, Division I)

ANTH B249 Asian American Communities
(Takenaka, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B249 and SOCL B249) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B251 Ethnography of Southeast Asia
An introduction to the social and cultural complexity of Southeast Asia — Brunei, Cambodia, Indonesia, Malaysia, Myanmar (Burma), the Philippines, Thailand and Vietnam. Classic and contemporary ethnographies explore the diversity and similarities among groups living in the region. Topics include contemporary political developments, cultural practices, ethnicity, gender and nationalism. Prerequisite: introductory course in any social science or permission of instructor. (Pashigian, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B253 Childhood in the African Experience
An overview of cultural contexts and indigenous literatures concerning the richly varied experience and interpretation of infancy and childhood in selected regions of Africa. Cultural practices such as pregnancy customs, naming ceremonies, puberty rituals, sibling relationships and gender identity are included. Modern concerns such as child abuse, street children and other social problems of recent origin involving children are considered in terms of theoretical approaches current in the social sciences. Prerequisites: anthropology major, any social sciences introductory course, Africana Studies concentration, or permission of instructor. (Kilbride, Division I)

ANTH B254 Survey of Western Architecture
(Hein, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B253, HART B253 and HIST B253) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B255 Ethnohistory Seminar
Ethnohistory is an important area in anthropology and it allows the study of culture contact and change by means of a variety of methods and sources. It is truly an interdisciplinary study and combines history, anthropology, archaeology and linguistics. Prerequisite: Introduction to Anthropology, Introduction to History or permission of instructor. (staff, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B258 Immigrant Experiences
(Takenaka, Division I; cross-listed as SOCL B246) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B261 Palestine and Israeli Society: Cultural and Historical Perspectives
Considers the legacy of Palestine and the centrality of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict as key in the formation of Israeli society, shaped by ongoing political conflict. New ethnographic writings disclose themes like Zionism, holocaust, immigration, religion, Palestinian citizenry, Middle Eastern Jews and military occupation and resulting emerging debates among different social sectors and populations. Also considers the constitution of the ethnographic field and the shaping of anthropological investigations by arenas of conflict. (Neuman; cross-listed as GNST B261, HEBR B261 and HIST B261)

ANTH B262 South Asian Ethnography
Recent anthropological work on South Asia has been motivated by a concern for issues of ethnographic representation and a heightened awareness of the relationship between power, whether colonial or state power, and the production of knowledge. This stems from historiographical discussions that call for a critical examination of categories such as "tradition," "modernity," "community" and "nation." This course will focus on the ways in which such critiques have been taken up as inspirations for ethnographic research in contemporary South Asia. Topics may include the legacy of colonialist ideas about tradition and modernity or the constructions of gender, community and nation. (Weidman, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B266 Dancing Desire in Bollywood Films
(Chakravorty, Division I or III; cross-listed as ARTD B266)

ANTH B267 The Development of the Modern Japanese Nation
(Takenaka, Division I; cross-listed as EAST B267 and SOCL B267) Not offered in 2006-07.
ANTH B270 Geoarchaeology
(Magee; cross-listed as ARCH B270 and GEOL B270) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B281 Language in Social Context
Studies of language in society have moved from the idea that language reflects social position/identity to the idea that language plays an active role in shaping and negotiating social position, identity and experience. This course will explore the implications of this shift by providing an introduction to the fields of sociolinguistics and linguistic anthropology. We will be particularly concerned with the ways in which language is implicated in the social construction of gender, race, class and cultural/national identity. The course will develop students' skills in the ethnographic analysis of communication through several short ethnographic projects. (Weidman, Division I)

ANTH B286 Cultural Perspectives on Ethnic Identity in the Post Famine Irish Diaspora
Theoretical perspectives on assimilation and the social construction of Irish ethnic identity in response to social exclusion in the United States will be considered. Symbolic expressions of Irish ethnicity such as St. Patrick's Day celebrations will consider race and gender. The colonial model, especially in Africa, is a contrasting case for Irish adjustment there through immigration. Methodologically, the course will highlight a cultural perspective through use of ethnographies, personal biographies and literary products such as novels and films. Prerequisite: introductory course in a social science or permission of instructor. (Kilbride, Division I)

ANTH B303 History of Anthropological Theory
A consideration of the history of anthropological theories and the discipline of anthropology as an academic discipline that seeks to understand and explain society and culture as its subjects of study. Several vantage points on the history of anthropological theory are engaged to enact an historically-charged anthropology of a disciplinary history. Anthropological theories are considered not only as a series of models, paradigms or orientations, but as configurations of thought, technique, knowledge and power that reflect the ever-changing relationships among the societies and cultures of the world. Prerequisite: at least one additional anthropology course at the 200 or 300 level. (Kilbride, Division I)

ANTH B312 Anthropology of Reproduction
An examination of social and cultural constructions of reproduction, and how power in everyday life shapes reproductive behavior and its meaning in Western and non-Western cultures. The influence of competing interests within households, communities, states and institutions on reproduction is considered. Prerequisite: at least one 200-level cultural anthropology course or permission of instructor. (Pashigian, Division I)

ANTH B327 American Colonial History: Indians of the Americas
(Gallup-Diaz; cross-listed as HIST B327)

ANTH B333 Anthropological Demography
Anthropological demography examines human population structure and dynamics through the understanding of birth, death and migration processes. It includes study of the individual’s life history. Population dynamics in small- and large-scale societies, the history of human populations and policy implications of demographic processes in the developed and developing world will be discussed through a cross-cultural perspective. (Davis, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B335 Mass Media and the City
(McDonogh, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B335)

ANTH B336 Evolutionary Biology: Advanced Topics
(Gardiner; cross-listed as BIOL B336 and GEOL B336) Not offered in 2006-07.

ANTH B341 Cultural Perspectives on Sexuality, Marriage and Family
This course considers various theoretical perspectives that inform our understanding of cross-cultural constructions of sexuality, marriage and the family. Sociobiology, deviance, feminism, social constructionism and cultural evolutionary approaches will be compared using primarily anthropological-ethnographic case examples. Applications will emphasize current U.S. socially contested categories such as HIV/AIDS, same-sex marriage, plural marriage, gender diversity, divorce and rape. Prerequisites: any history, biology or social science major. (Kilbride, Division I)

ANTH B342 Middle Eastern Diasporas
Focuses on Middle Eastern diasporas, particularly Arab, especially Palestinian, Turkish, Iranian and Jewish communities living outside the Middle East or to the transnational communities within the region. Examines the range of experiences covered by the term “diaspora.” Seeks to understand how ethnic identities and social bonds are created, extended and perpetuated in relation to Middle Eastern places of origin, and how plurality of experiences forge real and imagined links to various homelands. (Neuman; cross-listed as GNST B342 and HEBR B342)

ANTH B354 Identity, Ritual and Cultural Practices in Contemporary Vietnam
This course focuses on ways in which recent economic and political changes in Vietnam influence and shape everyday lives, meanings and practices there. It explores construction of identity in Vietnam through topics including ritual and marriage practices, gendered socialization, social reproduction and memory. Prerequisite: at least one ethnographic anthropology course at the 200 or 300 level or permission of instructor. (Pashigian, Division I)

ANTH B359 Topics in Urban Culture and Society
(Arbona, Division I or III; cross-listed as CITY B360 and HART B359)

ANTH B397 Senior Seminar in Environmental Studies
(staff; cross-listed as BIOL B397, CITY B397 and GEOL B397)

ANTH B398, B399 Senior Conference
The topic of each seminar is determined in advance in discussion with seniors. Sections normally run through the entire year and have an emphasis on empirical research techniques and analysis of original material. Class discussions of work in progress and oral and written presentations of the analysis and results of research are important. A senior’s thesis is the most significant writing experience in the seminar. (Pashigian, Weidman, Division I)

ANTH B403 Supervised Work
Independent work is usually open to junior and senior majors who wish to work in a special area under the supervision of a member of the faculty and is subject to faculty time and interest.

ARABIC

Faculty

Walid Harmaneh, Assistant Professor
Yamine Mermer, Lecturer

Arabic language instruction is available at Bryn Mawr, Haverford and Swarthmore Colleges. The teaching of Arabic is a component of the three colleges’ efforts to increase the presence of the Middle East in their curricula. Bryn Mawr offers courses on the Middle East in the departments of Anthropology, Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology, Comparative Literature, General Studies, History and Political Science.

ARAB B001, B002 First Year Modern Standard Arabic
Five class meetings a week, including drill. (staff) Offered at Bryn Mawr and Swarthmore.

ARAB H003, H004 Second Year Modern Standard Arabic
Five class meetings a week, including drill. (staff) Offered at Haverford and Swarthmore.

ARAB 011, 012 Third Year Modern Standard Arabic
(staff) Offered at Swarthmore.
Arts Program

Students may complete a minor in Creative Writing, Dance or Theater and may submit an application to major in Creative Writing, Dance or Theater through the independent major program. Students may complete a major in Fine Arts or a major or minor in Music at Haverford College. English majors may complete a concentration in creative writing.

Faculty

Jane Alison, Lecturer in Creative Writing
Tanya Barrientos, Lecturer in Creative Writing
David Brick, Lecturer in Dance
Madeline Cantor, Senior Lecturer and Associate Director of Dance
Linda Caruso-Haviland, Associate Professor, Director of Dance and Chair of the Arts Program
Pallabi Chakravorty, Lecturer in Dance
Nancy Doyne, Lecturer in Creative Writing
Hiroshi Iwasaki, Senior Lecturer and Designer/Technical Director of Theater
Karl Kirchwey, Associate Professor and Director of Creative Writing
Mark Lord, Associate Professor and Director of Theater
Rachel Simon, Lecturer in Creative Writing
J.C. Todd, Lecturer in Creative Writing
Kimmika Williams-Witherspoon, Visiting Lecturer in Creative Writing

Courses in the arts are designed to prepare students who might wish to pursue advanced training in their fields and are also for those who want to broaden their academic studies with work in the arts that is conducted at a serious and disciplined level.

Arts in Education

ARTA B251 Arts Teaching in Educational and Community Settings
This is a Praxis II course intended for students who have substantial experience in an art form and are interested in extending that experience into teaching and learning at educational and community sites. Following an overview of the history of the arts in education, the course will investigate the theories that underlie arts education. The praxis component will allow students to create a fluid relationship between theory and practice through observing, teaching and reflecting on arts practices in education contexts. School or community placement 4-6 hours a week. Enrollment limited to 15. Prerequisite: an intermediate level of experience in an art form. This course counts toward the minor in Dance or Theater. (Cantor, Division III; cross-listed as EDUC B251) Not offered in 2006-07.

Creative Writing

Courses in creative writing within the Arts Program are designed for students who wish to develop their skills and appreciation of creative writing in a variety of genres (poetry, prose fiction and nonfiction, playwriting, screenwriting, etc.) and for those intending to pursue studies in creative writing at the graduate level. Any English major may include one creative writing course in the major plan. Students may pursue a minor as described below. While there is no existing major in creative writing, students may submit an application to major in creative writing through the independent major program. (see page 22).

Minor Requirements

Requirements for the minor in creative writing are six units of course work, generally including three beginning/intermediate courses in at least three different genres of creative writing (chosen from ARTW 159, 231, 251, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 268, 269) and three electives, including at least one course at the 300 level (ARTW 360, 361, 362, 364, 366, 367, 371, 373, 382), allowing for advanced work in one or more genres of creative writing which are of particular interest to the student. The objective of the minor in creative writing is to provide both depth and range, through exposure to several genres of creative writing. Students should consult with the Creative Writing Program director to submit a plan for the minor in order to ensure admission to the appropriate range of courses.

Concentration in Creative Writing

English majors may elect a three-course concentration in creative writing as part of the English major program (see page 135).

ARTW B159 Introduction to Creative Writing

This course is for students who wish to experiment with three genres of creative writing: short fiction, poetry and drama. Priority will be given to interested first-year students; additional spaces will be made available to upper-year students with little or no experience in creative writing. Students will write or revise work every week; roughly four weeks each will be devoted to short fiction, poetry and drama. There will be individual conferences for students with the instructor to discuss their progress and interests. Half of class time will be spent discussing student work and half will be spent discussing syllabus readings. (Todd, Division III)

ARTW B231 Poetry as Performance

This course takes the poem off the printed page from poetry to performance, and considers poetry form, style, theory and the techniques of “Spoken Word” artistry. Performance theory will be coupled with cutting-edge work in the anthropology of performance. Students will maintain a poetry journal, write and edit original poetry, complete syllabus readings, write weekly response papers and participate in discussions and performances. The course culminates in a radio broadcast and a full-length performance piece. (Williams-Witherspoon, Division III)

ARTW B251 Travel Writing

This course introduces students to a genre that is too rarely studied or attempted. The first purpose of the course is to introduce students to masterpieces of travel writing in order to broaden students’ understanding of the genre and the world. The second is to give students a chance to experiment with travel writing. Finally, the course seeks to sensitize students to the nuances of style (diction, syntax, etc.) that affect the tone and texture of a writer’s prose. While students need not have traveled extensively in order to take this course, passionate curiosity about the world is a must. (staff, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTW B260 Writing Short Fiction I
This course offers an introduction to fiction writing, focusing on the short story. Students will consider fundamental elements of fiction and the relationship of structure, style and subject matter, exploring these elements in their own work and in the assigned readings in order to develop an understanding of the range of possibilities open to the fiction writer. Writing exercises are designed to encourage students to explore the material and styles that most interest them, and to push their fiction to a new level of craft, so that over the semester their writing becomes clearer, more absorbing, and more sophisticated. (Simon, Division III)

ARTW B261 Writing Poetry I
This course will provide a semester-long survey of the formal resources available to students wishing to write print-based (as opposed to spoken-word) poems in English, beginning with syllabic verse, accentual verse and accentual-syllabic (metered) verse, as well as free verse. Students in this course will gain experience writing in a variety of verse forms (including cinquains, Anglo-Saxon accentual verse, and sonnets). The objective of the course will be to provide students with a sense of poetic identity and with the skills to find a form and a voice with which to express themselves on the printed page. (Kirchwey, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTW B262 Playwriting I
This course is run as a workshop, with emphasis on in-class development of student work. The focus will be on theme, storytelling and dramatic action, and on weaving these three elements into a coherent whole. This will be achieved by concentrating primarily on the 10-minute play form. Through weekly playwriting/rewriting assignments, students will complete two stageworthy 10-15 minute original one-act plays and a notebook of critical comments. Students will critique each other's work as well as act in and direct it. Students will have individual meetings with the instructor at least biweekly to discuss and defend their dramatic efforts. (staff, Division III; cross-listed as ARTT B262) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTW B263 Writing Memoir I
The purpose of this course is to provide students with practical experience in writing about the events, places and people of their own lives in the form of memoir. Initial class discussions attempt to distinguish memoir from related literary genres such as confession and autobiography. The purpose of writing assignments and in-class discussion of syllabus readings is to explore the range of memoirs available for use as models (excerpts by writers including Elizabeth Bishop, Jacques Casanova, Annie Dillard, Frederick Douglass, Maxine Hong Kingston, Tim O’Brien) and elements such as voice and perspective, tone, plot, characterization and symbolic and figurative language. (Kirchwey, Division III)

ARTW B264 Feature Journalism
Unlike straight news stories, which tell the who, what, when and where of unfolding events, feature articles tell stories about people, places, events, trends and issues. This course will consider the many forms that feature writing can take and the reporting basics necessary to add depth and context to stories. The work of established writers will be used to examine beginnings, middles, endings, transitions, structures and voices to discover what makes for lively and effective feature writing. Prominent journalists will be guest speakers. (Barrientos, Division III)

ARTW B265 Creative Nonfiction
This course will explore the literary expressions of nonfiction, looking at the continuum from the objective, as exemplified by the nonfiction novel and literary journalism, to the subjective, as exemplified by the personal essay and memoir. Using the information-gathering tools of journalist, the self-examination tools of the essayist and the technical tools of the fiction writer, students will produce pieces that will incorporate both factual information and first person experience. An important goal is for students to learn to read as writers, to allow their analytical work to feed and inform their creative work. (Simon, Division III)

ARTW B266 Screenwriting
This combination discussion/workshop course is an introduction to dramatic writing for film. Basic issues in the art of storytelling will be analyzed: theme, dramatic structure, image and sound. The course will be an exploration of the art and impulse of storytelling, and it will provide a safe but rigorous setting in which to discuss student work. What is a story? What makes a character compelling, and conflict dramatic? How does a story engage our emotions? Through written exercises, close analysis of texts and the screening of film, we will come to better understand the tools and dictates of film writing. (Doyne, Division III)

ARTW B268 Writing Literary Journalism
This course will examine the tools that literary writers bring to factual reporting and how these tools enhance the stories they tell. Readings will include reportage, polemical writing and literary reviewing. The issues of point-of-view and subjectivity, the uses of irony, forms of persuasion, clarity of expression and logic of construction will be discussed. The importance of context — the role of the editor and the magazine, the expectations of the audience, censorship and self-censorship — will be considered. (staff, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTW B269 Writing for Children
This course will offer students the opportunity to learn to write imaginatively for children aged pre-K through young-adult. Students in the course will learn to read as writers, to allow their analytical study of classic and contemporary literature — from fairy tales to the fantastic, from poetry to the so-called “problem” novel — to feed and inform their creative work through the discoveries they make about character, plot, theme, setting, point of view, style, tone and structure. Regular writing exercises, annotations of readings, class discussion, peer review and private conferences will provide guidance for each student’s unique exploration of content and style. (staff, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTW B360 Writing Short Fiction II
An intensive exploration of different approaches to writing short fiction designed to strengthen student skills as both writers and critics. Requires writing at least five pages each week, workshopping student pieces, and reading texts that range from realist stories to metafictional experiments and from flash fiction to the short novella, to explore how writers can work within tight confines, create constellations of images and distill perception. A writing sample of 5-10 pages in length (prose fiction) must be submitted to the English Department by the end of the Fall 2006 semester to be considered for this course. (Alison, Division III)

ARTW B361 Writing Poetry II
This course is intended for students of poetry as a continuation of ARTW 261. This course will extend the survey of the forms of English and American print-based poetry and will include exercises in writing the following: sestinas, villanelles, ballads, ekphrastic poems (about works of art) and dramatic monologues. Several book-length collections of poems will be discussed for their strategies and architecture. Each student will be responsible for rendering into English a poem from a foreign language with which she is familiar. Prerequisite: ARTW B261 or work demonstrating equivalent familiarity with the basic forms of poetry in English. (Kirchwey, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTW B364 Approaches to the Novel
An advanced workshop for students with a strong background in fiction writing who want to write a novel. Students are expected to write intensively, taking advantage of the structure and support of the class to complete the first draft of a (25,000-30,000 word) novel/novella. Students will examine elements of fiction in their work and in novels on the reading list, exploring strategies for sustaining the writing of a long work. Prerequisite: ARTW 260 or proof of interest and ability. (Alison, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTW B366 Writing Memoir II
This course will enable students to complete one or two longer memoirs during the semester. The syllabus readings for the course will focus on book-length memoirs (by authors such as James Baldwin, Paula Fox, Vivian Gornick, Primo Levi, Mary McCarthy, Tobias Wolff). Types of memoir (the memoir of childhood; the memoir of place; the memoir of illness and recovery; the memoir about a parent) will be considered as templates for the students' own writing. Discussions of syllabus reading will alternate with discussions of weekly student writing assignments. Prerequisite: ARTW B263 or work demonstrating equivalent expertise. (Kirchwey, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTW B371 Fiction Master Class
This course is intended to provide advanced students of fiction with the opportunity to diversify, extend and deepen their work. Students will submit three or four short stories during the semester, and will take at least one story through the revision process. Class time will be divided equally between discussion of student writing and syllabus readings. Students will be responsible for careful readings of each other's work, and should be prepared to participate in constructive critical discussions of this work. Prerequisite: an intermediate-level fiction course or work demonstrating comparable mastery of the elements of fiction writing. (staff, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTW B382 Poetry Master Class
Four leading contemporary poets — Linda Bierds, Yusef Komunyakaa, J.D. McClatchy and Marie Ponsot — will each teach a three-week-long unit in this course. Students will have their poems reviewed by each of the visiting poets, who will also present a public reading of their work. Prerequisite: ARTW B231 or ARTW B261 (ARTW B361 is also strongly recommended) or equivalent proficiency in writing text-based verse. A writing sample of 5-10 pages in length (poetry) must be submitted to the English Department by the end of the Fall 2006 semester to be considered for this course. (Kirchwey, et al., Division III)

ARTW B403 Supervised Work
Students who have completed beginning or intermediate and advanced-level courses in a particular genre of creative writing and who wish to pursue further work on a tutorial basis may meet with the Creative Writing Program director to propose completing a one-semester-long independent study course with a member of the Creative Writing Program faculty.

Haverford College currently offers the following courses in creative writing:
- ENGL H291 Poetry Writing: A Practical Workshop
- ENGL H292 Poetry Writing II
- ENGL H293 Fiction Writing: From the Conventional to the Experimental
- ENGL H294 Fiction Writing: States of Mind

Dance

Dance is not only an art and an area of creative impulse and action; it is also a significant and enduring human behavior that can serve as a core of inquiry within the humanities. The Dance Program has, accordingly, designed a curriculum that provides varied courses in technique, composition, theory and performance for students at all levels of skill, interest and commitment. A full range of technique courses in modern, ballet, jazz and African dance is offered regularly. More specialized movement forms, such as Classical Indian and Flamenco, are offered on a rotating basis. The core academic curriculum includes advanced technique courses, performance ensembles, dance composition, independent work, courses in dance research and in Western dance history as well as courses that present a perspective extending beyond this theatrical or social tradition. Students can minor in dance or submit an application to major through the independent major program (see page 22).

Minor Requirements

Requirements for the dance minor are six units of coursework, three required (ARTD 140, 142, and one credit which may be distributed among the following: 230, 231, 330, 331, or 345) and three electives. Students may choose to emphasize one aspect of the field, but must first consult with the dance faculty regarding their course of study.

ARTD B140 Approaches to Dance: Themes and Perspectives
This course introduces students to dance as a multi-layered, significant and enduring behavior that ranges from art to play to ritual to politics and beyond. It engages students in the creative, critical and conceptual processes that emerge in response to the study of dance. It also explores the research potential that arises when other areas of academic inquiry, including criticism, ethnology, history and philosophy, interact with dance and dance scholarship. Lectures, discussion, film, video and guest speakers are included. (Caruso-Haviland, Division III)

ARTD B142 Dance Composition I
An introduction to the process of making dances that explores basic elements including space, time, rhythm, energy, dynamics, qualities of movement and gesture, and both traditional and postmodern structures. Compositional theory will be approached through the experience and practice of making dance studies starting with simple solo phrases and moving towards more complex and interactive group forms and processes. While primarily a studio course, students will be expected to begin to develop and broaden their understanding of dance as an art form and their abilities to see and critique dances. Readings pertaining to the choreographic process will be assigned. (Brick, Division III)

ARTD B240 Dance History I: Roots of Western Theater Dance
This course investigates the historic and cultural forces affecting the development and functions of pre-20th-century dance as well as its relationship to and impact on the development of Western Culture. It will consider nontheatrical forms and applications, but will give special emphasis to the development of theater dance forms. It will also introduce students to the varied forms of the historic documentation of dance and to a view of history not only as a linear progression of events but also as process, change and cultural shift. Lecture, discussion and audiovisual materials. (Caruso Haviland, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTD B241 Dance History II: A History of Contemporary Western Theater Dance
The study of the development of contemporary forms of dance with emphasis on theater forms within the broader context of Western art and culture. Lecture, discussion and audiovisual materials. (Caruso Haviland, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTD B242 Dance Composition II
The goal of this course is to build on work accomplished in Composition I and to develop an understanding of and skill in the theory and craft of choreography. This includes deepening movement invention skills; exploring form and structure; investigating sources for sound, music, text and language; developing group design; and broadening critical understanding. Students will work on a selected number of projects and will have opportunities to revise and expand work. Readings will be assigned and related production problems will be considered. (Cantor, Division III)

ARTD B252 Africanisms in American Culture: Dance and Other Contexts
This course explores the African-based, or Africanist, traditions and attitudes that pervade our daily lives from basketball to ballet. It interrogates the sometimes complementary, sometimes oppositional relationship between Africanist and Europeanist worldviews as they are manifested in the aesthetic and philosophical choices that dictate our lifestyles. It examines broad fundamentals and specific examples that comprise both Africanist and Europeanist aesthetics in dance, music, literature and daily life through readings, discussion, video screenings and two to three studio experiences. Readings are drawn from linguistics, literary criticism and performance studies. (Dixon Gottchild, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTD B266 Dancing Desire in Bollywood Films

Explores the shifts in sexuality and gender construction of Indian women from national to transnational symbols through the dance sequences in Bollywood. Examines the place of erotic in reconstructing gender and sexuality from past notions of romantic love to desires for commodity. Primary focus will be on approaches to the body from anthropology and sociology to performance, dance and media studies. (Chakravorty, Division I or III; cross-listed as ANTH B266)

Dance Technique

Three levels of ballet and modern dance are offered each semester. Improvisation, African dance and jazz are offered each year. Courses in techniques developed from other cultural forms, such as hip-hop, classical Indian dance or Flamenco, are offered on a rotating basis as are conditioning techniques such as Pilates. All technique courses are offered for physical education credit but students may choose to register in some intermediate and advanced level courses for academic credit. (staff, Division III)

ARTD B230 Intermediate Technique: Modern

(Banson, Cantor. Division III)

ARTD B231 Intermediate Technique: Ballet

(Miller, Mintzer, Division III)

ARTD B330 Advanced Technique: Modern

(Caruso-Haviland, Malcolm-Naib, Division III)

ARTD B331 Advanced Technique: Ballet

(Barfield, Mintzer Division III)

ARTD B342 Advanced Choreography

Independent study in choreography under the guidance of the instructor. Students are expected to produce one major choreographic work and are responsible for all production considerations. (Caruso-Haviland, Cantor, Division III)

Dance Performance

Dance Ensembles (modern, ballet Jazz, and African) are designed to offer students significant opportunities to develop dance technique, particularly in relationship to dance as performance art. Original works or reconstructions from the historic or contemporary repertory choreographed by faculty or guest choreographers are rehearsed and performed. This course, open to intermediate- and advanced-level dancers by audition or permission of instructor, may be taken for physical education credit or academic credit. Students who participate in the Dance Outreach Project, a dance performance/education program that tours Philadelphia and suburban schools and community groups, can receive physical education credit.

ARTD B345 Dance Ensemble
Dance ensemble offers course sections in African, Ballet, Jazz and Modern Dance. (Cantor, Caruso-Haviland, Osayande, staff, Division III)

ARTD B390 Senior Project/Thesis
(Caruso-Haviland, Cantor, Division III)

ARTD B403 Supervised Work
Research in a particular topic of dance under the guidance of an instructor, resulting in a significant final paper or project. (Caruso-Haviland, Cantor, Division III)

Fine Arts

Fine arts courses at Bryn Mawr are offered through the Department of Fine Arts at Haverford College. Courses on either campus are offered to students of both colleges with the approval of the respective instructors. Prospective Fine Arts majors should plan their curricula with the major instructor. Throughout their progression, these students should strive to develop a portfolio of artwork showing strength and competence and a sense of original vision and personal direction appropriate for a major or minor candidate.

For major program requirements and course descriptions, see Fine Arts at Haverford College on page 152.

Music

The Department of Music is located at Haverford and offers well-qualified students a major and minor in music. For a list of requirements and courses offered, see Music at Haverford on page 223.

Music Performance

The following organizations are open to all students by audition. For information on academic credit for these groups, and for private vocal or instrumental instruction, see Music at Haverford (page 223).

The Haverford-Bryn Mawr Orchestra, with more than 70 members, rehearses once a week, and concerts are given regularly on both campuses. The annual concerto competition affords one or more students the opportunity to perform with the orchestra in a solo capacity.

The chamber music program is open to all members of the Haverford-Bryn Mawr Orchestra and to pianists who have passed an audition that includes sight reading. Students rehearse once a week on their own, in addition to once-weekly coaching. Performances, rehearsals and coachings are held on both campuses depending on students' schedules and preferences.

The Haverford-Bryn Mawr Chamber Singers is a select ensemble that demands a high level of vocal ability and musicianship. The group performs regularly on both campuses and in the Philadelphia area. Tours are planned within the United States and abroad.

The Haverford-Bryn Mawr Chorale is a large auditioned chorus that gives concerts with the Haverford-Bryn Mawr Orchestra each year.

The Haverford-Bryn Mawr Women's Ensemble emphasizes music for women's voices and trebles and performs several times in the academic year.
Chamber Ensemble Groups are formed within the context of the Chamber Music Seminar (MUSC 215). See Music at Haverford on page 223. Performances are held both on and off campus; students have the opportunity to perform in master classes with internationally known chamber musicians.

The Bryn Mawr Chamber Music Society offers extracurricular opportunities for experienced Bryn Mawr and Haverford students, faculty and staff to perform a variety of chamber works in a series of concerts held in the Music Room.

Theater

The curricular portion of the Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges’ Theater Program focuses on the point of contact between creative and analytic work. Courses combine theory (reading and discussion of dramatic literature, history and criticism) and practical work (creative exercises, scene study and performance) to provide viable theater training within a liberal-arts context.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for the minor in theater are six units of course work, three required (ARTT 150, 251 and 252) and three elective. Students must consult with the theater faculty to ensure that the necessary areas in the field are covered. Students may submit an application to major in theater through the independent major program (see page 22).

Theater Performance

Numerous opportunities exist to act, direct, design and work in technical theater. In addition to the Theater Program’s mainstage productions, many student theater groups exist that are committed to musical theater, improvisation, community outreach, Shakespeare, film and video work, etc. All Theater Program productions are open and casting is routinely blind with respect to race and gender.

ARTT B150 Introduction to Theater
An exploration of a wide range of dramatic works and history of theater through research, analysis and discussion to develop understanding and foundations for a theatrical production. (Lord, Division III)

ARTT B250 Twentieth-Century Theories of Acting
An introduction to 20th-century theories of acting emphasizing the intellectual, aesthetic and sociopolitical factors surrounding the emergence of each director's approach to the study of human behavior on stage. Various theoretical approaches to the task of developing a role are applied in workshop and scene study. (Lord, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTT B251 Fundamentals of Acting
An introduction to the fundamental elements of acting (scene analysis, characterization, improvisation, vocal and gestural presentation, and ensemble work) through the study of scenes from significant 20th-century dramatic literature. (Lord, Division III)

ARTT B252 Fundamentals of Technical Theater
A practical, hands-on workshop in the creative process of turning a concept into a tangible, workable end through the physical execution of a design. Exploring new and traditional methods of achieving a coherent synthesis of all areas of technical production. (Iwasaki, Division III)

ARTT B253 Performance Ensemble
An intensive workshop in the methodologies and aesthetics of theater performance, this course is open to students with significant experience in performance. In collaboration with the director of theater, students will explore a range of performance techniques and styles in the context of rehearsing a performance project. Admission to the class is by audition or permission of the instructor. The class is offered for a half-unit of credit. (Lord, Division III)

ARTT B254 Fundamentals of Theater Design
An introduction to the creative process of visual design for theater; exploring dramatic context and influence of cultural, social and ideological forces on theater and examining practical applications of various technical elements such as scenery, costume and lighting while emphasizing their aesthetic integration. (Iwasaki, Division III)

ARTT B255 Fundamentals of Costume Design
Hands-on practical workshop on costume design for performing arts; analysis of text, characters, movement, situations; historical and stylistic research; cultivation of initial concept through materialization and plotting to execution of design. (Iwasaki, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTT B262 Playwriting I
(staff, Division III; cross-listed as ARTW B262) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTT B270 Ecologies of Theater: Performance, Play and Landscape
Students in this course will investigate the notion of theatrical landscape and its relation to plays and to the worlds that those landscapes refer. Through readings in contemporary drama and performance and through the construction and evaluation performances, the class will explore the relationship between human beings and the environments they imagine, and will study the ways in which those relationships impact how we think about our relationship to the world in which we live. The course will culminate in a series of public performances. (Lord, Division III; cross-listed as COML B269)

ARTT B344 Advanced Theater Design
A workshop for those who have completed either Fundamentals of Theater Design, Costume Design or Technical Theater Production or have an equivalent experience, for students to explore their specific area of interest. The focus is on translating the theories into concrete designs. Prerequisite: ARTT 252, 254 or 255 or equivalent experience. (Iwasaki, Division III)

ARTT B351 Acting II
Builds on the methods learned in ARTT 251, with an emphasis on strategies of preparing short solo performances. In addition to intensive exercises in naturalistic and anti-naturalistic performance techniques, the course provides opportunities for exploration of principles of design, directing, dramaturgy and playwriting as they pertain to specific projects conceived by members of the class. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. (Lord, Division III)
ARTT B353 Advanced Performance Ensemble
An advanced, intensive workshop in theater performance. Students explore a range of performance techniques in the context of rehearsing a performance project, and participate in weekly seminars in which the aesthetic and theatrical principles of the play and production will be developed and challenged. The course may be repeated. (Lord, Division III)

ARTT B356 Endgames: Theater of Samuel Beckett
An exploration of Beckett’s theater work conducted through both reading and practical exercises in performance techniques. Points of special interest include the monologue form of the early novels and its translation into theater, Beckett’s influences (particularly silent film) and collaborations, and the relationship between the texts of the major dramatic works and the development of both modern and post-modern performance techniques. (Lord, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTT B359 Directing for the Stage
A semiotic approach to the basic concepts and methods of stage direction. Topics explored through readings, discussion and creative exercises include directorial concept, script analysis and research, stage composition and movement, and casting and actor coaching. Students rehearse and present three major scenes. (Lord, Division III)

ARTT B403 Supervised Work (staff)

Astronomy

Students may complete a major or minor in Astronomy at Haverford College.

Faculty
Stephen P. Boughn, John Farnum
Professor of Astronomy
R. Bruce Partridge, Bettye and Howard Marshall Professor of Natural Sciences

The objective of a major in astronomy is to study the phenomena of the extraterrestrial universe and to understand them in terms of the fundamental principles of physics. The department offers three courses, ASTR 101a, ASTR 112a, and ASTR 114b, which can be taken with no prerequisites or prior experience in astronomy. The department also offers a half-credit course, ASTR/PHYS 152i, intended for first-year students who are considering a physical science major and wish the opportunity to study some of the most recent developments in astrophysics. Prospective majors usually study physics (PHYS 105a and 106b) before enrolling in ASTR 205a in the fall semester of their sophomore year, when they concurrently enroll in PHYS 213a. ASTR 206b and PHYS 214b follow in the spring semester. Astronomy majors may then take up to four 300-level courses and may enroll in a research course (ASTR 404a,b). Students planning on graduate study in astronomy are advised to study physics at an advanced level; in fact, many astronomy majors choose to double major in physics and astronomy. The department also offers a minor in astronomy.
Major Requirements

Requirements in the major subject are ASTR 205a; ASTR 206b; four 300-level astronomy courses, one of which may be replaced by an upper-level physics course; ASTR 404, which may be replaced by approved independent research either at Haverford or elsewhere; and written comprehensive examinations. Prerequisites: PHYS 105a (or 101a); PHYS 106b (or 102b); PHYS 213a; PHYS 214b. Two mathematics courses are also required for the astronomy major; MATH 121 and all 200-level or higher mathematics courses can be used to satisfy this requirement. Bryn Mawr equivalents may be substituted for the non-astronomy courses. ASTR/PHYS 152i is recommended but not required.

Minor Requirements

Recommended: ASTR/PHYS 152i. Required: PHYS 105a (or 101a); PHYS 106b (or 102b); ASTR 205a; ASTR 206b; one 300-level astronomy course.

Requirements For Honors

All astronomy majors are regarded as candidates for honors. The award of honors will be made on the basis of superior work in the departmental courses, in certain related courses, and in the comprehensive examinations, with consideration given for independent research.

ASTR H101 Astronomical Ideas

Fundamental concepts and observations of modern astronomy, such as the motions and surface properties of the planets, the birth and death of stars, and the properties and evolution of the universe. Not intended for students majoring in the physical sciences. Typically offered in alternate years. Not offered in 2006-07.

ASTR H112 Survey of the Cosmos

Properties and evolution of the Universe and of large systems within it. The qualitative aspects of general relativity including black holes and of mathematical models for the geometry of the Universe are studied, along with the history of the Universe from its early exponential expansion to the formation of galaxies. The role of observations in refining modern scientific understanding of the structure and evolution of the Universe is stressed. The approach is quantitative, but any mathematics beyond straightforward algebra is taught as the class proceeds. Prerequisite: No prerequisites but ASTR 101 is useful. (Partridge)

ASTR H114 Planetary Astronomy

A survey of the overall structure of the Solar System, the laws governing the motions of the planets and the evolution of the Solar System. Next, we study general processes affecting the surface properties of planets. This takes us to a detailed treatment of the properties of several planets. We end by studying the (surprising) properties of planets found in other stellar systems. Typically offered in alternate years. (Partridge)

ASTR H152 Freshman Seminar in Astrophysics

This half-credit course is intended for prospective physical science majors with an interest in recent developments in astrophysics. Topics in modern astrophysics will be viewed in the context of underlying physical principles. Topics include black holes, quasars, neutron stars, supernovae, dark matter, the Big Bang, and Einstein’s relativity theories. Prerequisite: PHYS 101a or 105a and concurrent enrollment in PHYS 102b or 106b (or Bryn Mawr equivalents). (Boughn)

ASTR H204 Astrophysics I: Introduction to Astrophysics
A survey of modern astrophysics; electromagnetic radiation, gravity, planets, stars, galaxies, interstellar matter, cosmology. Observational projects using the Haverford telescopes. Prerequisite: PHYS 105a and 106b, MATH 114b or equivalent. (Boughn) Not offered in 2006-07.

ASTR H205 Introduction to Astrophysics I
General introduction to astronomy including: the structure and evolution of stars; the structure and formation of the Milky Way; the interstellar medium; and observational projects using the Strawbridge Observatory telescopes. Prerequisite: PHYS 105a-106b and MATH 114b or equivalent. (Boughn)

ASTR H206 Introduction to Astrophysics II
Introduction to the study of: the properties of galaxies and their nuclei; cosmology; the Hot Big Bang model; the properties and evolution of the solar system; planetary surfaces and atmospheres; and exo-planets. Prerequisite: ASTR 205a, MATH 114b or equivalent or permission of the instructor. (Partridge)

ASTR H305 Astrophysics II: Stellar Structure and Evolution, and the Interstellar Medium
Study of stars and their environments. The theory of the structure of stellar interiors and atmospheres and the theory of stellar evolution. The interstellar medium and star formation. Prerequisite: ASTR 204a and PHYS 214b. (Boughn) Not offered in 2006-07.

ASTR H313 Observational Optical Astronomy
One credit, full year course. Five observing projects that involve using a CCD camera on a 16-inch Schmidt-Cassegrain telescope. Projects include spectroscopy; variable star photometry; H-alpha imaging; imaging and photometry of galaxies and star cluster; instruction in the use of image processing software and CCD camera operation. Students work in groups of two with minimal faculty supervision. Formal reports are required. Prerequisite: ASTR 205a. (Boughn)

ASTR H320 Cosmology and Extragalactic Astronomy
The study of the origin, evolution and large-scale structure of the universe (Big Bang Theory). Review of the relevant observational evidence. A study of remote galaxies, radio sources, quasars, and intergalactic space. Prerequisite: ASTR 206b. (Partridge) Not offered in 2006-07.

ASTR H321 Stellar Structure and Evolution
The theory of the structure of stellar interiors and atmospheres and the theory of star formation and stellar evolution, including compact stellar remnants. Prerequisite: ASTR 204a and PHYS 214b. Typically offered in alternate years. (Boughn)

ASTR H322 Non-Optical Astronomy
Introduction to the basic techniques of radio astronomy, to the various emission mechanisms at radio wavelengths, and to radio studies of astronomical phenomena. Some discussion of other non-optical branches of astronomy, especially X-ray astronomy, but also including neutrino, cosmic-ray, gravitational wave, infrared, and ultraviolet astronomy. Prerequisite: ASTR 205a and 206b, or consent of instructor. (Partridge)

ASTR H404 Research in Astrophysics
Intended for those students who choose to complete an independent research project in astrophysics under the supervision of a faculty member. Prerequisite: Consent of instructor. (Boughn, Partridge)

ASTR H480 Independent Study
Intended for students who want to pursue some topic of study that is not currently offered in the curriculum. In order to enroll, a student must have a faculty sponsor. Prerequisite: ASTR 206b. (staff)

Athletics and Physical Education

Faculty
Carol Bower, Senior Lecturer
Erin DeMarco, Lecturer
Jody Law, Senior Lecturer and Acting Director
Danya Pilgrim, Senior Lecturer
Daniel N. Talbot, Lecturer
Katie Tarr, Instructor
Ray Tharan, Director of the Fitness Center
Judy Wolfe, Senior Lecturer

The Department of Athletics and Physical Education offers 12 intercollegiate sports as an NCAA Division III institution and is a charter member of the Centennial Conference. Varsity team sports at Bryn Mawr include: badminton, basketball, crew, cross country, field hockey, indoor and outdoor track and field, lacrosse, soccer, swimming, tennis and volleyball. Rugby is a Bi-College varsity-club program. Other Bi-College clubs include equestrian and ultimate frisbee.

There is a physical education requirement for all undergraduates. The instructional offerings in physical education include certification courses, sport skills instruction, fitness courses, wellness classes and leadership courses. All first-year students must complete the Wellness Issues class, a semester long course taught by members of the general faculty and athletic staff.
Consult the Physical Education Web site at http://www.brynmawr.edu/athletics for a list of current course offerings. Students may take courses at Haverford and Swarthmore Colleges.

The College believes that physical education and intercollegiate athletics are integral parts of a liberal-arts education. The department sponsors a variety of intercollegiate, physical education and recreational programs intended to enhance the quality of the student’s nonacademic life on campus.

Physical Education Requirements

The College requires eight units of physical education and the successful completion of a swimming-proficiency test. The test includes entry into the water, a 10-minute swim demonstrating two strokes, one minute of treading water and two minutes of floating. For nonswimmers, successful completion of beginning swimming (and passing the test) will fulfill the requirement. First-year students must complete the semester long Wellness Issues class. The physical education requirement must be completed by the end of junior year. Transfer students will receive credit toward the requirement from previous institutions after a review by the director of the department. Students with special needs should consult the director of physical education.

Biology

_Students may complete a major or minor in Biology. Within the major, students may complete a minor in computational methods, or a concentration in environmental studies or neural and behavioral sciences._

Faculty

Peter D. Brodfuehrer, Professor
Tamara L. Davis, Associate Professor
Wilfred A. Franklin, Laboratory Instructor
Stephen L. Gardiner, Senior Lecturer
Sarah Gibbs, Lecturer
Karen F. Greif, Professor and Chair
Paul Grobstein, Professor
Margaret A. Hollyday, Professor
David Prescott, Katharine E. McBride Professor
Michelle Wien, Lecturer
Neal M. Williams, Assistant Professor (on leave 2006-07)
Patricia Zaradic, Lecturer

The programs of the department are designed to introduce students to unifying concepts and broad issues in biology, and to provide the opportunity for in-depth inquiry into topics of particular interest through coursework and independent study. Introductory- and intermediate-level courses examine the structures and functions of living systems at all levels of organization, from molecules, cells and organisms to populations. Advanced courses encourage the student to gain proficiency in the critical reading of research literature, leading to the development, defense and presentation of a senior paper. In addition, there are opportunities for independent research projects with faculty.

Major Requirements

Course requirements for a major in biology include two semesters of introductory biology, BIOL 101 and 102 (or 103 plus either 101 or 102, with the department’s permission); six courses at the 200 and 300 level (excluding BIOL 390-398), of which at least three must be laboratory courses; and one senior seminar course (BIOL 390-395, or 398). Two semesters of supervised laboratory research, BIOL 401 or 403, may be substituted for one of the required laboratory courses. In addition, two semester courses in general chemistry and three additional semester courses in physics, chemistry, geology, mathematics, computer science, psychology (courses that satisfy the Division II requirement) or statistics are required for all majors. Selection of these three science courses needs to be done in consultation with the student’s major advisor and be approved by the department. Students interested in pursuing graduate studies or medical school are encouraged to take two semesters each of physics and organic chemistry.

Students with a score of 4 or 5 on their Advanced Placement examinations, or equivalent International Baccalaureate scores, will receive divisional credit only; they may not be used for the major in biology. A student wishing to enter biology courses at the 200 level without having taken BIOL 101 and 102 must take and pass the departmental placement exam. Courses in other departments may be substituted for major requirements with the department’s permission.

Honors

The honors distinction requires maintaining a course average of 3.7 in the major and participating in departmental activities and events. Final selection for honors is made by the biology faculty from the list of eligible students.

Minor Requirements

A minor in biology consists of six semester courses in biology. Courses in other departments may be substituted for minor requirements with the department’s permission.

Minor in Computational Methods; Concentrations in Environmental Studies and Neural and Behavioral Sciences

The Department of Biology participates with other departments in offering two concentrations within the major: environmental studies (see page 147) and neural and behavioral sciences (see page 230). A minor in computational methods is available for students interested in computational methods and their applications to biology (see page 112).

Teacher Certification

The College offers a certification program in secondary teacher education (see page 40).

Animal Experimentation Policy

Students who object to participating directly in laboratory activities involving the use of animals are required to notify the faculty member of her or his objections at the beginning of the course. If alternative activities are available and deemed consistent with the pedagogical objectives of the course by the faculty member, then a student will be allowed to pursue alternative laboratory activities without penalty.

BIOL B101 Introduction to Biology I: Molecules to Cells
A comprehensive examination of topics in biochemistry, cell and molecular biology, genetics and development. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. (Davis, Greif, Division III)

BIOL B102 Introduction to Biology II: Organisms to Populations
A comprehensive examination of topics in organismal diversity, physiology, ecology and evolution. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. BIOL 101 is strongly recommended. (Brodfuehrer, Zaradic, Division III)

BIOL B103 Biology: Basic Concepts
An introduction to the major concepts of modern biology that both underlie and emerge from exploration of living systems at levels of organization ranging from the molecular and biochemical through the cellular and organismal to the ecological. Emphasis is placed on the observational and experimental bases for ideas that are both common to diverse areas of biology and represent important contributions of biology to more general intellectual and social discourse. Topics include the chemical and physical bases of life, cell theory, energetics, genetics, development, physiology, behavior, ecology and evolution. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. (Grobstein, Division III)

BIOL B201 Genetics
An introduction to heredity and variation, focusing on topics such as classical Mendelian genetics, linkage and recombination, chromosome abnormalities, population genetics and molecular genetics. Examples of genetic analyses are drawn from a variety of organisms, including bacteria, viruses, Drosophila and humans. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisites: BIOL 101, 102 and CHEM 103, 104. (Davis, Division II)

BIOL B202 Neurobiology and Behavior
An introduction to the attempt to understand behavior in terms of the nervous system. A brief overview of fundamental principles of nervous system structure is followed by consideration of several topics chosen to illustrate how studies of the nervous system illuminate behavior and how studies of behavior contribute to better understanding of the nervous system. Examples cover a wide variety of invertebrate and vertebrate species, including humans. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisites: BIOL 101, 102 or permission of instructor. (Grobstein, Division II)

BIOL B204 Histology
A lecture and laboratory course examining the cellular structure of tissues and the ways in which those tissues are combined to form the major organs of the body. The focus on tissue structure is used as a springboard throughout the course for discussing how structure provides the basis for understanding function. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. Prerequisites: BIOL 101 and 102, or permission of instructor. (staff, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.
BIOL B209 Environmental Toxicology
An introduction to natural and man-made toxins and the impact they have on ecosystems. Effects on animal and plant systems are emphasized, but effects on humans are also considered. Risk analysis is presented and reference is made to their economic impact and the efforts to eliminate or control their presence in the ecosystem. Policy development and the factors — political, economic, ethical and public health — that play a role in policy development are analyzed. Lecture three hours a week. A required two-day field trip is taken in late spring; an extra fee is collected for this trip. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. (Prescott, Division II)

BIOL B210 Biology and Public Policy
A lecture/discussion course on major issues and advances in biology and their implications for public-policy decisions. Topics discussed include reproductive technologies, genetic screening and gene therapy, environmental health hazards, and euthanasia and organ transplantation. Readings include scientific articles, public-policy and ethical considerations, and lay publications. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisite: one semester of introductory biology or equivalent, or permission of instructor. (Greif, Division II)

BIOL B215 Experimental Design and Statistics
An introductory course in designing experiments and analyzing data. This course is structured to develop students' understanding of when and how to use different quantitative methods rather than the theory of specific tests. Topics include summary statistics, sampling distributions, randomization, replication, parametric and nonparametric tests, and introductory topics in spatial statistics. The course is geared around weekly problem sets and interactive learning. Three hours of lecture/laboratory a week. Prerequisites: introductory biology, geology or permission of instructor. (Zaradic, Division II and Quantitative Skills)

BIOL B220 Ecology
A study of the interactions between organisms and their environments. Current environmental issues and how human activities influence the biota are also discussed. Students become familiar with ecological principles and with methods ecologists use to address tricky ecological issues. Because sound ecological theory rests on a good understanding of natural history, students learn to develop their natural-history intuition by making weekly field observations and keeping a field journal. Lecture three hours a week, laboratory/field investigation three hours a week. There will be one field trip early in the semester lasting beyond regular lab hours. Prerequisite: introductory biology or GEOL 103. (Zaradic, Division III)

BIOL B223 The Story of Evolution and the Evolution of Stories
(Grobstein, Division II or III; cross-listed as ENGL B223)

BIOL B225 Biology of Plants
In-depth examination of the structures and processes underlying survival, growth, reproduction, competition and diversity in plants. Three hours of lecture a week. Prerequisites: BIOL 101 and 102. (Division II) Not offered in 2006-07.
BIOL B233 Psychobiology of Sex Differences
The goal of this course is to survey and review research and theory regarding biological, psychological, social and cultural determinants of sex differences. This course will follow a lecture/discussion format with weekly lab meetings. Over the semester we will examine sex differences in behavior. Specifically, we will explore the role that sex chromosomes and hormones, developmental processes, cultural socialization, and gender-role stereotypes play in the creation of sex differences in brain and behavior. Prerequisites: a course in biology or psychology, or permission of the instructor. (Thapar, Division IIIL)

BIOL B236 Evolution
(Gardiner, Saunders; cross-listed as ANTH B236 and GEOL B236)

BIOL B250 Computational Models in the Sciences
The course is directed toward students of all disciplines interested in learning flexible, ready-to-work recipes for computational modeling. Topics will include the theory and role of computational models in data analysis, the design and evaluation of simulation studies, and an introduction to stochastic simulation (mathematical models of systems characterized by discrete random events). Illustrative examples will be drawn from disciplines across the natural and social sciences. Two lectures and one two-hour problem session a week. Prerequisites: two courses at any level in a single Division I or Division II department or permission of instructor. (Allen, Division II and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as CMSC B250 and GEOL B250)

BIOL B260 Biogeography
Biogeography is the study of the distribution of species and the causal processes (physical and biological) underlying such patterns. This includes principles of speciation, spatial analysis and the effect of natural processes and human-impact on species distributions. Three lectures and one-three hour lab a week. Prerequisites: GEOL 102 or 103 or BIOL 102. (Allen, Division II and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as GEOL B260)

BIOL B271 Developmental Biology
An introduction to animal embryology and the concepts of developmental biology. Concepts are illustrated by analyzing the experimental observations that support them. Topics include gametogenesis and fertilization, morphogenesis, cell fate specification and differentiation, pattern formation, regulation of gene expression, neural and behavioral development, and sex determination. The laboratory focuses on vertebrate embryology and involves study of prepared slides and observations and experiments on living embryos. Lecture three hours, laboratory three scheduled hours a week; most weeks require additional hours outside of the regularly scheduled lab. Prerequisites: BIOL 101, 102 or permission of instructor. (Gibbs, Division III)

BIOL B301 Organismal Biology: Vertebrate Structure
A comparative study of major organ systems in different vertebrate groups. Similarities and differences are considered in relation to organ system function and in connection with evolutionary relationships among vertebrate classes. Laboratory activities emphasize dissection of several vertebrate representatives, but also include examination of prepared microscope slides and demonstrations. Two three-hour lecture/laboratory meetings a week. Prerequisites: BIOL 101, 102 or equivalent, one 200-level Biology course, and permission of instructor. (Gardiner, Division IIL) Not offered in 2006-07.

BIOL B303 Animal Physiology
A comprehensive study of the physical and chemical processes in tissues, organs and organ systems that form the basis of animal function. Homeostasis, control systems and the structural bases of function are emphasized. Laboratories are designed to introduce basic physiological techniques and the practice of scientific inquiry. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. Prerequisites: BIOL 101, 102, CHEM 103, 104 and one 200-level Biology course (Histology recommended). (Brodfuehrer, Division IIL) Not offered in 2006-07.

BIOL B304 Cell and Molecular Neurobiology
A problem-based laboratory course in which students investigate cellular and molecular properties of neurons and small networks of neurons using neuron simulations and animal experiments, and through critical reading of the primary literature. Two four-hour laboratory sessions per week. Prerequisites: BIOL 101, 102, 202, PSYC 218 or PSYC 217 at Haverford. (Brodfuehrer, Division IIL) Not offered in 2006-07.

BIOL B309 Biological Oceanography
A comprehensive examination of the principal ecosystems of the world's oceans, emphasizing the biotic and abiotic factors that contribute to the distribution of marine organisms. A variety of marine ecosystems are examined, including rocky intertidal, and hydrocarbon seeps, with an emphasis on the distinctive characteristics of each system and the assemblage of organisms associated with each system. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. One required three-day field trip, for which an extra fee is collected, and other occasional field trips as allowed for by scheduling. Prerequisites: BIOL 101, 102 and one 200-level science course, or permission of instructor. (Gardiner, Division IIL)

BIOL B310 Philosophy of Science
(Grobstein, Division II or III; cross-listed as PHIL B310) Not offered in 2006-07.

BIOL B313 Integrative Organismal Biology I
The first semester of a two-semester course focusing on how organisms cope with environmental challenges by investigating the requirements for life at the level of individual cells and multi-cellular organisms, the anatomical and physiological properties of cells, tissues and organ systems, and how these properties allow organisms to interact successfully with their environment. Two-three hour lecture/laboratory sessions per week. Prerequisites: Two semesters of introductory biology and general chemistry. (Brodfuehrer, Gardiner Division IIL)

BIOL B314 Integrative Organismal Biology II
The second semester of Integrative Organismal Biology. Two-three hour lecture/laboratory sessions per week. Prerequisite: BIOL 313 or permission of instructor. (Brodfuehrer, Gardiner, Division IIL)
BIOL B321 Neuroethology
This course provides an opportunity for students to understand the neuronal basis of behavior through the examination of how particular animals have evolved neural solutions to specific problems posed to them by their environments. The topics will be covered from a research perspective using a combination of lectures, discussions and student presentations. Prerequisite: BIOL 202, PSYC 218 or PSYC 217 at Haverford. (Brodfuehrer, Division II)

BIOL B326 From Channels to Behavior
Introduces the principles, research approaches, and methodologies of cellular and behavioral neuroscience. The first half of the course will cover the cellular properties of neurons using current and voltage clamp techniques along with neuron simulations. The second half of the course will introduce students to state-of-the-art techniques for acquiring and analyzing data in a variety of rodent models linking brain and behavior. Prerequisites: BIOL 101 and one of the following: PSYC 218, PSYC 217 at Haverford or BIOL 202. (Brodfuehrer, Thomas, Division III; cross-listed as PSYC B326)

BIOL B328 Analysis of Geospatial Data Using GIS

BIOL B336 Evolutionary Biology: Advanced Topics
A seminar course on current issues in evolution. Discussion based on readings from the primary literature. Topics vary from year to year. One three-hour discussion a week. Prerequisite: BIOL 236 or permission of instructor. (Gardiner, Division II; cross-listed as ANTH B336 and GEOL B336) Not offered in 2006-07.

BIOL B340 Cell Biology
A lecture course with laboratory emphasizing current knowledge in cell biology. Among topics discussed are cell membranes, cell surface specializations, cell motility and the cytoskeleton, regulation of cell activity, energy generation and protein synthesis. Laboratory experiments are focused on studies of cell structure, making use of techniques in cell culture and immunocytochemistry. Lecture three hours, laboratory four hours a week. Prerequisites: BIOL 201 or 271, CHEM 211, 212 (may be taken concurrently), or permission of instructor. One semester of biochemistry is recommended. (Greif, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

BIOL B341 Introduction to Biochemistry
A course on the structure, chemistry and function of amino acids, proteins, lipids, polysaccharides and nucleic acids; enzyme kinetics; metabolic relationships of carbohydrates, lipids and amino acids, and the control of various pathways; and protein synthesis. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. Prerequisite: CHEM 212. (Gibbs, Division III)

BIOL B361 Emergence
(Grobstein, Division II; cross-listed as CMSC B361)

BIOL B364 Developmental Neurobiology
A lecture/discussion course on major topics in the development of the nervous system. Some of the topics to be addressed are cell generation, cell migration, cell survival and growth, axon guidance and target specificity, synapse formation and behavioral development. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisite: BIOL 201 or 271. (Greif, Division II) Not offered in 2006-07.

BIOL B372 Molecular Biology
This course will introduce students to molecular biology as a method for scientific inquiry. In addition to learning basic techniques for manipulation and analysis of nucleic acids, students will read and critically evaluate primary literature. Students will demonstrate knowledge of the material through written and laboratory work, class discussion and oral presentations. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. Prerequisites: either BIOL 201, 340, 341 or permission of instructor. (Davis, Division III)

BIOL B390 Senior Seminar in Ecology
A focus on the interactions among organisms and their environments. Students read and discuss current and classic papers from the primary literature. Topics may include biogeographic patterns, population and community dynamics, and ecosystem functioning. We may explore current issues such as global warming, habitat degradation and fragmentation, loss of biodiversity and the introduction of alien species. The effects of these human-induced changes on the biota are examined. Students write, defend and publicly present one long research paper. Three hours of class lecture and discussion a week, supplemented by frequent meetings with individual students. Prerequisite: BIOL 220 or permission of instructor. (Zaradic)

BIOL B391 Senior Seminar in Biochemistry
Topics of current interest and significance in biochemistry are examined with critical readings and oral presentations of work from the research literature. In addition, students write, defend and publicly present one long research paper. Three hours of class lecture and discussion a week, supplemented by frequent meetings with individual students. Prerequisites: BIOL 341, 343 or permission of instructor. (Gibbs) Not offered in 2006-07.

BIOL B392 Senior Seminar in Physiology
An advanced course in the study of the organization and function of physiological systems from the molecular level to the organismal level. Specific topics related to the organization and function of physiological systems are examined in detail using the primary literature. In addition, students write, defend and publicly present one long research paper. Three hours of class lecture and discussion a week, supplemented by frequent meetings with individual students. Prerequisite: BIOL 303 or 304, or permission of instructor. (Brodfuehrer) Not offered in 2006-07.

BIOL B393 Senior Seminar in Molecular Genetics
This course focuses on topics of current interest and significance in molecular genetics, such as chromatin structure and mechanisms of gene regulation. Students critically read, present and discuss in detail primary literature relevant to the selected topic. In addition, students write, defend and publicly present one long research paper. Three hours of class lecture and discussion a week, supplemented by frequent meetings with individual students. Prerequisite: BIOL 201 or 372, or permission of instructor. (Davis)

BIOL B394 Senior Seminar in Evolutionary Developmental Biology
Topics of current interest and significance in evolutionary developmental biology are examined with critical readings and oral presentations of work from the research literature. In addition, students write, defend and publicly present a research paper based on their readings. Three hours of class lecture and discussion a week, supplemented by frequent meetings with individual students. Prerequisite: BIOL 236 or 271, or permission of instructors. (Hollyday) Not offered in 2006-07.

BIOL B395 Senior Seminar: Cellular Biology of Cancer
Topics focus on the current understanding of the mechanisms of cancer, with emphasis on cell signaling pathways and tumor suppressors. Students read and make critical presentations of papers from the current research literature. In addition, students write, defend and publicly present one long research paper or proposal. Three hours of class lecture and discussion a week, supplemented by frequent meetings with individual students. Prerequisite: BIOL 340 or BIOL 372 or permission of instructor. (Greif)

BIOL B396 Topics in Neural and Behavioral Science
A seminar course dealing with current issues in the neural and behavioral sciences. It provides advanced students concentrating in neural and behavioral sciences with an opportunity to read and discuss in depth seminal papers that represent emerging thought in the field. In addition, students are expected to make presentations of their own research. Required for those with the concentration. (Greif, Thapar; cross-listed as PSYC B396)

BIOL B397 Senior Seminar in Environmental Studies
(staff; cross-listed as ANTH B397, CITY B397 and GEOL B397)

BIOL B401 Supervised Research in Neural and Behavioral Sciences
Laboratory or library research under the supervision of a member of the Neural and Behavioral Sciences committee. Required for those with the concentration. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. (staff).

BIOL B403 Supervised Laboratory Research in Biology
Laboratory research under the supervision of a member of the department. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. (staff)
CHEMISTRY

Students may complete a major or minor in Chemistry. Within the major, students may complete a minor in computational methods or education. Concentrations in biological chemistry, environmental studies or geochemistry may be completed within the major. Students may complete an M.A. in the combined A.B./M.A. program.

The undergraduate course program in chemistry is designed to give students a sound background in both theoretical and practical aspects of four main fields: organic chemistry, physical chemistry, inorganic chemistry and biological chemistry. Furthermore, students may design courses of study that emphasize chemistry's connections to biology, earth sciences and computer science. Laboratory work is emphasized to provide students with modern training in experimental skills and analytical techniques. The core program, consisting of courses at the 100 level and 200 level, covers fundamental principles of chemistry. This core program provides the basis for advanced work at the 300 level and 400 level, in which students encounter contemporary problems in chemistry and interdisciplinary fields and the progress that is being made toward solving them.

Major Requirements

The requirements for a standard major in chemistry include the following 11 courses (or their equivalents): CHEM 103 or 103L, 104, 211, 212, 221, 222, 231, 242, 251 and 252, and any two courses selected from among CHEM 311, 312, 321, 322, 332, 345 or any chemistry course at the 500 level. Other required courses are MATH 101, 102 and 201 and PHYS 103/104 or 101/102 (or their equivalents). All A.B. recipients who complete this program with two semesters of CHEM 403 are certified by the American Chemical Society as having met that society's high standards for an undergraduate degree in chemistry. This is the program recommended for students intending to pursue graduate studies in chemistry.

Majors are encouraged to take additional chemistry courses at the 300 (or 500) level and at the 400 (research) level beyond the requirements of the standard program. Additional courses in mathematics and other natural sciences can contribute breadth to the chemistry major. Students with a strong interest in an allied field, such as biochemistry, geochemistry, environmental chemistry, computational chemistry or education may elect a minor or concentration in the appropriate field. Upon consultation with major advisers in both fields students may select three of the four core courses, 221, 222, 231 and 242, and appropriate 300-level electives.

A typical schedule for the standard chemistry major involves taking CHEM 103 or 103L and 104 and MATH 101/102 in the first year; CHEM 211 and 212, MATH 201, and PHYS 103/104 or 101/102 in the sophomore year; CHEM 221, 222, 231, 242, 251 and 252 in the junior year; and appropriate advanced courses in the senior year. Note that MATH 201 (a fall course) or its equivalent should be completed by the end of the sophomore year. Students contemplating a chemistry major are urged to consult with the major adviser as early as possible. Those planning an interdisciplinary chemistry major should consult advisers in both departments as soon as possible.

Honors

The A.B. degree with honors in chemistry will be awarded to students who complete the major in chemistry and also meet the following further requirements: two semesters of supervised research in chemistry (CHEM 403) with a grade of at least 3.3 in each semester; the submission of an acceptable paper describing the results of that research; an additional semester of work at the 300 level (or 500 level) in chemistry beyond the two advanced courses required for the standard chemistry major; and a grade point average, calculated at the end of the senior year, of at least 3.4 in all chemistry courses taken.

Minor Requirements

A student may qualify for a minor in chemistry by completing a total of 6.5 courses in chemistry, one of which must be either CHEM 221 or 222 with either CHEM 251 or 252. BIOL 341 or 343 may be counted as one of the required six courses. At least two of the six courses must be taken at Bryn Mawr.

Minor in Computational Methods

Students may receive an A.B. degree in chemistry with a computational minor by fulfilling the core requirements in chemistry (CHEM 103, or 103L, 104, 211, 212, 251 and 252) and three courses selected from 221, 222, 231 and 242, two advanced courses including CHEM 322 and CMSC 376, and by completing CMSC 110, 206, 231 and 225 or 245. The courses selected to fulfill this minor must be approved by the major advisers in chemistry and computer science.

Minor in Education

Students may receive an A.B. degree in chemistry with an education minor by fulfilling the core requirements in chemistry (CHEM 103 or 103L, 104, 211, 212, 251 and 252) and three courses selected from 221, 222, 231 and 242, three advanced courses selected from CHEM 403 or electives in chemistry or education, and by completing EDUC 200, 310, 311 and 240 or 250. The courses selected to fulfill this minor must be approved by the major advisers in chemistry and education. Of the three advanced courses, at least one must be a chemistry course at or above the 300-level. Interested students are encouraged to investigate the 5th-year certification option offered through the Education Program (see page 130).
Concentration in Biological Chemistry

Students may receive an A.B. degree in chemistry with a concentration in biological chemistry by fulfilling the requirements for a major in chemistry, including CHEM 345 as one of the two required advanced courses, and also by completing two semesters of work in biology selected from BIOL 201, 340 or 372 or their Haverford equivalents. The two biology courses chosen to fulfill this requirement must be approved by the major adviser.

Concentration in Environmental Studies

Students may receive an A.B. degree in chemistry with a concentration in environmental studies by fulfilling the core requirements in chemistry (CHEM 103 or 103L, 104, 211, 212) and three courses selected from 221, 222, 231 and 242, two laboratory courses selected from 251, 252 or GEOL 302, two advanced courses including a chemistry elective and GEOL 397, and by completing BIOL 220 and GEOL 103 and one course listed under “Humans in the Landscapes” and two courses listed under “Planning and Policy” (see page 149). The courses selected to fulfill this concentration must be approved by the major adviser in chemistry and environmental studies.

Concentration in Geochemistry

Students may receive an A.B. degree in chemistry with a concentration in geochemistry by fulfilling the core requirements in chemistry (CHEM 103 or 103L, 104, 211, 212,) and three courses selected from 221, 222, 231 and 242, two laboratory courses selected from 251, 252 or GEOL 302, one advanced course selected from CHEM 322 or 332, and by completing three geology courses selected from GEOL 201, 202, 301 or 302. The courses selected to fulfill this concentration must be approved by the major adviser in chemistry and geology.

A.B./M.A. Program

To earn an M.A. degree in chemistry in the College’s A.B./M.A. program, a student must complete the requirements for an undergraduate chemistry major and also must complete six units of graduate level work in chemistry. Of these six units, as many as two units may be undergraduate courses at the 300 level taken for a graduate credit (these same two courses may be used to fulfill the major requirements for the A.B. degree), at least two units must be graduate seminars at the 500 level, and two units must be graduate research at the 700 level leading to the submission of an acceptable M.A. thesis. Other requirements are a written final examination covering material in the candidate’s special field and an oral examination.

CHEM B100 The Stuff of Art

An introduction to chemistry through fine arts, this course emphasizes the close relationship of the fine arts, especially painting, to the development of chemistry and its practice. The historical role of the material in the arts, in alchemy and in the developing science of chemistry, will be discussed, as well as the synergy between these areas. Relevant principles of chemistry will be illustrated through the handling, synthesis and/or transformations of the material. This course does not count towards chemistry major requirements, and is not suitable for premedical programs. Lecture 90 minutes, laboratory three hours a week. Enrollment limited to 20. (Burgmayer, Division III; cross-listed as HART B100) Not offered in 2006-07.

CHEM B104 General Chemistry
A continuation of CHEM 103 or 103L. Topics include chemical reactions; introduction to thermodynamics and chemical equilibria; electrochemistry; chemical kinetics. Lecture three hours, recitation one hour and laboratory three hours a week. May include individual conferences, evening problem or peer-led instruction sessions. Prerequisite: CHEM 103 or 103L. (Burgmayer, Francl, Lukacs, Division III and Quantitative Skills)

CHEM B103L General Chemistry
For students with some background in chemistry. Students with strong preparation are directed to consider CHEM 103L. Sections usually have a maximum of 50 students. Topics include aqueous solutions and solubility; the electronic structure of atoms and molecules; radiochemistry.. Examples in lecture and laboratory include environmental sciences, material sciences and biological chemistry. Lecture three hours, recitation one hour and laboratory three hours a week. May include individual conferences, evening problem or peer-led instruction sessions. Prerequisite: math readiness or permission of instructor. (Goldsmith, Lukacs, White, Division III and Quantitative Skills)

CHEM B103L General Chemistry
A half-unit course for students with strong preparation in chemistry, but who are not ready to take CHEM 211 (Organic Chemistry). Topics include aqueous solutions and solubility; the electronic structure of atoms and molecules; radiochemistry. Recitation one hour, laboratory three hours a week. Enrollment limited to 25 first-year students. Prerequisite: Advanced Placement score of 3 (or International Baccalaureate equivalent), or satisfactory performance on Bryn Mawr's placement test given during first-year orientation, or permission of instructor. Does not meet Division II requirement by itself; students must continue with CHEM 104 to receive Division II credit. (Burgmayer, Lukacs)

CHEM B211 Organic Chemistry
An introduction to the principles of organic chemistry, including synthetic and spectroscopic techniques. Lecture three hours, recitation one hour and laboratory five hours a week. Prerequisite: CHEM 104. (Nerz-Stormes, Regan, Division III)

CHEM B212 Organic Chemistry
A continuation of CHEM 211 with an exploration of complex chemical reactions and syntheses utilizing structure-reactivity principles. Lecture three hours, recitation one hour and laboratory five hours a week. Prerequisite: CHEM 211. (Nerz-Stormes, Division III)

CHEM B221 Physical Chemistry
Introduction to quantum theory and spectroscopy. Atomic and molecular structure; molecular modeling; rotational, vibrational, electronic and magnetic resonance spectroscopy. Lecture three hours. Prerequisites: CHEM 104, PHYS 101 or 103 and MATH 201. May be taken concurrently with CHEM 211 and PHYS 101 or 103. (Francl, Division III)
CHEM B222 Physical Chemistry
Modern thermodynamics, with application to phase equilibria, interfacial phenomena and chemical equilibria; statistical mechanics; chemical dynamics. Kinetic theory of gases; chemical kinetics. Lecture three hours. Prerequisites: CHEM 104, PHYS 102 or 104 and MATH 201. May be taken concurrently with CHEM 212 and PHYS 102 or 104. (Goldsmith, Division III)

CHEM B231 Inorganic Chemistry
Bonding theory; structures and properties of ionic solids; symmetry; crystal field theory; structures, spectroscopy, stereochemistry, reactions and reaction mechanisms of coordination compounds; acid-base concepts; descriptive chemistry of main group elements. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisite: CHEM 212. (Burgmayer, Division III)

CHEM B242 Biological Chemistry
The structure, chemistry and function of amino acids, proteins, lipids, polysaccharides and nucleic acids; enzyme kinetics; metabolic relationships of carbohydrates, lipids and amino acids, and the control of various pathways; protein synthesis. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisite: CHEM 212. (White, Division III)

CHEM B251 Research Methodology in Chemistry I
This laboratory course integrates advanced concepts in chemistry from biological, inorganic, organic and physical chemistry. Students will gain experience in the use of departmental research instruments and in scientific literature searches, record-keeping and writing. One hour of lecture and five hours of laboratory per week. Prerequisites: CHEM 212. Corequisite: CHEM 221 or 242. 0.5 credit/semester. (Burgmayer)

CHEM B252 Research Methodology in Chemistry II
This laboratory course integrates advanced concepts in chemistry from biological, inorganic, organic and physical chemistry. Students will gain experience in the use of departmental research instruments and in scientific literature searches, record-keeping and writing. One hour of lecture and five hours of laboratory per week. Prerequisite: CHEM 212. Corequisite CHEM 222 or 231. 0.5 credit/semester. (Goldsmith)

CHEM B311 Advanced Organic Chemistry
A survey of the methods and concepts used in the synthesis of complex organic molecules. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisites: CHEM 212 and 222. (Malachowski, Division II) Not offered in 2006-07.

CHEM B312 Advanced Organic Chemistry
Principles of physical organic chemistry with emphasis on reaction mechanisms, reactive intermediates and stereochemistry. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisites: CHEM 212, 221 and 222. (Mallory, Division II)

CHEM B321 Advanced Physical Chemistry: Topics in Nanoscience
Topics will include lithography and device fabrication, scanning probe microscopes and electrical characterization of nanodevices. The course will also explore recent literature relating to the fabrication and applications of nanodevices. Prerequisites:
CHEM 212, 221 and 222. Lecture/seminar three hours per week. (Goldsmith, Division II)

CHEM B332 Advanced Inorganic Chemistry
Organometallic chemistry, including discussion of structure and bonding, reaction types, and catalysis; bioinorganic chemistry, illustrating structural, enzymatic and pharmaceutical applications of transition metals in biological chemistry. Lecture three hours per week. Prerequisites: CHEM 231 and 242 or permission of the instructor. (Burgmayer, Division II)

CHEM B345 Advanced Biological Chemistry
Physical biochemistry of nucleic acids and proteins that bind them; spectroscopic and other techniques for studying DNA and RNA. Applications to pathogenic organisms, genomics and bioinformatics. Textbook readings will be supplemented with articles from the recent literature. Lecture/seminar three hours a week. Prerequisites: Any course in biochemistry or permission of the instructor. (staff, Division II)

CHEM B350 Selected Topics in Current Chemical Research
A combination lecture/seminar course on the physical, structural, chemical, photochemical, mechanistic and spectroscopic properties of novel organic compounds, including oral presentations by students on very recently published research articles. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisites: CHEM 211 and 212, CHEM 221 and 222, and any 300/500 level course in organic, physical, inorganic or biological chemistry. (Mallory, Division II) Not offered in 2006-07.

CHEM B403 Supervised Research
Many individual research projects are available, each under the supervision of a member of the faculty. Laboratory at least 10 hours a week. Oral or written presentations are required at the end of each semester. Prerequisite: permission of faculty supervisor. (staff, Division II)

Graduate seminars in chemistry are open to qualified undergraduates with the permission of the department.
CLASSICAL AND NEAR EASTERN ARCHAEOLOGY

Students may complete a major or minor in Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology.

Faculty
Mehmet Ali Ataç, Assistant Professor and Graduate Advisor
Geoffrey Compton, Lecturer
Alice A. Donohue, Professor
Peter Magee, Associate Professor and Major Adviser (on leave semester II)
Stella Miller-Collett, Professor
Pamela A. Webb, Visiting Associate Professor
James C. Wright, Professor and Chair

The curriculum of the department focuses on the cultures of the Mediterranean regions and the Near East in antiquity. Courses treat aspects of society and material culture of these civilizations as well as issues of theory, method and interpretation.

Major Requirements
The major requires a minimum of 10 courses. Core requirements are ARCH 101 and 102 and two semesters of the senior conference. Additional requirements are determined in consultation with the major adviser. Additional coursework in subjects related to archaeology may be offered in the Departments of Anthropology, Geology, Growth and Structure of Cities, History of Art, and Greek, Latin and Classical Studies.

Each student’s course of study to meet major requirements will be determined in consultation with the undergraduate major adviser in the spring semester of the sophomore year. Students considering majoring in the department are encouraged to take the introductory courses early in their undergraduate career and should also seek advice from departmental faculty. Students who are interested in interdisciplinary concentrations or in spending a junior year abroad are strongly advised to seek assistance in planning their major early in their sophomore year.

Concentration in Geoarchaeology
The Departments of Anthropology, Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology, and Geology offer a concentration in geoarchaeology for existing majors in these departments. Please consult with Professor Magee regarding this program.

Requirements for the Concentration:
A. Two 100-level units from Anthropology, Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology or Geology, of which one must be from the department outside the student’s major. Possibilities include ARCH 101, ANTH 101, GEOL 101, GEOL 102 or GEOL 103.
B. ANTH/ARCH/GEOL 270: Geoarchaeology (Magee, Barber).
C. BIOL/ARCH/GEOL 328: Geospatial Data Analysis and GIS (Compton).
D. Two elective courses, to be chosen in consultation with the major adviser, from among current offerings in Anthropology, Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology and Geology. One of these two courses must be from outside the student’s major. Suggested courses include but are not limited to ANTH 203 (Human Ecology), ANTH 220 (Methods and Theory), ANTH 225 (Paleolithic Archaeology), ANTH 240 (Traditional Technologies), ARCH 308 (Ceramic Analysis), ARCH 332 (Field Techniques), GEOL 202 (Mineralogy), GEOL 205 (Sedimentology), GEOL 310 (Geophysics), and GEOL 312 (Quaternary Climates).

Honors
Students with a GPA of 3.5 in the major may be invited by the faculty to undertake work for honors. A semester-long research project, culminating in a lengthy paper written under the supervision of a member of the department, is required to be considered for honors. Students who are invited to honors may register for a unit of independent study (403) either semester of the senior year. The paper will be read by the advising faculty member and one other member of the department and an oral defense will be scheduled. Honors are granted if the final paper is considered of superior quality (3.3 or above). Honors papers must be submitted by 5 p.m. on the Friday before the last day of classes in the second semester.

Minor Requirements
The minor requires six courses. Core requirements are ARCH 101 and 102 in addition to four other courses selected in consultation with the major adviser.

Languages
Majors who contemplate graduate study in classical fields should incorporate Greek and Latin into their programs. Those who plan graduate work in Near Eastern or Egyptian may take appropriate ancient languages at the University of Pennsylvania, such as Middle Egyptian, Akkadian and Sumerian. Any student considering graduate study in archaeology should study French and German.

Fieldwork
The department strongly encourages students to gain fieldwork experience and assists them in getting positions on field projects in North America and overseas. The department is undertaking several field projects in which undergraduates may be invited to participate.

Professor Peter Magee conducts excavations at Muweilah, al-Hamriya and Tell Abraq in the United Arab Emirates. Undergraduate and graduate students in archaeology participate in this project, which usually takes place during the winter break.

Professor James Wright directs the Nemea Valley Archaeological Project in Greece. Currently a collaboration with the Ms. Eva Pappi of the Fourth Inspectorate of Prehistoric and Classical Antiquities of the Greek Ministry of Culture is focused on excavating a Mycenaean chamber tomb cemetery in the valley. Fieldwork is anticipated for the summers of 2006-08. Undergraduate and graduate students in archaeology participate in this project, which focuses on excavation techniques, skeletal analysis, and museum studies.

The department is collaborating with Professor Aslı Özyar of Bogaziçi University in Istanbul, in the Tarsus Regional Project, Turkey, sponsored by Bogaziçi University.
This is a long-term investigation of the mound at Gözlü Kule at Tarsus, in Cilicia, which was first excavated by Hetty Goldman, A.B. 1903. Both undergraduate and graduate students in archaeology participate in this project.

Study Abroad

Study abroad is encouraged if the program is approved by the department. Students are advised to take only one semester abroad. Major credit for courses taken is given on a case-by-case basis after review of the syllabus, work submitted for a grade, and a transcript. Normally credit will not be given for more than one course and not for courses that are ordinarily offered by the department.

ARCH B101 The Uses of the Past: Introduction to Egyptian and Near Eastern Archaeology
A historical survey of the archaeology and art of the ancient Near East, Egypt and the prehistoric Aegean. Three hours of class, one hour of special topics a week. (Ataç, Division III)

ARCH B102 The Uses of the Past: Introduction to Classical Archaeology
A historical survey of the archaeology and art of Greece, Etruria and Rome. Three hours of class, one hour of special topics each week. (Webb, Division III)

ARCH B201 Preclassical Greek Art and Archaeology
The art and archaeology of Greece and its Mediterranean neighbors between the end of the Bronze Age and the Persian invasion (circa 1100 to 480 B.C.E.), the period which saw the rise of the city-state, the introduction of democracy and the spread of Greek civilization by colonization and trade. The architecture, painting, sculpture and minor arts will be studied with attention to their historical and cultural contexts. (Donohue, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B203 Ancient Greek Cities and Sanctuaries
A study of the development of the Greek city-states and sanctuaries. Archaeological evidence is surveyed in its historic context. The political formation of the city-state and the role of religion is presented, and the political, economic and religious institutions of the city-states are explored in their urban settings. The city-state is considered as a particular political economy of the Mediterranean and in comparison to the utility of the concept of city-state in other cultures. (Wright, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B203) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B205 Greek Sculpture
One of the best-preserved categories of evidence for ancient Greek culture is sculpture. The Greeks devoted immense resources to producing sculpture that encompassed many materials and forms and served a variety of important social functions. This course examines sculptural production in Greece and neighboring lands from the Bronze Age through the fourth century B.C.E. with special attention to style, iconography and historical and social context. (Webb, Division III; cross-listed as HART B204) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B206 Hellenistic and Roman Sculpture
This course surveys the sculpture produced from the fourth century B.C.E. to the fourth century C.E., the period beginning with the death of Alexander the Great that saw the transformation of the classical world through the rise of Rome and the establishment and expansion of the Roman Empire. Style, iconography and production will be studied in the contexts of the culture of the Hellenistic kingdoms, the Roman appropriation of Greek culture, the role of art in Roman society and the significance of Hellenistic and Roman sculpture in the post-antique classical tradition. (Donohue, Division III; cross-listed as HART B206) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B209 Aegean Archaeology
The prehistoric cultures of the Aegean area concentrating on Minoan Crete, Troy, the Aegean Islands and Mycenaean Greece. (Wright, Division III)

ARCH B220 Araby the Blest: The Archaeology of the Arabian Peninsula from 3000 to 300 B.C.E.
A survey of the archaeology and history of the Arabian peninsula focusing on urban forms, transport and cultures in the Arabian peninsula and Gulf and their interactions with the world from the rise of states in Mesopotamia down to the time of Alexander the Great. (Magee) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B222 Alexander the Great
Alexander the Great achieved heroic status in his own time. This provided a basis for the Alexander mythology that endures to today in the popular media. This course uses archaeological and historical evidence through the centuries to reconstruct the life and afterlife of the figure of Alexander. (Miller-Collett, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B228 The Archaeology of Iran: From the Neolithic to Alexander the Great
Examines the archaeology of Iran and its eastern neighbors from circa 8000 B.C.E. to the coming of Alexander at the end of the fourth century B.C.E. Focus on the emergence of agriculture and urbanism and the appearance of the Achaemenid Empire, examined in the light of contacts with states in Mesopotamia and South Asia and the abilities of the ancient inhabitants of Iran to exploit their environment. (Magee)

ARCH B230 Archaeology and History of Ancient Egypt
The cultural, social and political development of Egypt from the beginning of settled communities in the Nile Valley to the end of the New Kingdom (circa 3000 to 1100 B.C.E.); in both the African and the wider Near Eastern contexts. Emphasizes archaeological remains, but also makes use of documentary evidence. (Ataç, Division III)

ARCH B240 Archaeology and History of Ancient Mesopotamia
A survey of the material culture of ancient Mesopotamia, modern Iraq, from the earliest phases of state formation (circa 3500 B.C.E.) through the Achaemenid Persian occupation of the Near East (circa 331 B.C.E). Emphasis will be on art, artifacts, monuments, religion, kingship and the cuneiform tradition. The survival of the cultural legacy of Mesopotamia into later ancient and Islamic traditions will also be addressed. (Ataç, Division III)
ARCH B244 Great Empires of the Ancient Near East
A survey of the history, material culture, political and religious ideologies of, and interactions among the five great empires of the ancient Near East of the second and first millennia B.C.E.: New kingdom Egypt, the Hittite Empire in Anatolia, the Assyrian and Babylonian Empires in Mesopotamia, and the Persian Empire in Iran. (Ataç, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B244, HIST B244 and POLS B244) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B252 Pompeii
Introduces students to a nearly intact archaeological site whose destruction by the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in 79 C.E. was recorded by contemporaries. The discovery of Pompeii in the mid-1700's had an enormous impact on 18th- and 19th-century views of the Roman past as well as styles and preferences of the modern era. Informs students in classical antiquity, urban life, city structure, residential architecture, home decoration and furnishing, wall painting, minor arts, and craft and mercantile activities within a Roman city. (Webb, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B263 Roman Archaeology
The art and architecture of Rome from the Republic through the Empire in Europe, North Africa and the Near East. (Webb, Division III)

ARCH B270 Geoarchaeology
Societies in the past depended on our human ancestors' ability to interact with their environment. Geoarchaeology analyzes these interactions by combining archaeological and geological techniques to document human behavior while also reconstructing the past environment. Course meets twice weekly for lecture, discussion of readings and hands on exercises. Prerequisite: one course in anthropology, archaeology or geology. (Magee; cross-listed as ANTH B270 and GEOL B270) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B302 Greek Architecture
The Greek architectural tradition and its historical development. (Webb, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B302 and HART B301) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B303 Classical Bodies
An examination of the conceptions of the human body evidenced in Greek and Roman art and literature, with emphasis on issues that have persisted in the Western tradition. Topics include the fashioning of concepts of male and female standards of beauty and their implications; conventions of visual representation; the nude; clothing and its symbolism; the athletic ideal; physiognomy; medical theory and practice; the visible expression of character and emotions; and the formulation of the "classical ideal" in antiquity and later times. (Donohue, Division III; cross-listed as HART B305)

ARCH B305 Ancient Athens: Monuments and Art
Detailed analysis of the monuments, archaeology and art of ancient Athens — the home of such persons as Pericles, Sophocles and Plato. The course considers the art and monuments of ancient Athens against the historical background of the city, and is a case study in understanding the role of archaeology in reconstructing the life and culture of the Athenians. (Miller-Collett; cross-listed as CITY B305) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B308 Ceramic Analysis
Pottery is a fundamental means of establishing the relative chronology of archaeological sites and of understanding past human behavior. Included are theories, methods and techniques of pottery description, analysis and interpretation. Topics include typology, seriation, ceramic characterization, production, function, exchange and the use of computers in pottery analysis. Laboratory work on pottery in the department collections. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. (Magee) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B321 The Archaeology of Magna Graecia
Sicily and southern Italy, lying at the center of the Mediterranean, were visited, invaded and colonized by various cultures from the Bronze Age through the Roman Imperial period. The course will examine the native cultures, Mycenaean remains, Phoenician settlements, Greek colonizations and cities and the Roman conquest. Prerequisite: ARCH 102 or equivalent. (Webb, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B327 Spatial Analysis in Archaeology
The spatial dimensions of social phenomena are critical issues in archaeological theory and method. Sophisticated approaches to document the spatial contexts of past human activities in recognition that space is a social product and that structures, settlements, landscapes and regions are inhabited, organized and perceived by societies and individuals in a multitude of ways. This course will introduce students to current methods for the qualitative analysis of ancient spaces and the qualitative analysis of the spatial attributes of archaeological data. (Compton, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B328 Analysis of Geospatial Data Using GIS

ARCH B330 Archaeological Theory and Method
An historical introduction to archaeological theory and methods. Topics: archaeology's origins in the Renaissance; the formation of archaeology and geology and social scientific approaches to the human past; competing philosophies of knowledge, phenomenology and post-modern constructions of knowledge. (Wright, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B332 Archaeological Field Techniques
Learning to excavate, survey and understand resultant information is an important skill for field archaeologists. In this course we review advances in field techniques, conduct mock-surveys and excavations, and analyze data. We also examine how field techniques have affected (or been in response to) shifts in archaeological theory. (Magee, Division I or Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B333 Ancient Greek Technology
Examines the technology of ancient Greek civilization from prehistoric to Hellenistic times (6000-31 B.C.E.) to enhance appreciation of ancient material culture. Course structure based on accessibility of primary materials: wood, textile, stone, clay and metal. An interdisciplinary approach to the culturally specific and innovative application of technology by craftspeople to meet their needs. (Hasaki, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH B351 The Phoenicians
Study of the origins of the Phoenicians in the Late Bronze-early Iron Age and their dispersal throughout the Mediterranean, with special attention to the interactions in the West through the period of the Punic Wars. Prerequisite: ARCH 204 or permission of the instructor. (Compton, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B351) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARCH 369 Topics in Medieval History: The History and Archaeology of Decline and Fall — Putting the ‘Dark Ages’ in Perspective (Bjornlie, Division I or III; cross-listed as CSTS B369 and HIST B369)

ARCH B398 Senior Seminar
A weekly seminar on common topics with assigned readings and oral and written reports. (Ataç)

ARCH B399 Senior Seminar
A weekly seminar on common topics with assigned readings and oral and written reports. (Donohue)

ARCH B403 Supervised Work (staff)

The study of comparative literature situates literature in an international perspective; examines connections among literary history, literary criticism, critical theory and poetics; and works toward an understanding of the sociocultural functions of literature. Interpretive methods from other disciplines that interrogate cultural discourses also play a role in the comparative study of literature; among these are anthropology, philosophy, history, religion, classical studies, Africana studies, gender studies and cultural studies, as well as other arts.

Comparative literature students are required to have a reading knowledge of at least one foreign language adequate to the advanced study of literature in that language. Some comparative literature courses may require reading knowledge of a foreign language as a prerequisite for admission. Students considering graduate work in comparative literature should also study a second foreign language.

Major Requirements

Requirements for the comparative literature major are: COML 200: Introduction to Comparative Literature (normally taken in the sophomore year); six literature courses at the 200 level or above, balanced between two literature departments (of which English may be one) — at least two of these (one in each national literature) must be at the 300 level or above, or its equivalent as approved in advance by the adviser; one course in critical theory; two electives; COML 398 and 399: Senior Seminar in Comparative Literature.

Honors

Students who, in the judgment of the advisory committee, have done distinguished work in their courses and in the senior seminar will be considered for departmental honors.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for the minor are: COML 200 and 398, plus four additional courses — two each in the literature of two languages. At least one of these four courses must be at the 300 level. Students who minor in comparative literature are encouraged to choose their national literature courses from those with a comparative component.

Both majors and minors are encouraged to work closely with the chairs and members of the advisory committee in shaping their programs.

COML B200 Introduction to Comparative Literature

This course explores a variety of approaches to the comparative or trans-national study of literature through readings of several kinds: texts from different cultural traditions that raise questions about the nature and function of storytelling and literature; texts that comment on, respond to and rewrite other texts from different historical periods and nations; translations; and readings in critical theory. (Quintero, Division III)

COML B202 Culture and Interpretation (Krausz, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B202) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B209 Introduction to Literary Analysis: Philosophical Approaches to Criticism (Seyhan, Division III; cross-listed as GERM B209 and PHIL B209) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B211 Primo Levi, the Holocaust and Its Aftermath (Patruno, Division III; cross-listed as HEBR B211 and ITAL B211) Not offered in 2006-07.
COML B212 Borges y sus lectores
(Sacerio-Gari, Division III; cross-listed as SPAN B211) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B213 Approches critiques et théoriques
(Mahuzier, Division III; cross-listed as FREN B213) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B215 “Memoria Negra”: La literatura afro-hispánica
(Lima, Division III; cross-listed as SPAN B215) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B220 Writing the Self
(Conybeare, Division III; cross-listed as CSTS B220)

COML B222 Aesthetics: The Nature and Experience of Art
(Krausz, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B222)

COML B223 Topics in German Cultural Studies: Global Masculinities: Male Body in Contemporary Cinema
(staff, Division I or III; cross-listed as GERM B223 and HART B223)

COML B226 Cine y sociedad en la España contemporanea (Arribas, Division III; cross-listed as SPAN B226) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B229 Movies and Mass Politics
(Tratner, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B229) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B230 La poética del deseo en España e Hispanoamérica
(staff; cross-listed as SPAN B230)

COML B231 Cultural Profiles in Modern Exile
(Seyhan, Division III; cross-listed as ANTH B231 and GERM B231) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B234 Postcolonial Literature in English
(Tratner, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B234)

COML B245 Interdisciplinary Approaches to German Literature and Culture: Post-War Austria
(Meyer, Division III; cross-listed as GERM B245 and CITY B246)

COML B251 Romantic Prose Fiction
This seminar studies representative works of Romantic poetry’s “poor relation” — prose fiction. Readings include novels from England, France, Germany and Russia, such as The Sorrows of Young Werther, Frankenstein, Wuthering Heights, A Hero of Our Time and The Red and the Black, as well as short stories. Discussions include such topics as national varieties of Romanticism, the Romantic ideals of nature, love and the self, and the impact of the revolutionary era on art. Illustrative examples of Romantic painting and music are also considered. All readings and discussions in English. (Allen, Division III)

COML B257 The Realist Novel Revisited
This seminar undertakes the study of a deceptively simple cultural and literary historical concept — realism — by closely reading well-known 19th-century novels by George Eliot, Gustave Flaubert, Theodor Fontane, Henry James, Stendhal, Leo Tolstoy and Ivan Turgenev, all of which have traditionally been placed within realism’s parameters. Critical essays exploring the nature of realism, either in general or in a particular author’s works, are also discussed. The ethical implications of the realist enterprise and, more broadly, the possible relations between art and life receive special scrutiny. (Allen, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B260 Ariel/Caliban y el discurso americano
(Sacerio-Gari, Division III; cross-listed as SPAN B260)

COML B265 The Islamic Literary Tradition
(Kim, Division III; cross-listed as GNST B265) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B269 Ecologies of Theater: Performance, Play and Landscape
(Lord, Division III; cross-listed as ARTT B270)

COML B271 Literatura y delincuencia: explorando la novela picaresca
(Quintero, Division III; cross-listed as SPAN B270) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B275 Interpreting Mythology
(Edmonds, Division III; cross-listed as CSTS B275)

COML B277 Topics in Islamic Literatures: Travel Narrative
(Kim, Division III; cross-listed as GNST B277)

COML B279 Introduction to African Literature
(Beard, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B279) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B299 Cultural Diversity and Its Representations
(Werlen, Division I or III; cross-listed as GERM B299 and HART B298) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B302 Le printemps de la parole féminine: femmes écrivains des débuts
(Armstrong, Division III; cross-listed as FREN B302)

COML B308 Spanish Drama of the Golden Age
(Quintero, Division III; cross-listed as SPAN B308) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B312 Crimen y detectives en la narrativa hispánica contemporánea
(Song, Division III; cross-listed as SPAN B311)

COML B319 A Sense of Place
(Briggs, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B319) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B320 Topics in German Literature and Culture: No Place Like Home: Nostalgia
(staff, Division III; cross-listed as GERM B320, HEBR B320 and HART B320)

COML B321 Advanced Topics in German Cultural Studies: Vienna 1900
(Meyer, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B319, GERM B321 and HART B348)

COML B323 Culture and Interpretation
(Krausz, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B323) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B325 Etudes avancées de civilisation
(Mahuzier, Division III; cross-listed as FREN B325)
COML B350 Voix médiévales et échos modernes
(Armstrong, Division III; cross-listed as FREN B350) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B354 Topics in Art Criticism
(Levine; cross-listed as HART B354) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B359 Sacrifice, Identity and Law
(Elkins; cross-listed as PHIL B359 and POLS B359) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B364 Political Philosophy: Irony and Inquiry
(Salkever; cross-listed as PHIL B364 and POLS B364)

COML B398 Theories and Methods in Comparative Literature
This course, required of all senior comparative literature majors in preparation for writing the senior thesis in the spring semester, explores both theoretical and applied, or practical, literary criticism, in which literary theories are put to work, often in combination, to elucidate particular texts. Throughout the semester, students collect and review theoretical and applied critical materials bearing on their own comparative thesis topics in order to situate those topics in an appropriate critical context. (staff) Not offered in 2006-07.

COML B399 Senior Seminar in Comparative Literature
(Allen, Roberts)

COML B403 Supervised Work
(staff)

Haverford College currently offers the following courses in Comparative Literature:

COML H200 Introduction to Comparative Literature
COML H205 Studies in the Spanish American Novel
COML H215 Tales of Troy
COML H228 The Logos and the Tao
COML H232 Inquiring Minds: Inquisition, Writing and the Early Modern Subject
COML H235 Spanish American Theater
COML H241 Anthropology of the Mediterranean
COML H255 Cinéma français/francophone et colonialisme
COML H293 Translation and other Transformations: Theory and Practice
COML H301 Topics in Medieval English Literature
COML H303 Evangelicalism, Anti-Slavery and Feminism in Uncle Tom's Cabin
COML H312 Advanced Topies: L'art du ridicule
COML H312 Advanced Topics in French Literature
COML H359 Music-Text-Performance
COML H381 Textual Politics: Marxism, Feminism, and the Deconstruction
COML H387 The Post-Modern: Theory and Fiction
COML H398 Theories and Methods in Comparative Literature
Computer Science

Students may complete a major or minor in Computer Science or a minor in computational methods.

Computer Science is the science of algorithms — their theory, analysis, design and implementation. As such it is an interdisciplinary field with roots in mathematics and engineering and applications in many other academic disciplines. The program at Bryn Mawr is founded on the belief that computer science should transcend from being a subfield of mathematics and engineering and play a broader role in all forms of human inquiry.

The Computer Science Program is supported jointly by faculty at both Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges. The program welcomes students who wish to pursue a major in computer science. Additionally, the program also offers a minor in computer science, a concentration in computer science (at Haverford College) and a minor in computational methods (at Bryn Mawr College). The program also strives to facilitate evolving interdisciplinary majors. For example, students can propose a major in cognitive science by combining coursework from computer science and disciplines such as psychology and philosophy.

All majors, minors and concentrations offered by the program emphasize foundations and basic principles of information science, rather than engineering or data-processing applications. The aim is to provide students with skills that transcend short-term trends in computer hardware and software.

Major in Computer Science

Students are encouraged to prepare a major course plan in consultation with their academic adviser in computer science. The requirements for a major in computer science are three introductory courses (CMSC 110 or 205, 206 and 231), three core courses (CMSC 240, 245 and one of 330, 340 or 345), six electives of a student's choosing and a senior thesis. Students should ensure that they have completed at least three courses in computer science by the end of their sophomore year (we highly recommend CMSC 110, 206 and 231).

Minor in Computer Science

Students in any major are encouraged to complete a minor in computer science. Completing a minor in computer science enables students to pursue graduate studies in computer science, in addition to their own major. The requirements for a minor in computer science at Bryn Mawr are CMSC 110 or 205, 206, 231, any two of CMSC 240, 245, 246, 330, 340 or 345, and two electives chosen from any course in computer science, approved by the student’s adviser in computer science. As mentioned above, these requirements can be combined with any major, depending on the student’s interest and preparation.

Minor in Computational Methods
This minor is designed to enable students majoring in any discipline to learn computational methods and applications in their major area of study. The requirements for a minor in computational methods are CMSC 110 or 205, 206, 231; one of CMSC 212, 225, 245, 246, 330, 340 or 361; any two computational courses depending on a student’s major and interests (there are over 35 such courses to choose from in various departments).

Students can declare a minor at the end of their sophomore year or soon after. Students should prepare a course plan and have it approved by at least two faculty advisers. Students minoring in computational methods are encouraged to propose senior projects/theses that involve the application of computational modeling in their major field of study.

CMSC H100 The World of Computing
An introductory survey of fundamental ideas in computer science, with a special emphasis on student participation in a more informal class setting. Algorithms, problem-solving strategies, hardware, software, limits of computation, and interface design are a few of the many topics to be explored. The required laboratory/discussion sections will reinforce concepts in lecture with the help of an interactive computing environment. No previous experience with computers or computing will be assumed, and programming will not be emphasized. (Dougherty)

CMSC H101 Fluency with Information Technology
A study of the skills, concepts and capabilities involved in the design, implementation and effective use of information technology. Using a variety of quantitative techniques, we will explore a range of uses of information technology in various fields. (Lindell)

CMSC H105 Introduction to Computer Science
A rigorous year-long introduction to the fundamental concepts of computer science intended for students interested in doing more advanced work in technical and scientific fields. Includes the fundamental data structures of computer science and their algorithms. Examples and exercises will stress mathematical aspects of the discipline, with a strong emphasis on programming and analytical problem-solving skills. (Dougherty, Wonnacott)

CMSC B110 Introduction to Computing
An introduction to the nature, subject matter and branches of computer science as an academic discipline, and the nature, development, coding, testing, documenting and analysis of the efficiency and limitations of algorithms. Also includes the social context of computing (risks, liabilities, intellectual property and infringement). (Kumar, Xu, Division II and Quantitative Skills)

CMSC B120 Visualizing Information
An introduction to visualization of complex data through computer manipulation. Explores the tools necessary to allow the human mind to make sense of vast amounts of data collected in many fields of study. Topics: 2D/3D representations, programming techniques, data conversion principles, color representation and introduction to virtual reality. (Xu, Quantitative Skills) Not offered in 2006-07.

CMSC H130 Foundations of Rigorous Thinking
Develops rigorous thinking skills through the linguistic foundations of mathematics: logic and sets. Emphasis on using symbolology to represent abstract objects and the application of formal reasoning to situations in computer science. (Lindell)

CMSC H206 Introduction to Computer Science
A rigorous year-long introduction to the fundamental concepts of computer science intended for students interested in doing more advanced work in technical and scientific fields. Includes the fundamental data structures of computer science and their algorithms. Examples and exercises will stress mathematical aspects of the discipline, with a strong emphasis on programming and analytical problem-solving skills. (Dougherty, Wonnacott)

CMSC B206 Introduction to Data Structures
Introduction to the fundamental algorithms and data structures of computer science: sorting, searching, recursion, backtrack search, lists, stacks, queues, trees, graphs, dictionaries. Introduction to the analysis of algorithms. Prerequisite: CMSC 205 or 110, or permission of instructor. (Xu, Division II)

CMSC B212 Computer Graphics
Presents the fundamental principles of computer graphics: data structures for representing objects to be viewed, and algorithms for generating images from representations. Prerequisite: MATH 203 or 215, or permission of instructor. (Xu)

CMSC B231 Discrete Mathematics
An introduction to discrete mathematics with strong applications to computer science. Topics include set theory, functions and relations, propositional logic, proof techniques, difference equations, graphs, and trees. (Weaver, Division II and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as MATH B231 and PHIL B230)

CMSC B240 Principles of Computer Organization
A lecture/laboratory course studying the hierarchical design of modern digital computers. Combinatorial and sequential logic elements; construction of microprocessors; instruction sets; assembly language programming. Lectures cover the theoretical aspects of machine architecture. In the laboratory, designs discussed in lecture are constructed in software. Prerequisite: CMSC 206 or permission of instructor. (Kumar, Division II) Offered at Haverford in 2006-07.

CMSC B245 Principles of Programming Languages
An introduction to a wide range of topics relating to programming languages with an emphasis on abstraction and design. Design issues relevant to the implementation of programming languages are discussed, including a review and in-depth treatment of mechanisms for sequence control, the run-time structure of programming languages and programming in the large. The course has a strong lab component where students get to construct large programs in at least three different imperative programming languages. (Kumar, Division II and Quantitative Skills)

CMSC B246 Programming Paradigms: Unix and C Programming
Topics course; course content varies. Topic for 2006-07 is Programming in UNIX and C. Provides an in-depth introduction to C and C++, as well as programming principles such as abstraction, encapsulation and modularization. Another focus of the class is to gain proficiency in the UNIX operating system. Assumes familiarity with conditionals, loops, functions and arrays and will focus on C-specific topics such as pointer manipulations, dynamic memory allocation and abstract data types. An excellent preparation for classes such as operating systems and software engineering principles and programming techniques to facilitate medium-scaled development projects. Prerequisite: CMSC 110 or 205. (Kumar, Division II and Quantitative Skills)

CMSC B250 Computational Models in the Sciences
(Allen, Division II and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as BIOL B250 and GEOL B250)

CMSC B325 Computational Linguistics
Introduction to computational models of understanding and processing human languages. How elements of linguistics, computer science, and artificial intelligence can be combined to help computers process human language and to help linguists understand language through computer models. Topics covered: syntax, semantics, pragmatics, generation and knowledge representation techniques. Prerequisite: some background in linguistics or computer science. (Kumar) Not offered in 2006-07.

CMSC B330 Algorithms: Design and Practice
This course examines the applications of algorithms to the accomplishments of various programming tasks. The focus will be on understanding of problem-solving methods, along with the construction of algorithms, rather than emphasizing formal proving methodologies. Topics include divide and conquer, approximations for NP-Complete problems, data mining and parallel algorithms. Prerequisites: CMSC 206 and 231. (Kumar, Division II and Quantitative Skills) Not offered in 2006-07.

CMSC H340 Analysis of Algorithms
Qualitative and quantitative analysis of algorithms and their corresponding data structures from a precise mathematical point of view. Performance bounds, asymptotic and probabilistic analysis, worst case and average case behavior, correctness and complexity. Particular classes of algorithms such as sorting and searching will be studied in detail. (Lindell)

CMSC H355 Operating Systems
A practical introduction to modern operating systems, with a substantial laboratory component. (Wonnacott)

CMSC B355 Operating Systems
A practical introduction to modern operating systems, using case studies from UNIX, VMS, MSDOS and the Macintosh. Lab sessions will explore the implementation of abstract concepts, such as resource allocation and deadlock. Topics include file systems, memory allocation schemes, semaphores and critical sections, device drivers, multiprocessing and resource sharing. (Xu) Not offered in 2006-07.

CMSC B361 Emergence
A multidisciplinary exploration of the interactions underlying both real and simulated systems, such as ant colonies, economies, brains, earthquakes, biological evolution, artificial evolution, computers and life. These emergent systems are often characterized by simple, local interactions that collectively produce global phenomena not apparent in the local interactions. (Grobstein; cross-listed as BIOL B361)

CMSC B371 Cognitive Science
Cognitive science is the interdisciplinary study of intelligence in mechanical and organic systems. In this introductory course, we examine many topics from computer science, linguistics, neuroscience, mathematics, philosophy and psychology. Can a computer be intelligent? How do neurons give rise to thinking? What is consciousness? These are some of the questions we will examine. No prior knowledge or experience with any of the subfields is assumed or necessary. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. (Blank) Not offered in 2006-07.

CMSC B372 Artificial Intelligence
Survey of Artificial Intelligence (AI), the study of how to program computers to behave in ways normally attributed to “intelligence” when observed in humans. Topics include heuristic versus algorithmic programming; cognitive simulation versus machine intelligence; problem-solving; inference; natural language understanding; scene analysis; learning; decision-making. Topics are illustrated by programs from literature, programming projects in appropriate languages and building small robots. (Kumar, Division II and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as PHIL B372)

CMSC B380 Recent Advances in Computer Science: Game Design and Programming
A topical course facilitating an in-depth study on a current topic in computer science. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. (Xu, Division II)

CMSC H394 Number Systems and Computer Arithmetic
The mathematical theory of discrete systems used for numerical representation, including their arithmetic algorithms, with an emphasis on modern techniques for high-speed computing. (Lindell)

EAST ASIAN STUDIES

Students may complete a major or a minor in East Asian Studies.

Faculty
Tz’u Chiang, Lecturer
Jina Kim, Lecturer
Youngmin Kim, Assistant Professor (on leave semester I)
Pauline Lin, Assistant Professor
Suzanne Spain, Associate Provost, Co-chair
Changchun Zhang, Instructor

At Haverford College:
Hank Glassman, Assistant Professor
Shizhe Huang, C. V. Starr Professor of Asian Studies and Associate Professor of Chinese and Linguistics, Co-chair
Yoko Koike, Senior Lecturer
Paul Jakov Smith, John R. Coleman Professor of Social Sciences and Professor of History and East Asian Studies
Yukino Tanaka, Lecturer
Hai Lin Zhou, Visiting Assistant Professor

The Bi-College Department of East Asian Studies links rigorous language training to the study of East Asian, and particularly Chinese and Japanese, culture and society. In addition to our intensive programs in Chinese and Japanese languages, departmental faculty offer courses in East Asian philosophy, linguistics, literature, religion and social and intellectual history. The East Asian Studies program also incorporates courses on East Asia by affiliated Bi-College faculty on East Asian anthropology, cities, economics, philosophy and sociology, as well as additional courses on East Asian culture and society by faculty at Swarthmore.

The intellectual orientation of the Department of East Asian Studies is primarily historical and text-based; that is, we focus on East Asia’s rich cultural traditions as a way to understand its present, through the study of primary sources (in translation and in the vernacular) and scholarly books and articles. All students wishing to specialize in this humanistic approach to the study of China, Japan and (with special approval) Korea are encouraged to consider the East Asian Studies major. But we also work closely with affiliated faculty in the Bi-Co and Tri-Co community who approach East Asia from the perspective of such social science disciplines as anthropology, economics, political science, sociology and the growth and structure of cities, as well as with faculty in history, music, religion and philosophy. East Asian studies majors are encouraged to take advantage of these programs to supplement their East Asian studies coursework. Students who wish to combine the study of East Asia and its languages with a major in another discipline are invited to consider the East Asian studies minor, described more fully below.

Major Requirements

Requirements for the major are:

1. Completion of at least the third-year level of (Mandarin) Chinese or Japanese (i.e., 101-102). Students who entered college with native fluency in one East Asian language (including Korean) must complete this requirement with another East Asian language.

2. EAST 200 (Sophomore Seminar: Methods and Approaches to East Asian Studies), which highlights the emergence of East Asia as a coherent cultural region and introduces students to basic bibliographic skills and research approaches. Required of East Asian studies majors and minors; open to history majors and others with permission of the instructors. This course should be taken in the second semester of the sophomore year.

3. Five additional courses in East Asian cultures, as follows: one 100-level Introduction (from among EAST 120, 129, 131 or 132); two 200-level courses; and two 300-level seminars.

4. A one-semester senior conference (EAST 398) in the Fall, culminating in the completion of a senior thesis by the end of that semester.

Minor Requirements
The Department of East Asian Studies offers a flexible six-course minor for students with varying interests in East Asian cultures and languages. All candidates for minor credit must take EAST 200 (Sophomore Seminar). In addition, they may take five additional courses in East Asian cultures and society, or any combination of culture courses and language courses in Chinese or Japanese above the first-year (001-002) level. The most typical configurations will be EAST 200 plus: five additional culture courses and no language; three additional culture courses and two language courses at the second (003-004) or third-year (101-102) level; or one additional culture course and four language courses at the second-year level and above.

Language Placement Tests
Placement tests for first-time students at all levels are conducted in the first week of the fall semester. To qualify for third-year language courses students need to have a 3.0 average in second-year language study or take a placement test in the beginning of the third-year course. In the event that students do not score 3.0 or above at the end of the second-year language study, they must consult with the director of the respective language program and work out a summer study plan that may include, but is not limited to, taking summer courses or studying on their own under supervision.

Honors
Honors in East Asian studies will be awarded by the departmental faculty on the basis of superior performance in two areas: coursework in major-related courses (including language classes), and the senior thesis. A 3.5 average in major-related coursework is considered the minimum necessary for consideration for honors.

Study Abroad
The Department of East Asian Studies strongly recommends study abroad to maximize language proficiency and cultural familiarity. Because study abroad provides an unparalleled opportunity to study a culture from the inside, students spending a semester or year in China, Japan or Korea will be required to prepare an essay of 10 pages on significant issues confronting their host country, based on information from local newspapers or magazines, television or personal interviews. No departmental credit will be granted for study abroad without satisfactory completion of this assignment, whose details should be worked out with the student's adviser.

Formal approval is required by the study abroad adviser prior to the student's travel. Without this approval, credit for courses taken abroad may not be accepted by the East Asian studies program.

If studying abroad is not practical, students may consider attending certain intensive summer schools approved by the East Asian studies program. These plans must be worked out in concert with the program's study abroad adviser and the student's dean.

EAST H120 Chinese Perspectives on the Individual and Society
A survey of philosophical, literary, legal and autobiographical sources on Chinese notions of the individual in traditional and modern China. Particular emphasis is placed on identifying how ideal and actual relationships between the individual and society vary across class and gender and over time. Special attention will be paid to the early 20th century, when Western ideas about the individual begin to penetrate Chinese literature and political discourse. (Smith)

EAST B131 Chinese Civilization
A broad chronological survey of Chinese culture and society from the Bronze Age to the present, with special reference to such topics as belief, family, language, the arts and sociopolitical organization. Readings include primary sources in English translation and secondary studies. (Kim, Division I or III; cross-listed as HIST B131) Not offered in 2006-07.

EAST H132 Japanese Civilization
A broad chronological survey of Japanese culture and society from the earliest times to the present, with special reference to such topics as belief, family, language, the arts, and sociopolitical organization. Readings include primary sources in English translation and secondary studies. (Glassman)

EAST B200 Sophomore Seminar: Methods and Approaches in East Asian Studies
Introduces current and prospective majors to the scope and methods of East Asian Studies. Employs readings on East Asian history and culture as a platform in critical analysis, bibliography, cartography, and the formulation of research topics and approaches. Culminates in a substantial research essay. A prerequisite for East Asian Studies majors, the course should be taken in the second semester of the sophomore year; occasionally in the second semester of the junior year. Also for minors and concentrators as an elective. (Kim, Division III)

EAST H201 Introduction to Buddhism
Focusing on the East Asian Buddhist tradition, the course examines Buddhist philosophy, doctrine and practice as textual traditions and as lived religion. (Glassman)

EAST B206 Modern Chinese Literature and Film
Introduces the development of modern Chinese literature and related film.
the 19th century in terms of the significant motifs of enlightenment and decadence. The course enriches the understanding of heterogeneous “modernities” rather than the homogeneous “modernity” in modern China. (staff) Not offered in 2006-07.

EAST B210 Topics in Chinese Literature and Culture: The Chinese Visual Imagination
Imagination tells us much about our wishes and desires, loves and fears, the customary and the serendipitous, the extreme-unreality or the everyday. This course examines how the Chinese have envisioned various aspects of their lives — other worlds, the afterlife, everyday living, emotions and the past. We will closely examine texts and artworks, and explore the aesthetic values, social realities and cultural aspirations at the core of these works. Topics include Chinese ritual bronzes and communion with ancestors, depictions of paradise and hell in Buddhist cosmology, representations of everyday life, fictive landscapes, garden designs and imperial architecture. (Lin, Division III)

EAST B212 Introduction to Chinese Literature
This course introduces Chinese literature from its beginnings through the late 18th century, via the greatest masterpiece of traditional Chinese fiction, The Dream of the Red Chamber. Nearly every significant literary genre in the pre-modern Chinese tradition is represented within the novel’s descriptions of daily life in a great Chinese household. By studying relevant aspects of the literary tradition alongside each section of the novel, we will learn to appreciate China’s pre-modern literary tradition from our contemporary perspective and to see it through the eyes of the 18th-century characters for whom the literary tradition was a part of their daily lives. (staff, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

EAST H217 Chinese Calligraphy as an Art Form
Studio art course. Students learn fundamental techniques of the art of Chinese calligraphy. Considers its impact on Western artists. Students create art projects inspired by Chinese calligraphy. No knowledge of the Chinese language is necessary. (Li)

EAST B225 Topics in Modern Chinese Literature
(staff, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

EAST B226 Introduction to Confucianism
An introduction to Confucianism, arguably the most influential intellectual and cultural tradition in East Asia. In the first half, this course will train students to read the condensed style of the Confucian canons — the Analects, the Book of Mencius, the Great Learning and the Doctrine of the Mean — by examining different commentators’ explanations of select passages. In the second half, we will analyze Confucianism in light of contemporary discussions of issues such as human rights, virtue ethics, women’s history, economic development and political authority. This course has no prerequisites and assumes no background in East Asian culture. (Kim, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B226 and POLS B226) Not offered in 2006-07.

EAST H228 The Logos and the Tao
This course challenges the postmodern construction of “China” as the (feminine) poetic “Other” to the (masculine) metaphysical “West” by analyzing postmodern concepts of word, image and writing in relation to Chinese poetry, painting and calligraphy. (Wright)

EAST B229 Comparative Urbanism (McDonogh, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B229 and CITY B229) Not offered in 2006-07.

EAST B234 Introduction to Korean Culture
This course examines the dynamics of Korean cultural and intellectual history from the perspective of cultural identity.
How did Korea negotiate its position in the traditional Asian cultural sphere? What is the significance of the so-called “Confucianization” of Choson Korea? What events and conditions shaped Korea in the 20th century? What was the impact of Japanese colonialism on Korea’s modern transformation? This course explores these questions through a variety of literary works as well as historical writing, philosophical debates and the arts. No knowledge of Koorean language or history is required. (Jina
Kim, Division III; cross-listed as HIST
B252) Not offered in 2006-07.

EAST H240 Economic Development and Transformation: China vs. India
A survey of the economic development and recent transitional experience in China and India, giant neighboring countries, accounting for roughly one third of total world population. The course will examine the economic structure and policies in the two countries, with a focus on comparing China and India’s recent economic successes an failures, their development policies and strategies, institutional changes, and factors affecting the transformation process in the two countries. (Jilani)

EAST H242 Buddhist Philosophy
An introduction to classical Indian Buddhist thought in a global and comparative context. The course begins with a meditative reading of the classical text — The Dhamapada — and proceeds to an in depth critical exploration of the teachings of Nagarjuna, the great dialectician who founded the Madhyamika School.
(Gangadean)

EAST H261 Late Imperial China, 1600-
1900 Surveys Chinese culture and society at the height of the imperial era through the 18th century and the ensuing political and cultural crises catalyzed by institutional decline and Western imperialism in the 19th and early 20th centuries. (Smith)

EAST B267 The Development of the Modern Japanese Nation (Takenaka, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B267 and SOCL B267) Not offered
in 2006-07.

EAST B270 Japanese Architecture and Planning
(Hein, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B270 and HART B270).

EAST B272 Topics in Early and Medieval China: Material, Social and Philosophical Cultures
Cities are the political, cultural and economic centers of a time and space; each is distinguished by geographic locale, architectural details, inhabitants and its literary, artistic and historical milieu. We investigate the literary and cultural artifacts: beginning with magnificent Changian and Luoyang; on to medieval Ye and Luoyang, the cosmopolitan eighth-century Changian, and concluding with bustling 11th-century Bianjing. Extensive use of visual materials, such as city plans and descriptions, architecture and gardens, works by notable writers and painters. (Lin, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B273)

EAST H282 Structure of Chinese
This course is designed to acquaint students with both the syntactic and semantic structures of Mandarin Chinese and the theoretical implications they pose to the study of natural language. Students will have an opportunity to further their understanding of linguistic theories and to develop skills in systematically analyzing a non-Indo-European language. Prerequisite: General Programs 262 or consent of the instructor. (Huang, Division I; cross-listed as LING H282) Not offered in 2006-07.

EAST B284 Topics in Korean Culture
An introduction to Korean modern and contemporary literature and media culture. Readings will include both literary works in translation and critical writings on selected topics in Korean literary and cultural history and film theory and history. (Kim, Division III)

EAST H310 Religion and Gender in Modern Pre-Japanese Literature
(Glassman)

EAST H335 East Asian Development
(Rock, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B336 and ECON B335) Not offered in 2006-07.

EAST H342 Topics in Asian Philosophy: Japanese Zen in Global Context
This advanced seminar focuses on the development of Zen (Japanese) Buddhism culminating in the work of Nishida and his influential Kyoto School of Zen Philosophy. The background in the Indian origins of Madhyamika dialectic introduced by Nagarjuna is traced through the Zen Master Dogen and into the flourishing of the modern Kyoto School founded by Nishida. The seminar focuses on texts by Dogen and on selected writings in the Kyoto School: Nishida, Nishitani and Abe. Nishida’s thought is developed in dialogue with thinkers such as Aristotle, Descartes, Kant, Hegel, Husserl, Sartre and Heidegger, Nagarjuna and others. (Gangadean)

EAST H347 Topics in East Asian History: China at the Center
An exploration of China's place in the current world history from the first through the late 19th centuries, with equal focus on theoretical debates and primary-source observations. Recommended for juniors and seniors with prior courses in history. (Smith)

EAST B381 Topics in Japanese Art
(Easton, Division III; cross-listed as HART B381) Not offered in 2006-07.

EAST H382 Syntax and Semantics of Mandarin Chinese
An examination of the core issues in the study of Mandarin Chinese in terms of its syntactic and semantic structures. The aim is to look at a rich array of data as analyzed by practicing theoreticians and appreciate the inner workings of the language and their theoretical implications. (Huang)
EAST H398 Senior Conference
A semester-long research workshop culminating in the writing and presentation of a senior thesis. Required of all majors; open to minors and others by permission. (Glassman, Lin)

EAST B403 Supervised Work
(staff)

EAST H415 Research Seminar in the Material Culture of China
This advanced research seminar is about Chinese material culture in its historical and contemporary manifestations. Particular attention will be paid to Chinese ceramics. Students will design and complete individual research projects centered on objects, architectural installations and other manifestations of Chinese material culture available in the Philadelphia area. (Gillette)

East Asian Languages

The East Asian Studies Program welcomes students who wish to combine their interests in East Asian languages with the study of an East Asian culture. These students are urged to consult the coordinator of East Asian studies on either campus, who will advise them on creating individual plans of study in appropriate departments.

Chinese Language
Shizhe Huang, Director
Tz'u Chiang
Pauline Lin
Changchun Zhang

The Chinese Language Program offers a full undergraduate curriculum of courses in Mandarin Chinese. Students who will combine language study with focused work on East Asian society and culture may wish to consider the major or minor in East Asian studies. Information about study abroad programs can be found under the East Asian studies heading in this catalog.

CNSE B101, B102 Third Year Chinese
A focus on overall language skills through reading and discussion of modern short stories, as well as on students' facility in written and oral expression through readings in modern drama and screenplays. Readings include representative works from the May Fourth Period (1919-27) to the present. Audio- and videotapes of drama and films are used as study aids. Prerequisite: Second-year Chinese or permission of instructor. (Chiang, Division III)
CNSE B201, B202 Fourth Year Chinese
Development of language ability by readings in modern Chinese literature, history and/or philosophy. Speaking and reading skills are equally emphasized through a consideration of the intellectual, historical and social significance of representative works. Prerequisite: Third-year Chinese or permission of instructor. (Lin, Division III)

Japanese Language
Yoko Koike, Director
Hank Glassman
Yukino Tanaka

JPNSE H001, H002 First-year Japanese
An introduction to the four basic skills (reading, writing, speaking and listening), with special emphasis on the development of conversational fluency in sociocultural contexts. Six hours per week of lecture and oral practice. This is a year-long course; both semesters are required for credit. (Koike)

JPNSE H003, H004 Second-year Japanese
A continuation of first-year Japanese, with a focus on the further development of oral proficiency, along with reading and writing skills. Five hours per week of lecture and oral practice. Prerequisite: First-year Japanese or equivalent. (Tanaka)

JPNSE H101, H102 Third-year Japanese
A continuation of language study with further development of oral proficiency. Emphasis on reading and discussing simple texts. Advanced study of grammar and kanji; introduction to composition writing. Three hours of class, one hour of oral practice. Prerequisite: Second-year Japanese or equivalent. (Tanaka)

JPNSE H201, H202 Fourth-year Japanese
Advanced study of written and spoken Japanese utilizing texts and audio-visual materials. Prerequisite: Third-year Japanese or equivalent and consent of the instructor. (Glassman, Koike)
ECONOMICS

Students may complete a major or minor in Economics. Within the major, students may complete a concentration in environmental studies.

Faculty
Janet Ceglowski, Professor (on leave semester II)
Harriet B. Newburger, Associate Professor
Scott Redenius, Assistant Professor
Michael Rock, Professor and Chair
David R. Ross, Associate Professor

The economics curriculum consists of courses given at Bryn Mawr and Haverford. It is designed to provide an understanding of economic processes and institutions and the interactions among economic, political and social structures. The curriculum assists undergraduates in mastering the methods used by economists to analyze those processes and institutions and it enables students to make reasoned assessments of alternative public policies in a wide range of fields.

ECON 105 (or 101 and 102 at Haverford) introduces the theories and operating characteristics of modern economies that an educated person should understand; it also prepares students for further work in economics and its policy and business applications. Subsequent courses in economics build on the principles and analytical tools learned in ECON 105. Courses in the 130 series apply the theories and tools learned in ECON 105 to current issues in economic policy and analysis.

Courses at the 200 level serve majors by providing gateways to the major subfields of economics and offer other students a range of topics that complement their studies in other disciplines. Two intermediate theory courses (ECON 300 and 302) examine in depth the workings of the price system in allocating economic resources and the aggregate processes that determine employment, inflation and growth. When combined with the tools of quantitative empirical analysis (ECON 203 and 304), these courses supply a methodological and theoretical foundation for those planning to use economics in their professional careers. Advanced seminars provide a critical appreciation for the process of economic research through careful evaluation of professional journal articles and written work, including the senior research paper.

Major Requirements
Requirements for the major are 10 semester courses in economics, including ECON 105: Principles of Economics; ECON 203: Statistical Methods in Economics; ECON 300: Intermediate Microeconomics; ECON 302: Intermediate Macroeconomics; plus at least two additional semester courses of 300-level work. At least eight of the 10 required courses must be taken above the 100 level and have ECON 105, or ECON 101 or 102 at Haverford, as a prerequisite. At least one 300-level course that requires a substantial research paper must be taken, preferably in the senior year. ECON 304, 306, 313, 314, 320, 322, 324, 335 and 395 either require or can incorporate such a paper.

Students should carefully consult individual course descriptions for prerequisites, which can differ between Bryn Mawr and Haverford. In most cases, ECON 101 and 102 at Haverford may substitute for ECON 105 at Bryn Mawr; while 105 and an additional elective substitute for 101 and 102 at Haverford. Depending on the topics covered, ECON 100 with a grade of 3.0 or higher may substitute for ECON 101 or 102. MATH 101 (or equivalent) is a prerequisite for ECON 300, 302 and 304 at Bryn Mawr; MATH 102 (or equivalent) is a prerequisite for ECON 300 and 302 at Haverford.

Prospective majors in economics are advised to take ECON 105 (or 101 and 102 at Haverford) by the end of the first semester of sophomore year. ECON 203, ECON 300 and ECON 302 must be completed by the end of the junior year. Students whose grade in ECON 105 (or ECON 101 and 102 at Haverford) is 2.3 or below are advised not to major in economics. Students planning to spend junior year studying abroad must complete ECON 105 (or 101 and 102) and 203, and at least one other 200-level course, by the end of sophomore year. It is suggested that two or three 200-level courses be taken as background for 300-level courses. Members of the department should be consulted about desirable sequences of courses.

Students intending to pursue graduate work in economics are strongly urged to enroll in ECON 304. Those intending to pursue graduate work in economics should also strongly consider a minor or double major in mathematics. Math courses that are particularly appropriate are MATH 101 and 102, Calculus with Analytical Geometry; MATH 201, Multivariable Calculus; MATH 203, Linear Algebra; MATH 205, Theory of Probability and Applications; MATH 210, Differential Equations with Applications; and MATH 301 and 302, Introduction to Real Analysis. Students considering graduate school are strongly urged to consult with members of the department of mathematics no later than the end of the sophomore year.

Honors

An economics major with a GPA of 3.7 in economics or higher, including economics courses taken in the second semester of the senior year graduate with honors in economics.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for the minor in economics include ECON 105 (or 101 and 102), 203 and a coherent selection of four or more additional courses approved in advance by the department chair.

Concentration in Environmental Studies

The Department of Economics participates with other departments in offering a concentration within the major in environmental studies (see page 147).

ECON B105 Principles of Economics

An introduction to micro- and macroeconomics: opportunity cost, supply and demand; consumer choice, the firm and output decisions; market structures; efficiency and market failure; the determination of national income, including government spending, money and interest rates; unemployment, inflation and public policy. (staff, Division I)
ECON B203 Statistical Methods in Economics
An introduction to econometric terminology and reasoning. Topics include descriptive statistics, probability and statistical inference. Particular emphasis is placed on regression analysis and on the use of data to address economic issues. The required computational techniques are developed as part of the course. Prerequisite: ECON 105, or 101 and 102, and a 200-level elective or permission of instructor. (Ross, Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as CITY B206)

ECON B206 International Trade
Study of the major theories offered to explain international trade. Includes analyses of the effects of trade barriers (tariffs, quotas, non-tariff barriers), trade liberalization and foreign investment by multinational corporations on growth, poverty, inequality and the environment. Prerequisite: ECON 105 or 101 and 102. (Rock, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

ECON B207 Money and Banking
Analysis of the development and present organization of the financial system of the United States, focusing on the monetary and payment systems, financial markets and financial intermediaries. Prerequisites: ECON 105, or 101 and 102. (Redenius, Division I)

ECON B213 Taming the Modern Corporation
Introduction to the economics of industrial organization and regulation, focusing on policy options for ensuring that corporations enhance economic welfare and the quality of life. Topics include firm behavior in imperfectly competitive markets; theoretical basis of antitrust laws; regulation of product and occupational safety, environmental pollution and truth in advertising. Prerequisite: ECON 105 or 101. (Ross, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B213)

ECON B214 Public Finance
Analysis of government's role in resource allocation, emphasizing effects of tax and expenditure programs on income distribution and economic efficiency. Topics include sources of inefficiency in markets and possible government responses; federal budget composition; social insurance and antipoverty programs; U.S. tax structure and incidence. Prerequisites: ECON 105 or 101. (Newburger, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B214)

ECON B215 Urban Economics
Micro- and macroeconomic theory applied to urban economic behavior. Topics include housing and land use; transportation; urban labor markets; urbanization; and demand for and financing of urban services. Prerequisite: ECON 105, or 101 and 102. (staff, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

ECON B216 International Macroeconomics and International Finance
Introduction to the theory of and current issues in international macroeconomics and international finance. Examination of the role of international factors in macroeconomic performance; policymaking in an open economy; exchange rate systems and exchange rate behavior; international financial integration; and international financial crises. Prerequisite: ECON 102 or 105. (Ceglowski, Division I)
ECON B221 U.S. Economic History
Study of the evolution of the economy of what is today the United States from the period of European settlement through the Great Depression. The course examines the roles played by technology, the environment, government and the nation's evolving economic institutions on the course of its economic development. Prerequisites: ECON 105, or 101 and 102. (Redenius, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B221)

ECON B225 Economic Development
Examination of the issues related to and the policies designed to promote economic development in the developing economies of Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America. Focus is on why some developing economies grow faster than others and why some growth paths are more equitable, poverty reducing and environmentally sustainable than others. Includes consideration of the impact of international trade and investment policy, macroeconomic policies (exchange rate, monetary and fiscal policy) and sector policies (industry, agriculture, education, population and environment) on development outcomes in a wide range of political and institutional contexts. Prerequisite: ECON 105, or 101 and 102. (Rock, Division I)

ECON B234 Environmental Economics
Introduction to the use of economic analysis to explain the underlying behavioral causes of environmental and natural resource problems and to evaluate policy responses to them. Topics may include air and water pollution; the economic theory of externalities, public goods and the depletion of resources; cost-benefit analysis; valuing non-market benefits and costs; environmental justice; and sustainable development. Prerequisites: ECON 105, or 101 and 102. (Ross, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B234) Not offered in 2006-07.

ECON B236 The Economics of Globalization
An introduction to international economics through theory, policy issues and problems. The course surveys international trade and finance, as well as topics in international economics. It investigates why and what a nation trades, the consequences of such trade, the role of trade policy, the behavior and effects of exchange rates, and the macroeconomic implications of trade and capital flows. Topics may include the economics of free trade areas, world financial crises, outsourcing, immigration and foreign investment. Prerequisites: ECON 105, or 101 and 102. The course is not open to students who have taken ECON 206, 216 or 348. (Ceglowski, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

ECON B300 Intermediate Microeconomics
Systematic development of the analytical framework economists use to explain the behavior of consumers and firms. Determination of price; partial and general equilibria; welfare economics. Application to current economic problems. Prerequisites: ECON 105, or 101 and 102, MATH 101 (or equivalent), junior standing, or sophomore standing and one 200-level applied microeconomics elective. (Ross, Division I)

ECON B302 Intermediate Macroeconomics
The goal of this course is to provide a thorough understanding of the behavior of the aggregate economy and the likely effects of government stabilization policies. Models of output, inflation, unemployment and interest rates are developed, along with theories of consumption, investment, economic growth, exchange rates and the trade balance. These models are used to analyze the likely macroeconomic effects of fiscal and monetary policies and to explore current macroeconomic issues and problems. Prerequisites: ECON 105, or 101 and 102, MATH 101 or equivalent, and sophomore standing or permission of the instructor. (Ceglowski, Division I)

ECON B304 Introduction to Econometrics
The econometric theory presented in ECON 203 is further developed and its most important empirical applications are considered. Each student does an empirical research project using multiple regression and other statistical techniques. Prerequisites: ECON 203, 300, or both 302 and MATH 201. (Newburger, Division I)

ECON B306 Research Seminar: International Economics
Thesis seminar. Each student does a semester-long research project on a relevant topic of interest. Research topics in international trade or trade policy, international finance, international macroeconomics and international economic integration are appropriate. Prerequisites: ECON 206 and 300 or ECON 216 and 302, or permission of instructor. (Ceglowski, Division I)

ECON B313 Industrial Organization and Public Policy
Thesis seminar focusing on the ways that property rights, market structure, firm behavior and public policies interact to determine the impact of industries on economic welfare. Prerequisites: ECON 203, 300 and 213 or 234, or permission of instructor. (Ross, Division I)

ECON B314 Research Seminar: Topics in Social Policy
Thesis course for students with a background in one or more of the applied microeconomic fields concerned with social policy, including public finance, labor, urban economics and state and local economics. Each student does a semester-long research project on a relevant topic of interest. Examples of research topics include differences in resources and expenditures among communities; income distribution; the results of government programs to alleviate poverty; and discrimination. Prerequisites: ECON 203, 300 and at least one course from among 204, 208, 214, 215 or 324, or permission of instructor. (Newburger, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B314)

ECON B320 Research Seminar on the Financial System
Thesis seminar. Each student does a semester-long research project on a relevant topic of interest. Research topics may include the monetary and payment systems, financial markets and financial intermediaries from a microeconomic perspective. Group meetings will involve presentation and discussion of research in progress. Prerequisites: ECON 207, 300 and permission of instructor. (Redenius)

ECON B324 Seminar on the Economics of Poverty and Discrimination
Typically includes three modules covering topics in poverty and discrimination, two of which are chosen by the instructor; the third is chosen jointly by the instructor and the students. Examples include housing and labor market discrimination; distributional issues in educational finance; growth of inequality in the United States. Prerequisites: for economics majors, ECON 203 and 300 and at least one course among ECON 204, 208, 214 or 215; for non-majors, a statistics course and at least one course among ECON 204, 208, 214 or 215; or permission of instructor. (Newburger, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B334) Not offered in 2006-07.

ECON B335 East Asian Development
Identifies the core economic and political elements of an East Asian newly industrializing economies (NIEs) development model. Assesses the performance of this development model in Northeast (Korea and Taiwan) and Southeast Asia (Indonesia, Malaysia and Thailand) in a comparative perspective. Considers the debate over the impact of interventionist and selective development policies associated with this model on the development successes and failures of the East Asian NIEs. Prerequisites: ECON 300 or 302, or permission of instructor. (Rock, Division 1; cross-listed as CITY B336 and EAST B335) Not offered in 2006-07.

ECON B395 Research Seminar in Economic Development
Senior thesis seminar on economic development. Each student is expected to engage in a semester long research project on a relevant topic in economic development. The major work product for the seminar is a senior research paper of refereed journal article length. Students are expected to participate in all group meetings and all one-on-one meetings with the professor.

Prerequisites: ECON 225 and either ECON 300 or 302. (Rock, Division 1)

ECON B403 Supervised Work
An economics major may elect to do individual research. A semester-long research paper is required; it satisfies the 300-level research paper requirement. Students who register for 403 must submit an application form before the beginning of the semester (the form is available from the department chair). The permission of both the supervising faculty member and department chair is required. (Staff)

The Haverford Department of Economics is expected to offer the following courses during the 2006-07 academic year:

- ECON H100 Economics of Public Policy
- ECON H101 Introduction to Microeconomics
- ECON H102 Introduction to Macroeconomics
- ECON H203 Statistical Methods for Economics
- ECON H204 Statistics with Calculus
- ECON H205 Corporate Finance
- ECON H209 Law and Economics
- ECON H211 Soviet System and Its Demise
- ECON H224 Women in the Labor Market
- ECON H231 Marxian and Radical Political Economy
- ECON H240 Economic Development and Transformation: India and China
- ECON H247 Financial Accounting
- ECON H300 Intermediate Microeconomic Theory
- ECON H302 Intermediate Macroeconomic Theory
ECON H304 Econometrics
ECON H312 General Equilibrium Theory
ECON H347 Advanced Seminar in Macroeconomics
ECON H348 The Global Economy

Education

Students may complete a sequence of courses leading to Pennsylvania state certification to teach at the secondary level, complete requirements for certification in a fifth-year program or complete a minor in educational studies.

The Bryn Mawr/Haverford Education Program is built around three mutually informing pursuits: the interdisciplinary study of learning as a central human and cultural activity; the investigation of the politics of schooling as a powerful source of personal and societal development; and the preparation of lifelong teachers, learners and researchers. Students who complete one of the Education Program options are prepared to become leaders and change agents in whatever professional and human activities they pursue.

The Bryn Mawr/Haverford Education Program offers the following options to students interested in education: students may (1) take courses that are open to all interested students, (2) pursue a minor in educational studies, (3) complete a sequence of courses leading to certification to teach at the secondary (grades 7-12) level in Pennsylvania as part of the four-year undergraduate program, or (4) complete certification requirements begun as undergraduates in a fifth year at reduced tuition.

The certification sequence and the minor are described below. Students seeking certification or wishing to complete a minor should meet with the field placement coordinator and adviser as early as possible for advice on scheduling, preferably by the sophomore year. Once enrolled in either program, students must meet with the appropriate adviser at preregistration time each semester.

Requirements for Certification

The Bryn Mawr/Haverford Education Program is accredited by the state of Pennsylvania to prepare candidates for secondary certification (grades 7-12) in 14 fields: biology, chemistry, Chinese, citizenship education, English, French, German, Latin, mathematics, physics, Russian, social science, social studies and Spanish. Pursuit of certification in Chinese, German, Latin and Russian is subject to availability of student-teaching placements.

Students becoming certified in a foreign language have K-12 certification. Certain interdisciplinary majors and double majors (e.g., romance languages, comparative literature, East Asian studies) may also be eligible for certification provided they meet the Pennsylvania standards in one of the subject areas listed above.

To qualify for a teaching certificate, students must complete an academic major (listed above), college distribution requirements and the courses listed below:

1. EDUC 200 (Critical Issues in Education).
2. PSYC 203 (Educational Psychology).
3. Either EDUC 250 (Literacies and Education) or EDUC 210 (On the Margins)
4. One other education-related course (see program administrator for options)
5. EDUC 301 (Curriculum and Pedagogy Seminar).
6. EDUC 302 (Practice Teaching Seminar) and EDUC 303 (Practice Teaching). These courses are taken concurrently and earn triple credit.

Furthermore, in order to comply with the Pennsylvania certification regulations, there are courses within the academic major that are required for those becoming certified. Again, students should consult with the program administrator regarding course selection and sequencing.

Students preparing for certification must take two courses in English and two courses in math prior to being admitted to the certification program and must attain a grade point average of 3.0 or higher. They must attain a GPA of 2.7 or higher in EDUC 200 (Critical Issues in Education) and EDUC 301 (Curriculum and Pedagogy Seminar) in order to practice teach. They must have received a positive evaluation from their cooperating teacher in Critical Issues in Education and be recommended by the director of the Education Program and the chair of their major department. (Students should check with the program administrator regarding admission to the certification program as requirements change periodically.)

Critical Issues in Education should be taken by the end of the sophomore year if at all possible. The Curriculum and Pedagogy Seminar is offered during the fall semester for seniors and must precede Practice Teaching.

Practice Teaching is undertaken for 12 weeks in a local school during the spring semester of the senior year. Note: Practice Teaching is a commitment to be at a school for five full school days each week for those 12 weeks.

Requirements for the Minor in Educational Studies

The Bi-College minor in educational studies is designed for students with education-related interests, such as plans for graduate study in education, pursuit of elementary or secondary certification after graduation or careers that require educational expertise. A variety of management and training positions, positions in research, administration and policy, as well as professions in social work, health and law, involve using skills as an educator and knowledge about education. Because students interested in these or other education-related professions major in different subject areas and have different aspirations, they are encouraged to design a minor appropriate both to their major area of study and to their anticipated futures.

All minors in educational studies must consult with the field placement coordinator and Bryn Mawr adviser to design a coherent course of study that satisfies the requirements below:

- EDUC 200 Critical Issues in Education (Bryn Mawr and Haverford).
- Required education course (EDUC 210, 225, 240, 250, 260, 266 — see course descriptions below).
- Two education-related electives (see program administrator for options)
- EDUC 310 Defining Educational Practice (Haverford).
- EDUC 311 Field Work Seminar (Haverford).

The Portfolio

To synthesize their work in the minor or the certification program, students create a portfolio. The portfolio draws on the work students produce in their courses as well as in their other activities (volunteering, summer programs, community work, etc.); it serves as an ongoing forum through which students synthesize their studies. The portfolio is developed over the course of the student's college career and is completed in the Field Work Seminar (minor) or the Practice Teaching Seminar (certification). The portfolio consists of a series of artifacts, each accompanied by a one-page analysis of the significance of the piece of work.

Title II Reporting: Title II of the Higher Education Act (HEA) requires that a full teacher preparation report, including the institution's pass rate as well as the state's pass rate, be available to the public on request. Copies of the report may be requested from Ann Brown, program administrator and adviser, by e-mail at abrown@brynmawr.edu or phone at (610) 526-5376.

EDUC B200 Critical Issues in Education
An examination of major issues concerning educational reform through readings, discussions, writing and visits to a school context. Among the issues to be explored are the complexity of U.S. education's history and politics; the meaning of childhood, culture, freedom and difference; learning theories and pedagogical approaches; and the possibilities for educational reinvention and empowerment. Two hours a week of field work are required. Enrollment is limited to 25 students per section with priority given first to those pursuing certification or a minor in educational studies and then to seniors planning to teach. All sections of the course are writing intensive. (Cohen, Division I)

EDUC H210 On the Margins: Understanding and Transforming Special Education
This course examines such related issues as: the inherent relationship between knowledge and power, the goals of education, the legal and political history of special education, current identification and curricular strategies, as well as local administrative policies. Particular attention is paid to the roles that financial incentives and racial discrimination play in special education classification and programming. Students complete fieldwork in a school setting over the course of the semester. Enrollment is limited to 25 with priority given to students pursuing certification or the minor in educational studies. (Munoz-Miller)

EDUC B219 Writing in Theory/Writing in Practice
(Hemmeter, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B220) Not offered in 2006-07.

EDUC B220 Changing Pedagogies in Math and Science Education
This praxis course examines new pedagogies being used in math and science education and the issues that arise in successfully implementing these new pedagogies. Students have a placement (4-6 hours/week) with a local teacher who is undertaking some type of pedagogical change in math or science education. The course is being offered jointly by Bryn Mawr College and Arcadia University: several of the weekly sessions will take place at Arcadia. (Donnay) Not offered in 2006-07.

EDUC B225 Empowering Learners: Theory and Practice of Extra-Classroom Teaching
This course is designed for students who occupy learning support roles on or beyond campus. Students study and contribute to theory building in the field of extra-classroom, informal education, joining the professional conversation concerning the nuanced types and purposes of such educational endeavors. Ongoing Praxis field placements serve as sources of experiential learning, cross-setting inquiry and challenge as students develop as reflective, effective practitioners. Enrollment is limited to 20 with priority given to those already serving or engaged to serve as tutors (in contexts such as America Counts/America Reads and Haverford’s MAST Program) and those pursuing certification or a minor in educational studies. (Lesnick)
EDUC H250 Literacies and Education
A critical exploration of what counts as literacy, who decides, and what the implications are for teaching and learning. Students explore both their own and others experiences of literacy through reading and writing about power, privilege, access and responsibility around issues of adult, ESL, cultural, multicultural, gendered, academic and critical literacies. Field work required. (Writing Intensive Praxis I). Priority given first to those pursuing certification or a minor in educational studies. (Lesnick)

EDUC B251 Arts Teaching in Educational and Community Settings
(Cantor, Division III; cross-listed as ARTA B251) Not offered in 2006-07.

EDUC H260 Multicultural Education
An investigation of the notion of multicultural education. This course problematizes the history, meanings, purposes and outcomes of multicultural education and engages students in researching and reinventing what is possible in education for, with and about a diverse world. Field work required. Enrollment limited to 25. Priority given first to those pursuing certification or a minor in Educational Studies. (Cohen)

EDUC B266 Schools in American Cities
This course examines issues, challenges and possibilities of urban education in contemporary America. We use as critical lenses issues of race, class and culture; urban learners, teachers and school systems; and restructuring and reform. While we look at urban education nationally over several decades, we use Philadelphia as a focal "case" that students investigate through documents and school placements. Enrollment is limited to 25 with priority given to students pursuing certification or the minor in educational studies and to majors in sociology and growth and structure of cities. This is a Praxis I course. (Cohen, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B266 and SOCL B266)

EDUC B301 Curriculum and Pedagogy Seminar
A consideration of theoretical and applied issues related to effective curriculum design, pedagogical approaches and related issues of teaching and learning. Fieldwork is required. Enrollment is limited to 15 with priority given first to students pursuing certification and second to seniors planning to teach. (Cook-Sather, Division I)

EDUC B302 Practice Teaching Seminar
Drawing on participants' diverse student teaching placements, this seminar invites exploration and analysis of ideas, perspectives and approaches to teaching at the middle and secondary levels. Taken concurrently with Practice Teaching. Open only to students engaged in practice teaching. (Cook-Sather, Division I)

EDUC B303 Practice Teaching in Secondary Schools
Supervised teaching in secondary schools (12 weeks). Two units of credit are given for this course. Open only to students preparing for state certification. (Cook-Sather)

EDUC H310 Defining Educational Practice
An interdisciplinary inquiry into the work of teaching and learning in education-related contexts. Three to five hours of field work required per week. Enrollment lim-
Students may complete a major or minor in English. Within the major, students may complete a concentration in creative writing. English majors may also complete concentrations in Africana studies, in environmental studies and in gender and sexuality.

The Department of English offers students the opportunity to develop a sense of initiative and responsibility for the enterprise of interpretation. Through its course offerings, individual mentoring and intense conversations in and out of class, the department provides rigorous intellectual training in the history, methods and theory of the discipline.

With their advisers, English majors design a program of study that expands their knowledge of diverse genres, literary traditions and periods. We encourage students to explore the history of cultural production and critical reception and also to interrogate the presuppositions of literary study. A rich variety of courses allows students to engage with all periods and genres of literatures in English, including modern forms such as film and contemporary digital media.

The department stresses critical thinking, incisive written and oral analysis of texts, and the integration of imaginative, critical and theoretical approaches. The major culminates in an independently written essay, in which each student synthesizes her creative and critical learning experience.

Major Requirements

The English major requires at least 11 course selections, including three required courses: ENGL 250, 398 and 399. Of the eight elective English courses, at least two must be at the 300 level; one of the 200-level courses may be a unit of creative writing. After having completed at least two 200-level courses, students take ENGL 250 (Methods of Literary Study) in their sophomore or junior year. In their senior year, students enroll in ENGL 398 (Senior Conference) in the fall and ENGL 399 (Senior Essay) in the spring.

As students construct their English major, they should seek to include:

- Historical depth/construction of traditions.
- Breadth, to include more than one genre, more than one cultural tradition.
- Courses that build on one another.
- Exposure to several approaches, theories or models of interpretation.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for an English minor are ENGL 250 and five second-year or advanced units in English literature. At least one unit must be at an advanced (300) level.

Concentration in Creative Writing

Students may elect a concentration in creative writing. This option requires that, among the eight course selections besides ENGL 250, 398 and 399, three units will be in creative writing; one of the creative writing units may be at the 300 level and may count as one of the two required 300-level courses for the major.

Other Concentrations

The Department of English contributes courses toward concentrations in Africana studies (see page 59), in environmental studies (see page 147), and in gender and sexuality studies (see page 164).

ENGL B125 Writing Workshop

This course offers students who have already taken College Seminar 001 an opportunity to develop their skills as college writers. Through frequent practice, class discussion and in-class collaborative activity, students will become familiar with all aspects of the writing process and will develop their ability to write for an academic audience. The class will address a number of writing issues: formulating questions; analyzing purpose; generating ideas; structuring and supporting arguments; marshalling evidence; using sources effectively; and developing a clear, flexible academic voice. Students will meet regularly with the course instructor, individually and in small groups, to discuss their work. (staff)

ENGL B126 Writing Workshop for Non-Native Speakers of English
This course offers non-native speakers of English a chance to develop their skills as college writers. Through frequent practice, class discussion and in-class collaborative activity, students will become familiar with the writing process and will learn to write for an academic audience. Student writers in the class will be guided through the steps of composing and revising college essays: formulating questions; analyzing purpose; generating ideas; structuring and supporting arguments; marshalling evidence; using sources effectively; and developing a clear, flexible academic voice. Writers will receive frequent feedback from peers and the instructor. (staff)

ENGL B201 Chaucer: Canterbury Tales
Access to and skill in reading Middle English will be acquired through close study of the Tales. Exploration of Chaucer’s narrative strategies and of a variety of critical approaches to the work will be the major undertakings of the semester. (Taylor, Division III)

ENGL B204 Literatures of American Expansion
This course will explore the relationship between U.S. narratives that understand national expansion as “manifest destiny” and narratives that understand the same phenomenon as imperial conquest. We will ask why the ingredients of such fictions — dangerous savages, empty landscapes, easy money and lawless violence — often combine to make the master narrative of “America,” and we will explore how and where that master narrative breaks down. Critical readings will engage discourses of nation, empire, violence, race and sexuality. Texts will include novels, travel narratives, autobiographies, legal documents and cultural ephemera. (Schneider, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B205 Introduction to Film
This course is intended to provide students with the tools of critical film analysis. Through readings of images and sounds, sections of films and entire narratives, students will cultivate the habits of critical viewing and establish a foundation for focused work in film studies. The course introduces formal and technical units of cinematic meaning and categories of genre and history that add up to the experiences and meanings we call cinema. Although much of the course material will focus on the Hollywood style of film, examples will be drawn from the history of cinema. Attendance at weekly screenings is mandatory. (Horne, Division III; cross-listed as HART B205)

ENGL B207 Big Books of American Literature
This course focuses on the “big books” of mid-19th-century American literature, viewed through the lenses of contemporary theory and culture. Throughout the course, as we explore the role that classics play in the construction of our culture, we will consider American literature as an institutional apparatus, under debate and by no means settled. This will involve a certain amount of multidisciplinary work: interrogating books as naturalized objects, asking how they reproduce conventional categories and how we might re-imagine the cultural work they perform. We will look at the problems of exceptionality as we examine traditional texts relationally, comparatively and interactively. (Dalke, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B210 Renaissance Literature: Performances of Gender
Readings chosen to highlight the construction and performance of gender identity during the period from 1550 to 1650 and the ways in which the gender anxieties of 16th- and 17th-century men and women differ from, yet speak to, our own. Texts will include plays, poems, prose fiction, diaries and polemical writing of the period. (Hedley, Division III)

ENGL B211 Renaissance Lyric
Both the continuity of the lyric tradition that begins with Wyatt and the distinctiveness of each poet’s work are established. Consideration is given to the social and literary contexts in which lyric poetry was written. Poets include Donne, Herbert, Jonson, Shakespeare, Sidney, Spenser and Wyatt. (Hedley, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B212 Thinking Sex: Representing Desire and Difference
In this class we will examine our ability to put sexual experience into language. As we look at the various ways in which sexuality can be expressed linguistically, we will ask whether (and if so, why) it is “necessary” to “put sex into” language and explore what various scientific, social-scientific and literary discourses of desire look and sound like. What are the capacities and limitations of each? What other languages might be used? Can we imagine a curriculum to do this work? Can we teach such a curriculum? Praxis I course. (Dalke, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B214 Here and Queer: Placing Sexuality
The power of the marching-cry “We’re here. We’re queer. Get used to it.” emanates from the ambiguity of the adverb “here.” Where is “here?” In the face of exclusion from civic domains, does queerness form its own geography or nationality? This course will ask what it means to imagine a queer nation, and will work towards theorizing relations between modern constructions of sexuality, nationality and ethnicity. We will pay particular attention to the ways in which assertion of queer presence can cut both ways: both countering discourses of displacement and functioning as vehicles for colonial or racial chauvinism. (Thomas, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B220 Writing in Theory/Writing in Practice
This course is designed for students interested in tutoring college or high-school writers or teaching writing at the secondary-school level. Readings in current composition studies will pair texts that reflect writing theory with those that address practical strategies for working with academic writers. To put pedagogic theory into practice, the course will offer a praxis dimension. Students will spend a few hours a week working in local public school classrooms or writing centers. In-class collaborative work on writing assignments will allow students to develop writing skills and share their insights into the writing process with others. (Hemmeter, Division III; cross-listed as EDUC B219) Not offered in 2006-07.
ENGL B221, B222 Early Modern English Drama to 1642
This two-semester survey of the astonishing growth, variety, culture and excellence of theater in England during the reigns of the Tudor and Stuart monarchs (1498-1642) will include examples of all genres and modes: Ford, Greene, Jonson, Marlowe, Marston, Peele and Webster, among many other authors, will be read and discussed from numerous perspectives. 221 (Tudor Drama) is not a prerequisite for 222 (Stuart Drama): a student may elect to take either course or both. (Rowe, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B223 The Story of Evolution and the Evolution of Stories
In this course we will experiment with two interrelated and reciprocal inquiries — whether the biological concept of evolution is a useful one in understanding the phenomena of literature (in particular, the generation of new stories), and whether literature contributes to a deeper understanding of evolution. We will begin with several science texts that explain and explore evolution and turn to stories that (may) have grown out of one another, asking where they come from, why new ones emerge, and why some disappear. We will consider the parallels between diversity of stories and diversity of living organisms. Lecture three hours a week. (Dalke, Grobstein, Division II or III; cross-listed as BIOL B223)

ENGL B225 Shakespeare
A basic introduction to the plays of Shakespeare. Course emphases will include Shakespeare’s dramaturgy, the material text, Bardolatry, adaptation, gender performance, symbolic geography, Shakespearean recycling. Readings will include selections from the Sonnets, “A Lover’s Discourse,” Titus Andronicus, Measure for Measure, Twelfth Night, Henry V, Othello, Antony and Cleopatra, The Winter’s Tale, Macbeth, The Two Noble Kinsmen. (Rowe, Division III)

ENGL B227 American Attractions: Leisure, Technology and National Identity
(Ullman, Division III; cross-listed as HIST B227)

ENGL B229 Movies and Mass Politics
This course will trace in the history of movie forms a series of debates about the ways that nations can become mass societies, focusing mostly on the ways that Hollywood movies countered the appeals of Communism and Fascism. (Tratner, Division III; cross-listed as COML B229) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B231 Modernism in Anglo-American Poetry
The purpose of this course will be to familiarize students with the broad outlines of that movement in all the arts known as Modernism, and in particular to familiarize them with Modernism as it was evolved in Anglo-American poetry — both from its American sources (Marianne Moore, Wallace Stevens, William Carlos Williams) and from its European sources (T.S. Eliot, Ezra Pound, Gertrude Stein). The course is intended to prepare students for ENGL 232, American Poetry Since World War II; together, these courses are intended to provide an overview of American poetry in the 20th century. (Kirchwey, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.
ENGL B232 Voices In and Out of School: American Poetry Since World War II
This course will survey the main developments in American poetry since 1945, both as made manifest in “movements” (whether or not self-consciously identified as such) and in highly original and distinctive poetic voices. The course will consider the work of the Beats, Black Mountain poets, Confessional poets, New York School, political-engagement poets, post-New Criticism poets, Poundians, Surrealists, Whitmanians, Zen and the environment poets, and other individual and unaffiliated voices. (Kirchwey, Division III)

ENGL B234 Postcolonial Literature in English
This course will survey a broad range of novels and poems written while countries were breaking free of British Colonial rule. Readings will also include cultural theorists interested in defining literary issues that arise from the postcolonial situation. (Tratner, Division III; cross-listed as COML B234)

ENGL B238 Silent Film: International Film to 1930
This course surveys the history of cinema as commercial product and specific cultural form, from the years surrounding the technological advent of moving images to just before the commercial addition of synchronous sound. An overview of the rise of national cinemas in the silent era, we will discuss the aesthetic movements and traditions of the period as they pertain to changes in social and cultural contexts of cinema. This course will incorporate accounts of cinema presented in audience ethnographies, the documentary history of the cinema and film publicity. Past topics included: DeMille, Griffith, Micheaux and the Birth of Film Art. (Horne, Division III; cross-listed as HART B238)

ENGL B239 Women and Cinema
This course explores the wide range of roles played by women throughout the 100-year history of filmmaking. If the representation of women on the silver screen has tended to be narrow and damaging, these images are only part of the larger picture of women’s involvement in cinema. The course examines the spectrum of generic images of women in feature films. It also locates where else women have been represented in the industry and examines the impact women have had on film culture as writers, editors, directors, publicity agents, technical artists and as film exhibitors and critics. (Horne, Division III; cross-listed as HART B239) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B240 Readings in English Literature 1660-1744
The rise of new literary genres and the contemporary efforts to find new definitions of heroism and wit, good taste and good manners, sin and salvation, individual identity and social responsibility, and the pressure exerted by changing social, intellectual and political contexts of literature. Readings from Defoe, Dryden, early feminist writers, Pope, Restoration dramatists and Swift. (Briggs, Division III)

ENGL B242 Historical Introduction to English Poetry I
This course traces the development of English poetry from 1360 to 1700, emphasizing forms, themes and conventions that have become part of the continuing vocabulary of poetry, and exploring the strengths and
ENGL B243 Historical Introduction to English Poetry II
The development of English poetry from 1700 to the present. This course is a continuation of ENGL 242 but can be taken independently. Featured poets: Browning, Seamus Heaney, Christina Rossetti, Derek Walcott and Wordsworth. (Briggs, Division III)

ENGL B246 Scribbling Sisters: Pan-African Women Writers
An intensive study of seven works by six artists representing constructed experiences in the Caribbean, Africa and the United States. We will focus primarily on intertextual conversations between and among these works, the use of memory as subject as well as intellectual idea, differences between and among works created in different centuries and cultural settings, and the reshaping of genre(s) on the part of these artists. Featured works: The Salt Eaters (Bambara), Parable of the Talents and Parable of the Sower (Butler), Maru (Head), Contending Forces (Hopkins), The Chosen Place, The Timeless People (Marshall) and Paradise (Morrison). (Beard, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B249 Beauty: A Conversation Between Chemistry and Culture
This course will explore the topic of “beauty,” ranging from the molecular to the political levels, with considerable time spent on aesthetics. The conversation will occur in four stages — Exploring Form: What Is Beautiful; Apprehending the Physical World: The Structures of Nature; Appreciating Beautiful Objects: What Moves Us, How and Why; and The Shaping Work of Politics or The Ethical Turn: On Beauty and Being Just. The class will draw heavily on the work of John Dewey (whose Art as Experience will be a guiding text). There will be aesthetic objects on-and-about which we will conduct our analysis of beauty. (Burgmayer, Dalke, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B250 Methods of Literary Study
Through course readings, we will explore the power of language in a variety of linguistic, historical, disciplinary, social and cultural contexts and investigate shifts in meaning as we move from one discursive context to another. Students will be presented with a wide range of texts that explore the power of the written word and provide a foundational basis for the critical and creative analysis of literary studies. Students will also refine their faculties of reading closely, writing incisively and passionately, asking speculative and productive questions, producing their own compelling interpretations and listening carefully to the textual readings offered by others. (staff, Division III)

ENGL B251 Eating Culture: Britain and Food 1789-1929
This class will explore British culinary culture across the long 19th century, paying particular attention to the relationship of food to the 19th century colonial and imperial discourse. We will also work towards theorizing the materiality of food. Units may include: sugar and slavery; industrialization and chocolate; corn laws, potato famine and rebellion; vegetarian-ism and socialism; cannibalism and vampirism. (Thomas, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B254 Subjects and Citizens in American Literature, 1750-1900: Female Subjects
This course traces the changing representation of the citizen in U.S. literatures and cultural ephemera of the 18th and 19th centuries. We will explore the ideal of American civic masculinity as it developed alongside discourses about freedom and public virtue. The course will focus on the challenges to the ideals of citizenship produced by conflicts over slavery, women’s suffrage, homosexuality and Native-white relations. In addition to critical articles, legal and political documents, and archival ephemera, texts may include works by Henry Adams, Margaret Fuller, Thomas Jefferson, Herman Melville, Catharine Maria Sedgwick, Harriet Beecher Stowe and Harriet Wilson. (Schneider, Division III)

ENGL B259 Victorian Literature and Culture
Examines a broad range of Victorian poetry, prose and fiction in the context of the cultural practices, social institutions and critical thought of the time. Of particular interest are the revisions of gender, sexuality, class, nation, race, empire and public and private life that occurred during this period. (Thomas, Division III)

ENGL B262 Survey in African American Literature: Laughin’ to Keep from Cryin’
A study of African American representations of the comedic in literary and cinematic texts, in the mastery of an inherited deconstructive muse from Africa, and in lyrics that journey from African insult poetry to Caribbean calypso to contemporary rap. We will examine multiple theories about the shape and use of comedy, and decide what amendments and emendments to make to these based on the central texts of our analysis. (Beard, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B263 Toni Morrison and the Art of Narrative Conjure
All of Morrison’s primary imaginative texts, in publication order, as well as essays by Morrison, with a series of critical lenses that explore several vantages for reading a conjured narration. (Beard, Division III)

ENGL B277 Nabokov in Translation
(Harte, Division III; cross-listed as RUSS B277)

ENGL B279 Introduction to African Literature
Taking into account the oral, written, aural and visual forms of African “texts” over several thousand years, this course will explore literary production, translation and audience/critical reception. Representative works to be studied include oral traditions, the Sundiata Epic, Chinua Achebe’s Anthills of the Savannah, Ayi Kwei Armah’s Fragments, Mariama Bâ’s Si Longe une Lettre, Tsitsi Danga-rembga’s Nervous Conditions, Bessie Head’s Maru, Sembène Ousmane’s Xala, plays by Wole Soyinka and his Burden of History, The Muse of Forgiveness and Ngugi wa Thiong’o’s A Grain of Wheat. We will address the “transliteration” of Christian and Muslim languages and theologies in these works. (Beard, Division III; cross-listed as COML B279) Not offered in 2006-07.
ENGL B281 Power and Place in Literature and Film
In examining the intersection of power and place in literature and film, we will explore how people, ideas and history collide to produce both the possibility of conflict and of new forms of community. We will redefine place over the duration of the course as it relates to questions of home, national and/or cultural belonging, social status and the like. A change of place may be salutary or destructive or both. It might be generated by global forces, such as colonialism, or it might be the result of a more personal and individual quest. (Ladva, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B284 Women Poets: Giving Eurydice a Voice
This course covers English and American woman poets of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries whose gender was important for their self-understanding as poets, their choice of subject matter, and the audience they sought to gain for their work. Featured poets include Emily Dickinson, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Christina Rossetti, Gertrude Stein, H. D., Marianne Moore, Gwendolyn Brooks, Lucille Clifton, Elizabeth Bishop, Anne Sexton, Adrienne Rich and Sylvia Plath. (staff)

ENGL B299 History of Narrative Cinema
(King, Division III; cross-listed as HART B299)

All courses at the 300-level are limited in enrollment and require permission of the instructor to register.

ENGL B306 Film Theory
This course is an introduction to major developments in film theory and criticism. Topics covered include: the specificity of film form; cinematic realism; the cinematic "author"; the politics and ideology of cinema; the relation between cinema and language; spectatorship, identification and subjectivity; archival and historical problems in film studies; the relation between film studies and other disciplines of aesthetic and social criticism. Each week of the syllabus pairs critical writing(s) on a central principle of film analysis with a cinematic example. Class will be divided between discussion of critical texts and attempts to apply them to a primary cinematic text. (staff, Division III; cross-listed as COML B306 and HART B306) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B309 Native American Literature
This course focuses on late-20th-century Native literatures that attempt to remember and redress earlier histories of dispersal and genocide. We will ask how various writers with different tribal affiliations engage in discourses of humor, memory, repetition and cultural performance to refuse, rework or lampoon inherited constructions of the "Indian" and "Indian" history and culture. We will read fiction, film and contemporary critical approaches to Native literatures alongside much earlier texts, including oral histories, political speeches, law and autobiography. Readings may include works by Sherman Alexie, Diane Glancy, Thomas King, N. Scott Momaday, Leslie Marmon Silko and Gerald Vizenor. (Schneider, Division III)
ENGL B310 Victorian Media
This course proposes that the Victorian era was an information age — an age in which the recording, transmission and circulation of language was revolutionized. The railroad, the postal system, the telegraph, the typewriter and the telephone were all 19th-century inventions. These communication technologies appeared to bring about "the annihilation of time and space" and we will examine how they simultaneously located and dislocated the 19th-century British citizen. We will account for the fears, desires and politics of the 19th-century "mediated" citizen and analyze the networks of affiliation that became "intermediated": family, nation, community, erotics and empire. (Thomas, Division III)

ENGL B316 Spenserian Allegory
This course will focus on Edmund Spenser's allegorical epic, The Faerie Queene, which will be read in its entirety to gain access to the rich resources of the allegorical mode as it was understood and practiced in the Middle Ages and the Renaissance: resources for staging self-confrontation, constructing and reconstructing the experience of falling in love, and probing the mysteries of life and death, good and evil. The course will also explore the allegorical mode in the 19th and 20th centuries, as it appears in works such as Ralph Ellison's Invisible Man and Nathaniel Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter. (Hedley, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B317 Exhibition and Inhibition: Movies, Pleasures and Social Control
This course is a wide-ranging exploration of what it means to go to the movies. In it, we investigate the changing nature of the cinema in society — including all cinematic modes of display and exhibition, spanning pre-cinematic visual technologies to more recent film and video practices. Topics covered include audience segregation, film censorship and the reform movement, the Hollywood production code, movie theater architecture, fan cultures of various kinds, journalistic and narrative accounts of moviegoing, and the shift from analog to digital images. Readings from film and cultural theory on mass spectacle, the observer, the spectator and the mass audience will shape our discussion and guide our individual research. (Horne, Division III; cross-listed as HART B317) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B319 A Sense of Place
The purposes of this course are to explore strategies for the artistic representation of place and to look into historical, emblematic and theoretical dimensions of literary and pictorial settings. The course will also ask whether classical, European and American writers sought to realize settings in similar or distinctively different ways. (Briggs, Division III; cross-listed as COML B319) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B321 Early Stages: Medieval and Renaissance Drama
A thematic survey of English medieval and Renaissance drama, from the early comic allegory, Mankynde, through Shakespeare's tragedies and romances, to bloody Jacobean revenge tragedies. The course will have three goals: to study a central critical problem in the context of this early drama, drawing on current criticism; to introduce students to advanced research techniques; to take students through the process of writing a long, analytic essay. Prerequisite: at least one course in medieval or Renaissance drama, theater or history. (Rowe, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B326 Topics in Renaissance Literature
(Rowe, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B327 Feminist Film Theory and Practice
(King, Division III; cross-listed as HART B327) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B329 Screen Melodrama
This course will explore the broad range of sentimental and sensationalist techniques used in the melodramatic mode of representation on screen. Our focus will be on the affective and spectacular strategies of film and television drama, and narratives in which ethical or moral judgement result in redemption, salvation or punishment. Topics to include: Hollywood’s “woman’s weepies”; Bollywood spectacle; race films; the culture of kitsch; the family romance; rescue fantasies; music and melodrama. Critical approaches to melodrama drawn from classical literary theory, psychoanalytic and classical film theory, and feminist theory. Prerequisite: ENGL B205 or HART B299 and junior or senior standing. (Horne, Division III; cross-listed as HART B329)

ENGL B330 Writing Indians: Sidekicking the American Canon
How have written Indians — the Tontos, Fridays, Pocahontases and Queequegs of the American canon — been adopted, mimicked, performed and undermined by Native American authors? This course will examine how canonical and counter-canonical texts invent and reinvent the place of the Indian across the continuing literary “discovery” of America from 1620 to the present. Readings include The Last of the Mohicans, The Lone Ranger and Tonto Fistfight in Heaven, Moby Dick and Robinson Crusoe. Critical texts, research presentations, written assignments and intensive seminar discussion will address questions of cultural sovereignty, mimesis, literacy versus orality, literary hybridity, intertextuality and citation. (Schneider, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B334 Topics in Film Studies: Orientalism and Cinema
(King, Division III; cross-listed as HART B334)

ENGL B340 Brown Affect: Narrating Latina and Latino Lives
(Lima, Division III; cross-listed as SPAN B329) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B349 Theories of Authorship in the Cinema
(King; cross-listed as HART B349) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B361 Transformations of the Sonnet: Petrarch to Marilyn Hacker
Theory and practice of the sonnet in the Renaissance, 19th and 20th centuries. Sonnets and sonnet sequences by Barrett Browning, Countee Cullen, Dante, Dove, Frost, H.D., Hacker, Hopkins, Millay, Petrarch, Christina Rossetti, Shakespeare, Sidney, Wordsworth and others. (Hedley, Division III)

ENGL B362 African American Literature: Hypercanonical Codes
Intensive study of six 18th-21st century hypercanonical African American written and visual texts (and critical responses) with specific attention to the tradition's long use of speaking in code and in multiple registers simultaneously. Focus on language as a tool of opacity as well as transparency, translation, transliteration, invention and resistance. Previous reading required. (Beard, Division III)

ENGL B369 Women Poets: Gwendolyn Brooks, Adrienne Rich, Sylvia Plath
In this seminar we will be playing three poets off against each other, all of whom came of age during the 1950s. We will plot each poet's career in relation to the public and personal crises that shaped it, giving particular attention to how each poet constructed "poethood" for herself. (Hedley, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B379 The African Griot(te)
A focused exploration of the multi-genre productions of Southern African writer Bessie Head and the critical responses to such works. Students are asked to help construct a critical-theoretical framework for talking about a writer who defies categorization or reduction. (Beard, Division III)

ENGL B385 Problems in Satire
An exploration of the methodological and theoretical underpinnings of great satire in works by Blake, Dryden, Pope, Rabelais, Smiley, Swift, Wilde and others. (Briggs, Division III)

ENGL B398 Senior Seminar
Required preparation for ENGL 399 (Senior Essay). Through weekly seminar meetings and regular writing and research assignments, students will explore a senior essay topic or topics of their choice, frame exciting and practical questions about it, and develop a writing plan for its execution. Students will leave the course with a departmentally approved senior essay prospectus, an annotated bibliography on their chosen area of inquiry, and 10 pages of writing towards their senior essay. Students must pass the course to enroll in ENGL 399. (Hedley, Hemmeter, Schneider)

ENGL B399 Senior Essay
Supervised independent writing project required of all English majors. Students must successfully complete ENGL 398 (Senior Conference) and have their Senior Essay prospectus approved by the department before they enroll in ENGL 399. (Schneider) Not offered in 2006-07.

ENGL B403 Supervised Work
Advanced students may pursue independent research projects. Permission of the instructor and major adviser is required. (staff)

THE JOHANNA ALDERFER HARRIS ENVIRONMENTAL STUDIES PROGRAM

Students may complete an environmental studies concentration as an adjunct to a major in any of the participating departments or programs: Anthropology, Biology, Chemistry, Economics, English, Geology, Growth and Structure of Cities, or Political Science.

Director
Richard Davis, Anthropology (semester I)
Karen Greif, Biology (semester II)

Steering Committee
Donald C. Barber, Geology and Environmental Studies (on leave 2006-07)
Peter Briggs, English
Richard Davis, Anthropology
Carol Hager, Political Science
Gary McDonogh, Growth and Structure of Cities (on leave 2006-07)
Christopher Oze, Geology
Catherine Riihimaki, Geology
Michael Rock, Economics
David Ross, Economics
Ellen Stroud, Growth and Structure of Cities and Environmental Studies
Neal Williams, Biology (on leave 2006-07)

The environmental studies concentration is an interdisciplinary program involving departments and programs in the natural and social sciences and humanities. The concentration allows students to explore the interactions among earth systems, human societies and local and global environments.

General inquiries concerning the concentration should go to the Environmental Studies Director listed above or to Donald Barber, (dbarber@brynmawr.edu). The listed contact persons on the environmental studies steering committee can answer questions pertaining to the concentration in their departments.

The concentration consists of six courses, four of which are fixed, and two of which are chosen from approved groups. Students should consult the catalog listings of their major department for disciplinary coursework specific to the concentration, if any. Additional program information is available on the environmental studies Web site: http://www.brynmawr.edu/es.

All concentrators must complete GEOL/CITY B103 Earth Systems and the Environment, followed by BIOL B220 Ecology. Students starting the concentration in Fall 2006 must also take CITY B175 Environment and Society, preferably either immediately before or immediately after GEOL/CITY B103. As seniors, all concentrators reconvene in the Environmental Studies Senior Seminar (ANTH/BIOL/CITY/GEOL B397) to discuss in-depth issues within a broader environmental theme, set by mutual consent at the beginning of the semester.

Because the environmental studies concentration seeks to provide perspective on policy questions and the human sides of environmental issues, students must choose courses outside the natural sciences. One of these courses should address issues of planning and policy, and one other should address issues of humans in the environment. Available recommended courses are listed below, divided into these two groups. Alternative courses not shown below also may fulfill these requirements, but the environmental studies director must approve any such course substitution. Students also are encouraged, but not required, to take additional science courses to augment their curriculum; possible courses are listed below. In addition to checking with the department environmental studies contact, each student's coursework plan for the concentration must be reviewed by the environmental studies director.

Note: Some classes shown below have prerequisites; some are not offered every year. College divisions and how often each course is offered are shown (subject to change).

For a number of the courses above, especially those with a substantial component of independent inquiry, students are encouraged to select environmental topics.

In her senior year, in addition to the Environmental Studies Senior Seminar, each student should show evidence of advanced work in environmental studies. This may consist of a research project, a major thesis, or in some departments it would be a 300-level course in which the student deals extensively with environmental issues. In selected cases, with approval of the major department adviser and the environmental studies director, this advanced work may be undertaken as an internship or Praxis course. Additional courses of interest to students of all disciplines include courses at University of Pennsylvania or Swarthmore College. Certain classes from Junior Year Abroad programs may fulfill requirements for the concentration if pre-approved. These include special environmental programs like the University of Kansas Costa Rica programs and the programs sponsored by Swarthmore in Eastern Europe.

Given the flexible requirements of the concentration, it is important that students plan their curriculum as early as possible. Ideally planning should start no later than the first semester of the sophomore year.

Film Studies

Students may complete a minor in Film Studies.

Steering Committee

Timothy Harte, Department of Russian Jennifer Horne, Department of English
Homay King, Department of History of Art, Director
Imke Meyer, Department of German
Katherine Rowe, Department of English
Lisa Saltzman, Department of History of Art
Michael Tratner, Department of English
Sharon Ullman, Department of History

Film studies is an interdisciplinary field of inquiry bringing a range of analytical methods to bear upon films, film audiences and the social and industrial contexts of film production, promotion and consumption. The courses that comprise the minor in Film Studies reflect the diversity of approaches in the academic study of cinema. The minor is anchored by core courses in formal analysis, history and theory. Elective courses in particular film styles, directors, national cinemas, genres, areas of theory and criticism, and issues in film culture add both breadth and depth to this program of study.

Currently, film studies is a Bryn Mawr College minor: students must take a majority of courses on the Bryn Mawr campus. Minors are, however, encouraged to consider courses offered in the Tri-College consortium and at the University of Pennsylvania. Students should consult the director of the Film Studies Program before they declare the film studies minor to ensure that their course selections will be approved.

Minor Requirements

In consultation with the program director, students design a program of study that includes a range of film genres, styles, national cinemas, eras and disciplinary and methodological approaches. The minor consists of a total of six courses and must include the following:

1. One introductory course in the formal analysis of film (e.g., ENGL/HART 205 Introduction to Film Studies; ENGL/HART 299 Introduction to Narrative Cinema)
2. One course in film history or an area of film history (e.g., ENGL/HART 238 Film History; RUSS 110 Soviet and East European Cinema of the 1960s: War, Politics and Gender, ENGL/HART 317 Exhibition and Inhibition)
3. One course in film theory or an area of film theory (e.g., ENGL/HART 306 Film Theory; ENGL/HART 349 Theories of Authorship in Cinema; ENGL/HART 327 Feminist Film Theory and Practice)
4. Three electives.

At least one of the six courses must be at the 300 level. Courses that fall into two or more of the above categories may fulfill the requirement of the student's choosing, but may not fulfill more than one requirement simultaneously. Final approval is at the discretion of the coordinator of the Film Studies Program.

Film studies courses currently offered at Bryn Mawr include:

- ENGL B205 Introduction to Film Studies
- ENGL B238 Film History: Silent Cinema
- ENGL B324 Shakespeare and Film
- ENGL B329 Screen Melodrama
- GERM B223 Topics in German Cultural Studies: Global Masculinity: Male Body in Contemporary Cinema
- GERM B245 Interdisciplinary Approaches to German Literature and Culture: Nation and Identity in Post-War Austrian Literature
- GERM B320 No Place Like Home: Nostalgia in German and American Literature and Film
- HART B110 Identification in the Cinema
- HART B276 Topics in Contemporary Art: Video Art
- HART B299 History of Narrative Film
- HART B334 Topics in Film Studies: Orientalism and Cinema
- HIST B227 American Attractions
- RUSS B365 Russian/Soviet Film
- RUSS B110 Soviet and East European Cinema
FINE ARTS

Students may complete a major in Fine Arts at Haverford College.

Faculty
Gerald Cyrus, Visiting Assistant Professor
Hee Sook Kim, Assistant Professor
Ying Li, Associate Professor and Chair
Marianne Weil, Visiting Assistant Professor
William E. Williams, Professor

The fine arts courses offered by the department are structured to accomplish the following: (1) For students not majoring in fine arts: to develop a visual perception of form and to present knowledge and understanding of it in works of art. (2) For students intending to major in fine arts: beyond the foregoing, to promote thinking in visual terms and to foster the skills needed to give expression to these in a coherent body of art works.

Major Requirements
Fine arts majors are required to concentrate in either painting, drawing, sculpture, photography or printmaking: ARTS 101-123, two different 200-level courses outside the area of concentration; two 200-level courses and one 300-level course within that area; three art history courses to be taken at Bryn Mawr College, and Senior Departmental Studies 499. For majors intending to do graduate work, it is strongly recommended that they take an additional 300-level studio course within their area of concentration and an additional art history course at Bryn Mawr College.

ARTS H101 Arts Foundation-Drawing (Li)
ARTS H102 Arts Foundation-Drawing (Weil)
ARTS H103 Arts Foundation-Photography (Cyrus)
ARTS H104 Arts Foundation-Sculpture (Weil)
ARTS H106 Arts Foundation-Drawing (Weil)
ARTS H107 Arts Foundation-Painting (Li)
ARTS H108 Arts Foundation-Photography (Williams)
ARTS H109 Arts Foundation-Sculpture (Weil)
ARTS H120 Foundation Printmaking: Silkscreen
A seven-week course covering various techniques and approaches to silkscreen, including painterly monoprint, stencils, direct drawing and photo-silkscreen. Emphasizing the expressive potential of the medium to create a personal visual statement. (Kim)

ARTS H121 Foundation Printmaking: Relief Printing
A seven-week course covering various techniques and approaches to the art of the woodcut and the linocut, emphasizing the study of design principles and the expressive potential of the medium to create a personal visual statement. (Kim)
ARTS H122 Foundation Printmaking: Lithography
A seven-week course covering various techniques and approaches to lithography, including stone and plate preparation, drawing materials, editioning, black and white printing. Emphasizing the expressive potential of the medium to create a personal visual statement. (Kim) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTS H123 Foundation Printmaking: Etching
A seven-week course covering various techniques and approaches to intaglio printmaking including monotypes, soft and hard ground, line, aquatint, chine collage and viscosity printing. Emphasizing the expressive potential of the medium to create a personal visual statement. (Kim)

ARTS H124 Foundation Printmaking: Monotype
Basic printmaking techniques in monotype medium. Painterly methods, direct drawing, stencils, brayer techniques for beginners in printmaking will be taught. Color, form, shape and composition in 2-D format will be explored. Individual and group critiques will be employed. (Kim)

ARTS H216 History of Photography from 1839 to the Present
An introductory survey course about the history of photography from its beginnings in 1839 to the present. The goal is to understand how photography has altered perceptions about the past, created a new art form and become a hallmark of modern society. Prerequisite: Sophomore standing (Williams)

ARTS H223 Printmaking: Materials and Techniques: Etching
Concepts and techniques of black and white and color intaglio. Line etching, aquatint, soft and hard ground, chin-colle techniques will be explored as well as visual concepts. Developing personal statements will be encouraged. Individual and group critiques will be employed. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor by review of portfolio. (Kim)

ARTS H224 Computer and Printmaking
Computer-generated images and printmaking techniques. Students will create photographic, computer processed and directly drawn images on lithographic polyester plates and zinc etching plates. Class work will be divided between the computer lab and the printmaking studio to create images using both image processing software and traditional printmaking methods, including lithography, etching and silk-screen. Broad experimental approaches to printmaking and computer techniques will be encouraged. Individual and group critiques will be employed. Prerequisite: An introductory printmaking course or permission by portfolio review. (Kim)

ARTS H225 Lithography: Material and Techniques
(Kim) Not offered in 2006-07.

ARTS H231 Drawing (2-D): All Media
Various drawing media such as charcoal, cont, pencil, ink and mixed media; the relationship between media, techniques and expression. The student is exposed to problems involving space, design and composition as well as “thinking” in two dimensions. Part of the work is from life model. May be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: Fine Arts Foundations or consent. (Li)

ARTS H233 Painting: Materials and Techniques
Problems of (1) form, color, texture and their interrelationships; (2) influences of the various painting techniques upon the expression of a work; (3) the characteristics and limitations of the different media; (4) control over the structure and composition of a work of art; (5) the relationships of form and composition, and color and composition. Media are primarily oils, but acrylics, watercolor and pastels are explored. Part of the work is from life models. May be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: Fine Arts Foundations or consent. (Li)

ARTS H241 Drawing 3-D Media
In essence the same problems as in ARTS 231a or b. However, some of the drawing media are clay modeling in half-hour sketches; the space and design concepts solve three-dimensional problems. Part of the work is done from life model. May be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: Fine Arts Foundations or consent. (Weil)

ARTS H243 Sculpture: Materials and Techniques
The behavior of objects in space, the concepts and techniques leading up to the form in space, and the characteristics and limitations of the various sculpture media and their influence on the final work; predominant but not exclusive use of clay modeling techniques: fundamental casting procedures. Part of the work is done from life model. May be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: Fine Arts Foundations or consent. (Weil)

ARTS H251 Photography: Materials and Techniques
Students are encouraged to develop an individual approach to photography. Emphasis is placed on the creation of black and white photographic prints which express plastic form, emotions and ideas about the physical world. Work is critiqued weekly to give critical insights into editing of individual student work and the use of the appropriate black and white photographic materials necessary to give coherence to that work. Study of the photography collection, gallery and museum exhibitions, lectures and a critical analysis of photographic sequences in books and a research project supplement the weekly critiques. Prerequisite: ARTS 103 or equivalent. (Williams)

ARTS H260 Photography: Materials and Techniques
Students are encouraged to develop an individual approach to photography. Emphasis is placed on the creation of color photographic prints which express plastic form, emotions and ideas about the physical world. Work is critiqued weekly to give critical insights into editing of individual student work and the use of the appropriate color photographic materials necessary to give coherence to that work. Study of the photography collection, gallery and museum exhibitions, lectures and a critical analysis of photographic sequences in books and a research project supplement the weekly critiques. Prerequisite: Fine Arts Foundations or consent. (Williams)
ARTS H321 Experimental Studio: Etching
Concepts and techniques of color intaglio. Combined printmaking methods as well as solid foundations in printmaking techniques will be encouraged. Personal statements and coherent body of works will be produced during the course. Individual and group critiques will be employed. Prerequisite: Permission of instructor by review of portfolio. (Kim)

ARTS H322 Printmaking: Experimental Studio Lithography
Concepts and techniques of color lithography. Combined printmaking methods as well as solid foundations in printmaking techniques will be encouraged. Personal statements and coherent body of works will be produced during the course. Individual and group critiques will be employed. Prerequisite: One course in printmaking or permission of instructor. (Kim)

ARTS H326 Experimental Studio: Lithography (Kim)

ARTS H327 Experimental Studio: Lithography and Intaglio
Concepts and techniques of black and white and color lithography. The development of a personal direction is encouraged. Prerequisite: A foundation drawing course and Foundation Printmaking, or permission of instructor. (Kim)

ARTS H331 Experimental Studio (Drawing) HU
In this studio course the student is encouraged to experiment with ideas and techniques with the purpose of developing a personal expression. It is expected that the student will already have a sound knowledge of the craft and aesthetics of drawing and is at a stage where personal expression has become possible. May be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: ARTS 231a or b, or consent of the instructor. (Li)

ARTS H333 Experimental Studio (Painting)
In this studio course the student is encouraged to experiment with ideas and techniques with the purpose of developing a personal expression. It is expected that the student will already have a sound knowledge of the craft and aesthetics of painting and is at a stage where personal expression has become possible. May be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: ARTS 223a or b, or consent of instructor. (Li)

ARTS H341 Experimental Studio (Drawing)
Prerequisite: ARTS 241a or b or consent of instructor. (Weil)

ARTS H343 Experimental Studio (Sculpture)
In this studio course the student is encouraged to experiment with ideas and techniques with the purpose of developing a personal expression. It is expected that the student will already have a sound knowledge of the craft and aesthetics of sculpture and is at a stage where personal expression has become possible. May be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: ARTS 243a or b, or consent of instructor. (Weil)

ARTS H351 Experimental Studio (Photography)
Students produce an extended sequence of their work in either book or exhibition format using black and white or color photo-
Area of Study graphic materials. The sequence and scale of the photographic prints are determined by the nature of the student's work. Weekly classroom critiques, supplemented by an extensive investigation of classic photographic picture books and related critical texts guide students to the completion of their course work. This two semester course consists of the book project first semester and the exhibition project second semester. At the end of each semester the student may exhibit his/her project. Prerequisite: ARTS 251a and 260b. (Williams)

ARTS H460 Teaching Assistant (staff)

480 Independent Study Prerequisite: consent of the instructor. (staff)

ARTS H499 Senior Departmental Studies The student reviews the depth and extent of experience gained, and in so doing creates a coherent body of work expressive of the student's insights and skills. At the end of the senior year the student is expected to produce a show of his or her work. Prerequisite: senior majors. (Kim, Li, Weil, Williams)

French and French Studies

Students may complete a major or minor in French and French Studies. Within the major, student may complete the requirements for secondary education certification. Students may complete an M.A. in the combined A.B./M.A. program.

The Departments of French at Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges offer a unified program and a variety of courses and major options. The purpose of the major in French is to lay the foundation for an understanding and appreciation of French culture through its literature and language, the history of its arts, its thought and its institutions. Course offerings are intended to serve both those with particular interest in French literature, literary theory and criticism, as well as those with particular interest in French and French-speaking countries from the perspective of history, culture and political science. A thorough knowledge of French is a common goal for both orientations, and texts and discussion in French are central both to the program focusing on French history and culture (interdisciplinary concentration) and to the literary specialization (literature concentration).

In the 100-level courses, students are introduced to the study of French and Francophone literatures and cultures, and special attention is given to the speaking and writing of French. Courses at the 200 level treat French literature and civilization from the beginning to the present day. Three 200-level courses are devoted to advanced language training, with practice in spoken as well as in written French. Advanced (300-level) courses offer detailed study either of individual authors, genres and movements (literature concentration) or of particular periods, themes and problems in French culture (interdisciplinary concentration). In both tracks, students are admitted to advanced courses after satisfactory completion of two semesters of 200-level courses in French.

All students who wish to pursue their study of French must take a placement examination upon entrance at Bryn Mawr and Haverford. Those students who begin French have two options: intensive study of the language in the intensive sections offered (the sequence 001-002 Intensive Elementary; 005 Intensive Intermediate and 102 Textes, Images, Voix II, or 005 and 105 Directions de la France contemporaine), or nonintensive study of the language in the nonintensive sequence (001-002; 003-004; 101-102 or 101-105; 103-102 or 103-105). In either case, students who pursue French to the 200 level often find it useful to take as their first 200-level course either 212 Grammaire avancée or 260 Stylistique et traduction. Although it is possible to major in French using either of the two sequences, students who are considering doing so and have been placed at the 001 level are encouraged to take the intensive option.

The Department of French also cooperates with the Departments of Italian and Spanish in the Romance Languages major (see page 273).

Major Requirements

Requirements in the major subject are:

1. Literature concentration: FREN 005-102 or 005-105; 101-102 or 101-105; 103-102 or 103-105, FREN 212 or 260, four semesters of 200-level literature courses, two semesters of 300-level literature courses, and the two-semester Senior Conference.

2. Interdisciplinary concentration: FREN 005-102 or 005-105; 101-102 or 101-105, 103-102 or 103-105; FREN 212 or 260; FREN 291 and 294, the core courses; a minimum of two civilization courses to be chosen among 246, 248, 251, 255, 296, 298, 299, 325, 326, with at least one course at the 300 level; two 200- or 300-level French literature courses, with one of these courses chosen at the 300 level; and the two-semester Senior Conference.

3. Both concentrations: all French majors are expected to have acquired fluency in the French language, both written and oral. Unless specifically exempted by the department, they are required to take FREN 212 or 260. Students may wish to continue from 212 to 260 to hone their skills further. Students placed at the 200 level by departmental examinations are exempted from the 100-level requirements. Occasionally, students may be admitted to seminars in the graduate school.

Honors

Undergraduates who have excelled in French by maintaining a minimum grade of 3.7 may, if invited by the department, write an honors thesis during one or two semesters of their senior year. However, the invitation and the subsequent writing of such a thesis do not guarantee the award. Departmental honors may also be awarded for excellence in both the oral and written comprehensive examinations at the end of the senior year.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for a French minor are FREN 005-102 or 005-105, 101-102, 101-105, 103-102 or 103-105; FREN 212 or 260; and four 200-level or 300-level courses. At least one course must be at the 300 level.

Teacher Certification

The Department of French offers a certification program in secondary teacher education. For more information, see the description of the Education Program on page 130.

A.B./M.A. Program

Particularly well-qualified students may undertake work toward the joint A.B./M.A. degree in French. Such a program may be completed in four or five years and is undertaken with the approval of the department, the Undergraduate Curriculum Committee and of the dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences (see page 36).

Study Abroad

Students majoring in French may, by a joint recommendation of the deans of the Colleges and the Departments of French, be allowed to spend their junior year in France under one of the junior year plans approved by their respective college: some programs are approved by both Bryn Mawr and Haverford; other programs are accepted separately by Bryn Mawr and Haverford.

Students wishing to enroll in a summer program may apply for admission to the Institut d’Etudes Françaises d’Avignon, held under the auspices of Bryn Mawr. The institute is designed for selected undergraduates with a serious interest in French and Francophone literatures and cultures, most particularly for those who anticipate professional careers requiring a knowledge of the language and civilization of France and French speaking countries. The curriculum includes general and advanced courses in French language, literature, social sciences, history, art and economics (including the possibility of internships in Avignon). The program is open to students of high academic achievement who have completed a course in French at the third-year level or the equivalent.
FREN B001, B002 Elementary French
The speaking and understanding of French are emphasized particularly during the first semester. The work includes regular use of the Language Learning Center and is supplemented by intensive oral practice sessions. The course meets in intensive (nine hours a week) and nonintensive (five hours a week) sections. This is a year-long course; both semesters are required for credit. (Cherel)

FREN B003, B004 Intermediate French
The emphasis on speaking and understanding French is continued; texts from French literature and cultural media are read; and short papers are written in French. Students use the Language Learning Center regularly and attend supplementary oral practice sessions. The course meets in nonintensive (three hours a week) sections that are supplemented by an extra hour per week with an assistant. This is a year-long course; both semesters are required for credit. (Cherel, Echtman)

FREN B005 Intensive Intermediate French
The emphasis on speaking and understanding French is continued; literary and cultural texts are read and increasingly longer papers are written in French. In addition to three class meetings a week, students develop their skills in group sessions with the professors and in oral practice hours with assistants. Students use the Language Learning Center regularly. This course prepares students to take 102 or 105 in semester II. Open only to graduates of Intensive Elementary French or to students placed by the department. Students who are not graduates of Intensive Elementary French must take either 102 or 105 to receive credit. (Armstrong, Doner)

FREN B101 Textes, Images, Voix I
Presentation of essential problems in literary and cultural analysis by close reading of works selected from various periods and genres and by analysis of voice and image in French writing and film. Participation in discussion and practice in written and oral expression are emphasized, as are grammar review and laboratory exercises. (Armstrong, Division III)

FREN B102 Textes, Images, Voix II
Continued development of students' expertise in literary and cultural analysis by emphasizing close reading as well as oral and written analyses of increasingly complex works chosen from various genres and periods of French and Francophone works in their written and visual modes. Readings begin with comic theater of the 17th and 18th centuries and build to increasingly complex nouvelles, poetry and novels of the 19th and 20th centuries. Participation in guided discussion and practice in oral/written expression continue to be emphasized, as are grammar review. Prerequisite: FREN 005, 101 or 103. (Higginson, Division III)

FRENCH H103 De Sedan à la Belle Époque (1870-1914)
In this course, students will be introduced to events, personalities and issues whose effects are still felt in contemporary France. The course will be structured around thematic clusters, such as: “Napoléon III et Victor Hugo,” “La Commune de 1871,” and “Impératrices des Tuileries, des salons et de la scène.” Readings will be drawn from literary and non-literary texts of the pe-
FREN B105 Directions de la France contemporaine
An examination of contemporary society in France and Francophone cultures as portrayed in recent documents and film. Emphasizing the tension in contemporary French-speaking societies between tradition and change, the course focuses on subjects such as family structures and the changing role of women, cultural and linguistic identity, and increasingly multiracial society, the individual and institutions (religious, political, educational), and les loisirs. In addition to the basic text and review of grammar, readings are chosen from newspapers, contemporary literary texts and magazines, complemented by video materials. Prerequisite: FREN 005, 101 or 103. (Cherel, Division III)

FREN B201 Le chevalier, la dame et le prêtre: littérature et publics du Moyen Age
Using literary texts, historical documents and letters as a mirror of the social classes that they address, this interdisciplinary course studies the principal preoccupations of secular and religious men and women in France from the Carolingian period through 1500. Selected works from epic, lai, roman courtois, fabliau, theater, letters and contemporary biography are read in modern French translation. (Armstrong, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

FREN B202 Crises et identités: La Renaissance
A study of the development of Humanism, the concept of the Renaissance and the Reformation. The course focuses on representative works, with special attention given to the prose of Rabelais and Montaigne, the Conteurs, the poetry of Marat, Scève, the Pléiade and d’Aubigné. (Sedley, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

FREN H203 Passion et culture: Le Grand Siècle
Representative authors and literary movements placed within their cultural context, with special attention to development of the theater (Corneille, Molière, and Racine) and women writers of various genres. (Sedley, Division III)

FREN B204 Le Siècle des lumières
Representative texts of the Enlightenment and the Pre-Romantic movement, with emphasis on the development of liberal thought as illustrated in the Encyclopédie and the works of Diderot, Montesquieu, Rousseau and Voltaire. (staff, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

FREN B205 Le Temps des prophètes: de Chateaubriand à Baudelaire
From Chateaubriand and Romanticism to Baudelaire, a study of selected poems, novels and plays. (Mahuzier, Division III).

FREN B206 Le Temps des virtuoses: Symbolisme, Naturalisme et leur progéniture
A study of selected works by Claudel, Gide, Proust, Rimbaud, Valéry, Verlaine and Zola. (Mahuzier, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.
FREN B207 Missionnaires et cannibales: de Malraux à Modiano 1930-present
A study of selected works illustrating the principal literary movements from 1930 to the present. (Higginson, Division III)

FREN H212 Grammaire avancée: composition et conversation
A general review of the most common difficulties of the French language. Practice in composition, translation, and conversation. (staff, Division III)

FREN B213 Approches critiques et théoriques
This course provides exposure to influential 20th-century French theorists while bringing these thinkers to bear on appropriate literary texts. It hones students' critical skills while expanding their knowledge of French intellectual history. The explicitly critical aspect of the course will also serve students throughout their coursework, regardless of field. (Mahuzier, Division III; cross-listed as COML B213) Not offered in 2006-07.

FREN B231 De la page à l'écran: Romans français et adaptations cinématographiques
This course proposes to examine different genres of French novels and their cinematographic adaptations. We will focus on close readings of novels, including discussion of literary genres and techniques. We will then study the films based on these novels not simply as "translations," but as independent works that illustrate different methods of story telling. How does the medium influence the telling of the story, including the relationship between reader and book, spectator and film? The purpose of the course is to expose students to different types of narratives, constructed through a wide range of literary and cinematographic techniques. (staff, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

FREN B251 La Mosaique France
A study that opposes discourse of exclusion, xenophobia, racism and the existence of a mythical, unique French identity by examining 20th-century French people and culture in their richness and variety, based on factors such as gender, class, region, colonization and decolonization, immigration and ethnic background. Films and texts by Beauvoir, Begag, Cardinal, Carles, Duras, Ernaux, Jakez Helias, Modiano and Zobel. (staff, Division III)

FREN H255 Cinéma français/francophone et colonialisme
A study of cinéastes from Black Africa, Arab North Africa and the Caribbean whose films treat the colonial and postcolonial experience. (Anyinéfa, Division III; cross-listed as COML H255)

FREN B260 Stylistique et traduction
Intensive practice in speaking and writing. Conversation, discussion, advanced training in grammar and stylistics, translation of literary and nonliterary texts, and original composition. (Chérel)

FREN B262 Débat, discussion, dialogue
Intensive oral practice intended to bring non-native French speakers to the highest level of proficiency through the development of debating and discussion skills. Not offered in 2006-07.
FREN B280 Analyses sémiologiques de la culture française
A study of how French society represents itself both to the French and to others, and of the discrepancies between this representation and the more complex, evolving reality. Conducted through various media (art, computer media, films, popular and serious literature, pedagogical texts, song, talk shows, television, theater, etc.). (staff, Division III)

FREN B291 Advanced Topics: La civilisation française
A survey of French cultures and society from the Revolution to De Gaulle’s Republic. Serves as one of the core courses for the interdisciplinary concentration. (Mahuzier, Division III; cross-listed as HIST B291) Not offered in 2006-07.

FREN B299 Littérature, histoire et société de la Révolution à la Première Guerre mondiale
A study of the language and political, social and ethical messages of literary texts whose authors were “engagés” in the conflicts, wars and revolutions that shook French society from the advent of the 1789 Revolution to the First World War. Counts for either the literary or interdisciplinary track. (Mahuzier, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

FREN B302 Le printemps de la parole féminine: femmes écrivains des débuts
This study of selected women authors from the French Middle Ages, Renaissance and Classical periods — among them, Marie de France, the trobairitz, Christine de Pisan, Marguerite de Navarre and Madame de Lafayette — examines the way in which they appropriate and transform the male writing tradition and define themselves as self-conscious artists within or outside it. Particular attention will be paid to identifying recurring concerns and structures in their works, and to assessing their importance to female writing; among them, the poetics of silence, reproduction as a metaphor for artistic creation, and sociopolitical engagement. (Armstrong, Division III; cross-listed as COML B302)

FREN B306 Libertinage et érotisme au XVIIIe siècle
A close study of works representative of the 18th-century French novel, with special attention to the memoir novel (Marivaux and Prévost), the philosophical novel (Diderot and Voltaire), and the epistolary novel (Rousseau, Laclos and Réétif de la Bretonne). (Lafarge, Division III)

FREN H312 Advanced Topics: L’art du ridicule
An in-depth study of a topic or movement in French literature. Topic for Fall 2006: L’art du ridicule. (Sedley, Division III; cross-listed as COML H312)

FREN B325 Etudes avancées de civilisation: Crimes et criminalité
An in-depth study of a particular topic, event or historical figure in French civilization. The seminar topic rotates among many subjects. (Mahuzier, Division III; cross-listed as COML B325)

FREN B326 Etudes avancées de civilisation
An in-depth study of a particular topic, event or historical figure in French civilization. The seminar topic rotates among many subjects: La Révolution française: histoire, littérature et culture;
L'Environnement naturel dans la culture française; Mal et valeurs éthiques; Le cinéma et la politique, 1940-1968; Le Nationalisme en France et dans les pays francophones; Etude socio-culturelle des arts du manger en France du Moyen Age à nos jours. (staff, Division III; cross-listed as COML B326) Not offered in 2006-07.

FREN B350 Voix médiévales et échos modernes
A study of selected 19th- and 20th-century works inspired by medieval subjects, such as the Grail and Arthurian legends, and by medieval genres, such as the roman, saints’ lives or the miracle play. Included are works by Anouilh, Bonnefoy, Claudel, Flaubert, Genevoix, Gracq, Hugo and Yourcenar. (Armstrong, Division III; cross-listed as COML B350) Not offered in 2006-07.

FREN H398 Senior Conference
A weekly seminar examining representative French and Francophone literary texts and cultural documents from all periods, and the interpretive problems they raise. Close reading and dissection of texts, complemented by extensive secondary readings from different schools of interpretation, prepare students to analyze other critical stances and to develop their own. In addition to short essays and oral presentations, students write a long paper each semester and end the year with Senior Comprehensives, which consist of an oral presentation of one of the long papers and a four-hour written examination. (Higginson)

FREN B403 Supervised Work
(staff)

FREN B399 Senior Conference
A weekly seminar examining representative French and Francophone literary texts and cultural documents from all periods, and the interpretive problems they raise. Close reading and dissection of texts, complemented by extensive secondary readings from different schools of interpretation, prepare students to analyze other critical stances and to develop their own. In addition to short essays and oral presentations, students write a long paper each semester and end the year with Senior Comprehensives, which consist of an oral presentation of one of the long papers and a four-hour written examination. (Anyinéfa).
Gender and Sexuality

Students may complete a minor or concentration in Gender and Sexuality. Students may submit an application to major in Gender and Sexuality through the independent major program.

Coordinators:
Katherine Rowe, Department of English
Debora Sherman, at Haverford College

The Bi-College Program in Gender and Sexuality is committed to the interdisciplinary study of a range of different questions raised by the category of gender. The program includes courses that interrogate matters of gender difference, gender roles, gender socialization and gender bias (considered historically, materially and cross-culturally), and courses that engage sexual difference, sexual roles, sexual socialization and sexual bias.

Students choosing a concentration or minor in gender and sexuality plan their programs in consultation with the program coordinator on their home campus. Courses in the program draw upon and speak to feminist theory and women’s studies; transnational and third-world feminisms; womanist theory and the experiences of women of color; the construction of masculinity; gay, lesbian, queer, transgender and transsexual studies; and gender as it is inflected by race, class, religion and nationality.

Minor and Concentration Requirements
Six courses distributed as follows are required for the concentration:

1. An introductory course (including equivalent offerings at Swarthmore College or the University of Pennsylvania).
2. The junior seminar: Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Sex and Gender (alternating fall semesters between Bryn Mawr and Haverford).
3. Four additional approved courses from at least two different departments, two of which are normally at the 300 level. Units of Independent Study (480) may be used to fulfill this requirement.
4. Of the six courses, no fewer than two and no more than three will also form part of the student’s major.

Requirements for the minor are identical to those for the concentration, with the stipulation that no courses in gender and sexuality will overlap with courses taken to fulfill requirements in the student’s major.

Neither a senior seminar nor a senior thesis is required for the concentration or minor; however, with the permission of the major department, a student may choose to count toward the concentration a senior thesis with significant content in gender and sexuality. Students wishing to construct an independent major in gender and sexuality should make a proposal to the Committee on Independent Majors (see page 22).

Courses in the Program in Gender and Sexuality change from year to year. Students are advised to check the course guide at the beginning of each semester.

Courses in gender and sexuality currently offered at Bryn Mawr:
Courses in gender and sexuality currently offered at Haverford:

- ECON H224 Women in the Labor Market
- ENGL H263 19th-Century American Women's Narrative
- ENGL H278 Contemporary Women Writers
- ENGL H286 Arts of the Possible: Literature and Social Justice Movements
- ENGL H347 Spectacle and Spectatorship in 18th-Century London
- ENGL H381 Textual Politics: Marxism, Feminism, and the Deconstruction of Gender
- GNPR H290 Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Gender
- HIST H229 Gender, Sex and Power in Europe, 1550-1800
- HIST H354 Topics in Early Modern European History by Film, Propaganda and Power
- PHIL H105 Love, Friendship, and the Ethical Life
- PHIL H106 The Philosophy of Consciousness and the Problem of Embodiment
- PHIL H258 Philosophy of the Body
- POLS H235 African Politics
- RELG H301 Seminar A: Religion and Magic
GENERAL STUDIES

Certain courses focus on areas that are not usually covered in the Bryn Mawr curriculum and provide a supplement to the areas more regularly covered; these are called general studies courses and are listed in the Tri-Co Course Guide under this heading. Courses that cut across a number of disciplines and emphasize relationships among them are cross-listed and described under the departments that sponsor them.

Many general studies courses are open, without prerequisite, to all students. With the permission of the major department, they may be taken for major credit.

GNST B101 African Civilizations: An Interdisciplinary Introduction to Africana Studies
The required course introduces students to African societies, cultures and political economies with an emphasis on change and response among African people in Africa and outside. (Ngalamulume, Division I)

GNST B103 Introduction to Swahili Language and Culture I
(Mshombwa, Division I or III)

GNST B105 Introduction to Swahili Language and Culture II
(Mshombwa, Division I or III)

GNST B155 Islamic Civilization, A Literary Introduction
Surveys major political, social, religious and cultural developments in the Islamic world, from Spain to India, as represented in the works of Arabic, Persian and Turkish literature in translation, with some attention to art and architecture. We cover the period from the rise of Islam to early modern times (roughly 600 to 1500). (Kim, Division III)

GNST B213 Introduction to Mathematical Logic
(Weaver, Division II; cross-listed as PHIL B213)

GNST B215 Introduction to Set Theory
Study of the theory of cardinal and ordinal numbers in the context of Gödel Bernays-von Neumann set theory. Topics include equivalents of the axiom of choice and basic results in infinite combinatorics. Prerequisites: PHIL 103 and MATH 231. (Weaver, Division II) Not offered in 2006-07.

GNST B224 Gender and Science
We hear of new medical developments or breakthroughs, and patients hope for a “magic bullet.” Health care is not only about scientific progress, but about treating people. We see how differently people are affected by medical developments, according to their social constituencies. Recently disparities have been considered by medical researchers, practitioners and policy makers. What methods can we use to picture health care closer to its social reality? Focus is on methods of social historians and emphasizes advantage of combining approaches from social disciplines. (McCormack)

GNST B239 Introduction to Linguistics
(Kandybowicz, Division I)
GNST B261 Palestine and Israeli Society: Cultural and Historical Perspectives (Neuman; cross-listed as ANTH B261, HEBR B261 and HIST B261)

GNST B265 The Islamic Literary Tradition
Focus on the major poetic genres and figures in Islamic literature. Selected works from Arabic, Persian and Turkish are read in translation, and each is situated in historical, social and cultural context. We well not engage in extensive comparisons among the three literatures, but questions of continuities and ruptures will inform the course. (Kim, Division III; cross-listed as COML B265) Not offered in 2006-07.

GNST B277 Topics in Islamic Literature: Travel Narrative
Examines medieval and early modern Muslim travel accounts of the Islamic world and beyond, through selected texts in English translation. Looks at critical approaches to travel narrative and considers whether they are useful for Islamic context. (Kim, Division III; cross-listed as COML B277)

GNST B290 Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Gender and Sexuality
This course explores the variety of ways in which we “do” sex and gender, by looking at the inevitability of our making categories, play as a way of unsettling them and politics as a way of making them useful, as we put them into action in the world. (Patico, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

GNST B303 Advanced Mathematical Logic (Weaver; cross-listed as PHIL B303) Not offered in 2006-07.

GNST B342 Middle Eastern Diasporas (Neuman; cross-listed as ANTH B342 and HEBR B342)

GNST B403 Thesis (staff)
Geology

Students may complete a major or minor in Geology. Within the major, students may complete concentrations in environmental studies, geoarchaeology or geochemistry.

Faculty

Donald C. Barber, Associate Professor
(on leave 2006-07)

Blythe L. Hoyle, Lecturer and Laboratory Coordinator

Christopher Oze, Assistant Professor

Catherine A. Riithimaki, Keck Postdoctoral Fellow

W. Bruce Saunders, Professor and Chair

Arlo B. Weil, Assistant Professor

The department seeks to make students more aware of the physical world around them and of its development through time. The subject includes a study of the materials of which the Earth is made; of the physical processes which have formed the Earth, especially near the surface; of the history of the Earth and its organisms; and of the various techniques necessary to investigate Earth processes and history.

Each introductory course is designed to cover a broad group of topics from a different perspective. Students may elect any of the 100-level courses. Fieldwork is an essential part of geologic training and is part of all introductory courses, most other classes and most independent research projects.

Major Requirements

Thirteen courses are required for the major: GEOL 101 and 102 or 103; 202, 203, 204, and 205; MATH 101 and 102, or alternates approved by the adviser; a two-semester sequence of CHEM (101/103-104) or PHYS (101-102); GEOL 403; and either two advanced geology courses or one advanced geology course and an additional upper-level course in biology, chemistry, mathematics, physics, or computer science.

Additional courses in the allied sciences are strongly recommended and are required by most graduate schools. A student who wishes to follow a career in geology should plan to attend a summer field course, usually following the completion of the 200-level courses.

All geology majors undertake a research project (GEOL 403) in the senior year. Most students complete a one-semester project in the fall semester; a two-semester project may be undertaken with approval of the department.

Honors

Honors are awarded to students who have outstanding academic records in geology and allied fields, and whose research is judged by the faculty of the department to be of the highest quality.

Minor Requirements

A minor in geology consists of two of the 100-level Geology courses, and any four of the 200- or 300-level courses offered by the department.

Concentration in Environmental Studies

The environmental studies concentration allows students to explore interactions of the geosphere, biosphere and human societies. The concentration represents interdisciplinary cooperation among the departments of anthropology, biology, economics, English, geology, political science and growth and structure of cities, and is open to students majoring in any of these departments.

The environmental concentration in geology consists of GEOL 101 and 103, 202 and two other 200-level geology courses, 328, 397, one other 300-level geology course and 403; BIOL 220; CHEM 101 or 103, and 104; and two semesters of math, statistics or computational methods. Students starting the concentration in Fall 2006 must take CITY 175 Environment and Society. Two additional environmental courses outside of the natural sciences also are required: one addressing issues of planning and policy, and one that addresses issues of humans in the environment. The environmental studies Web site (http://www.brynmawr.edu/es/core.htm) lists approved courses in these categories. Paperwork for the concentration should be filed at the same time as the major work plan. Students also should carefully consider their options with regard to study abroad in the junior year. Early consultation with Don Barber and the director of environmental studies is advised in the planning of courses.

Concentration in Geoarchaeology

The geoarchaeology concentration allows students majoring in anthropology, archaeology or geology to explore the connections among these fields with respect to how our human ancestors interacted with past environments, and how traces of human behavior are preserved in the physical environment. In geology, the geoarchaeology concentration consists of 13 courses: GEOL 101 or 102 or 103, 202, 205, 270, 328, another 200- or 300-level geology course, and 403: CHEM 101 or 103, and 104; two semesters of math, statistics or computational methods; either ARCH 101 or ANTH 101; and one 200- or 300-level elective from among current offerings in Anthropology or Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology. Paperwork for the concentration should be filed at the same time as the major work plan. For course planning advice, consult with Don Barber (Geology), Rick Davis (Anthropology) or Peter Magee (Archaeology).

Concentration in Geochemistry

The geochemistry concentration encourages students majoring either in geology or in chemistry to design a course of study that emphasizes earth chemistry. In geology this concentration includes at least: GEOL 101, 103, 202, 205; one of 301 or 302 or 305; CHEM 101 or 103, 104 and 231 (Inorganic Chemistry). Additional chemistry courses might include 211 (Organic Chemistry) or 222 (Physical Chemistry). Other courses that complement this concentration are: calculus, linear algebra, computer programming and computer modeling. Paperwork for the concentration should be filed at the same time as the major work plan. For course planning advice, contact Christopher Oze (Geology) or Sharon Burgmayer (Chemistry).

GEOL B101 How the Earth Works
An introduction to the study of planet Earth — the materials of which it is made, the forces that shape its surface and interior, the relationship of geological processes to people, and the application of geological knowledge to the search for useful materials. Laboratory and fieldwork focus on learning the tools for geological investigations and applying them to the local area and selected areas around the world. Three lectures and one afternoon of laboratory or fieldwork a week. One required one-day field trip on a weekend. (Weil, Hoyle; Division IIL)

GEOL B102 Earth History
The history of the Earth from its beginning and the evolution of the living forms that have populated it. Three lectures, one afternoon of laboratory a week. A required two-day (Fri.-Sat.) field trip is taken in April. (Saunders, Division IIL)

GEOL B103 Earth Systems and the Environment
This integrated approach to studying the Earth focuses on interactions among geology, oceanography and biology. Also discussed are the consequences of population growth, industrial development and human land use. Two lectures and one afternoon of laboratory or fieldwork per week. A required two-day (Fri.-Sat.) field trip is taken in April. (Division IIL; cross-listed as CITY B103)

GEOL B202 Mineralogy and Crystal Chemistry
The crystal chemistry of representative minerals. Descriptive and determinative mineralogy, as well as the relation between the physical properties of minerals and their structures and chemical compositions. The occurrence and petrography of typical mineral associations and rocks is also covered. Lecture three hours, laboratory at least three hours a week. Prerequisite: introductory course in geology or chemistry (both recommended). (Oze, Division IIL)

GEOL B203 Invertebrate Paleobiology
Biology, evolution, ecology and morphology of the major marine invertebrate fossil groups. Three lectures and one three-hour laboratory a week. A semester-long research project introducing computer-aided morphometric analysis will be based on material collected on a two-day trip to the Tertiary deposits of the Chesapeake Bay. (Saunders, Division IIL)

GEOL B204 Structural Geology
Three lectures and three hours of laboratory a week, plus weekend field trips. Recognition and description of deformed rocks, map reading, and an introduction to the mechanics and patterns of deformation. Prerequisites: GEOL 101 and MATH 101. (Weil, Division IIL)

GEOL B205 Sedimentary Materials and Environments
An introduction to sediment transport, depositional processes and stratigraphic analysis, with emphasis on interpretation of sedimentary sequences and the reconstruction of past environments. Three lectures and one lab a week, plus a weekend field trip. Prerequisite: GEOL 101, 102, 103 or instructor permission. Recommended: GEOL 202 and 203. (Division IIL) Not offered in 2006-07.

GEOL B206 Energy Resources and Public Policy
An examination of issues concerning the supply of energy and raw materials required by humanity. This includes an investigation of requirements and supply of energy and of essential resources, of the geological framework that determines resource availability, and of the social, economic and political considerations related to energy production and resource development. Two 90-minute lectures a week. Prerequisite: one year of college science. (Division II) Not offered in 2006-07.

GEOL B209 Natural Hazards
A quantitative approach to understanding the earth processes that impact human societies. We consider the past, current and future hazards presented by geologic processes, including earthquakes, volcanoes, landslides, floods and hurricanes. The course includes discussion of the social, economic and policy contexts within which natural geologic processes become hazards. Case studies are drawn from contemporary and ancient societies. Lecture three hours a week, with one day-long field trip. Prerequisite: one semester of college science or permission of instructor. (staff, Division II and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as CITY B210) Not offered in 2006-07.

GEOL B236 Evolution
A lecture/discussion course on the development of evolutionary thought, generally regarded as the most profound scientific event of the 19th century; its foundations in biology and geology; and the extent of its implications to many disciplines. Emphasis is placed on the nature of evolution in terms of process, product, patterns, historical development of the theory, and its applications to interpretations of organic history. Lecture three hours a week. Prerequisite: a 100-level science course or permission of instructors. (Gardiner [Biology], Saunders; cross-listed as ANTH B236 and BIOL B236)

GEOL B250 Computational Models in the Sciences
(Allen, Division II and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as BIOL B250 and CMSC B250)

GEOL B255 Problem Solving in the Environmental Sciences
Provides basic quantitative and numerical modeling skills that can be applied to any of the natural sciences, including geology and environmental studies. Students will learn fundamental quantitative concepts while exploring issues such as global warming, sudden catastrophes and the effects of steady flow of wind and water on Earth’s surface. Lecture/discussion three hours a week. (Riihimaki, Division II and Quantitative Skills)

GEOL B260 Biogeography
(Allen, Division III and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as BIOL B260)

GEOL B270 Geoarchaeology
(cross-listed as ANTH B270 and ARCH B270) Not offered in 2006-07.

GEOL B301 High-Temperature Geochemistry
Principles and theory of various aspects of geochemistry including elementary thermodynamics and phase diagrams, an introduction to isotopes, and the applications of chemistry to the study of igneous and metamorphic rocks. Three lectures per week augmented by occasional fieldwork. Prerequisites: GEOL 202, CHEM 101 or 103 and 104 or consent of the instructor. (staff)
GEOL B302 Low-Temperature Geochemistry
The geochemistry of Earth surface processes. Emphasis is on the chemistry of surface waters, atmosphere-water environmental chemistry, chemical evolution of natural waters, and pollution issues. Fundamental principles are applied to natural systems with particular focus on environmental chemistry. Prerequisites: CHEM 103, 104 and GEOL 202 or two 200-level chemistry courses, or permission of instructor. (staff) Not offered in 2006-07.

GEOL B303 Advanced Paleontology: Advanced Evolution Seminar
Principles, theory and application of various aspects of paleobiology such as evolution. Seminar-based, with a semester-long research project. Three lectures, three hours of laboratory a week (with occasional field work). Prerequisite: GEOL 203 or 236 or permission of instructor. (Saunders)

GEOL B304 Tectonics
Three hours of lecture and a problem session a week. Plate tectonics and continental orogeny are reviewed in light of the geologic record in selected mountain ranges and certain geophysical data. Prerequisite: GEOL 204. (Weil) Not offered in 2006-07.

GEOL B305 Igneous and Metamorphic Petrology
The origin, mode of occurrence and distribution of igneous and metamorphic rocks. The focus is on the experimental and field evidence for interpreting rock associations and the interplay between igneous and metamorphic rock genesis and tectonics. Three lectures and three hours of laboratory or equivalent field work a week. Occasional weekend field trips. Prerequisites: GEOL 202 and CHEM 101 or 103, and 104. (Oze)

GEOL B310 Introduction to Geophysics
An overview covering how geophysical observations of the Earth's magnetic field, gravity field, heat flow, radioactivity and seismic waves provide a means to study plate tectonics. Also covered are the geophysical techniques used in mineral and energy resources exploration, and in the monitoring of groundwater, earthquakes and volcanoes. Three class hours a week. Prerequisites: GEOL 101 and PHYS 101, 102. (Weil)

GEOL B312 Quaternary Geology
The Quaternary Period comprises the last 1.5 million years of Earth history, an interval dominated by climate fluctuations and the waxing and waning of large northern hemisphere ice sheets. This course covers the many types of geological evidence, from glacial geomorphology to deep-sea geochemistry, used to reconstruct ocean and atmospheric conditions emphasizing Quaternary climate variability. Three class hours a week, including hands-on data analysis. Prerequisite: any one of GEOL 103, 205, 209, 255 or 270. Not offered in 2006-07.

GEOL B314 Marine Geology
An introduction to the structure of ocean basins, their sedimentary record and the place of marine systems in the geologic record. Includes an overview of physical and chemical oceanography, and a review of how paleoceanographic research has shaped our knowledge of Earth's climate history. Meets twice weekly for a combination of lecture, discussion and hands-on exercises, including a one-day field trip to the New Jersey coast. Prerequisite: GEOL 101, 102 or 103. (Barber) Not offered in 2006-07.

GEOL B328 Analysis of Geospatial Data Using GIS
An introduction to analysis of geospatial data, theory and the practice of geospatial reasoning. As part of this introduction students will gain experience in using one or more GIS software packages and be introduced to data gathering in the field by remote sensing. Each student is expected to undertake an independent project that uses the approaches and tools presented. (Compton; cross-listed as ARCH B328 and BIOL B328)

GEOL B336 Evolutionary Biology: Advanced Topics
(Gardiner [Biology], Saunders; cross-listed as ANTH B336 and BIOL B336) Not offered in 2006-07.

GEOL B350 Advanced Topics in Geology: Geology of the Appalachians
A seminar course on the geologic history of the Appalachian Mountains. Focus will be placed on the protracted tectonic history along the eastern margin of North America from the Proterozoic breakup of the Rodinia supercontinent to the Mesozoic rifting of the Pangea supercontinent. Meets twice weekly for a combination of lecture and discussion, including a two-day fieldtrip. Prerequisites: advanced standing in geology and consent of the instructor. (Weil)

GEOL B350 Advanced Topics in Geology: Glaciology
A seminar course on glaciology and glacial geology, focusing on basic mechanics of glacial systems, history of glaciation, and the future prognosis of glaciers. Meets once per week for a combination of lecture, discussion, and hands-on experiments. There will be a two-day fieldtrip to northeastern Pennsylvania. Prerequisites: advanced standing in geology and consent of the instructor. (Riihimaki)

GEOL B397 Senior Seminar in Environmental Studies
A seminar course allowing environmental studies concentrators to explore topics of common interest from the various perspectives represented by student majors in the class. Students choose readings, lead discussion, and write papers. Collaborative research projects also are possible. Three hours per week. (staff; cross-listed as ANTH B397, BIOL B397 and CITY B397)

GEOL B403 Independent Research
An independent project in the field, laboratory or library culminating in a written report and oral presentation. Required for all geology majors in the senior year. (staff)
GERMAN AND GERMAN STUDIES

Students may complete a major or minor in German and German Studies.

Faculty
David Kenosian, Lecturer
Imke Meyer, Associate Professor and Chair
Heidi Schlipphacke, Visiting Associate Professor
Ulrich Schönherr, Associate Professor at Haverford College
Azade Seyhan, Professor (on leave 2006-07)
Marianne Tettlebaum, Visiting Assistant Professor at Haverford College

The Department of German and German Studies draws upon the expertise of the German faculty at both Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges to offer a broadly conceived German studies program, incorporating a variety of courses and major options. The purpose of the major in German and German studies is to lay the foundation for a critical understanding of German culture in its contemporary international context and its larger political, social and intellectual history. To this end we encourage a thorough and comparative study of the German language and culture through its linguistic and literary history, systems of thought, institutions, political configurations and arts and sciences.

The German program aims, by means of various methodological approaches to the study of another language, to foster critical thinking, expository writing skills, understanding of the diversity of culture(s), and the ability to respond creatively to the challenges posed by cultural difference in an increasingly multicultural world. Course offerings are intended to serve both students with particular interests in German literature and literary theory and criticism, and those interested in studying German and German-speaking cultures from the perspective of communication arts, film, history, history of ideas, history of art and architecture, history of religion, institutions, linguistics, mass media, philosophy, politics and urban anthropology and folklore.

A thorough knowledge of German is a goal for both major concentrations. The objective of our language instruction is to teach students communicative skills that would enable them to function effectively in authentic conditions of language use and to speak and write in idiomatic German. A major component of all German courses is the examination of issues that underline the cosmopolitanism as well as the specificity and complexity of contemporary German culture. German majors can and are encouraged to take courses in interdisciplinary areas, such as comparative literature, feminist and gender studies, growth and structure of cities, history, history of art, music, philosophy and political science, where they read works of criticism in these areas in the original German. Courses relating to any aspect of German culture, history and politics given in other departments can count toward requirements for the major or minor.
Major Requirements

The German and German studies major consists of 10 units. All courses at the 200 or 300 level count toward the major requirements, either in a literature concentration or in a German studies concentration. A literature concentration normally follows the sequence 201 and/or 202; 209 or 212, or 214, 215; plus additional courses to complete the 10 units, two of them at the 300 level; and finally one semester of Senior Conference. A German studies major normally includes 223 and/or 224; one 200- and one 300-level course in German literature; three courses (at least at the 300 level) in subjects central to aspects of German culture, history or politics; and one semester of GERM 321 (Advanced Topics in German Cultural Studies). Within each concentration, courses need to be selected so as to achieve a reasonable breadth, but also a degree of disciplinary coherence. Within departmental offerings, GERM 201 and 202 (Advanced Training) strongly emphasize the development of conversational, writing and interpretive skills. German majors are encouraged, when possible, to take work in at least one foreign language other than German.

Honors

Any student who has completed a senior thesis and whose grade point average in the major at the end of the senior year is 3.8 or higher qualifies for departmental honors. Students who have completed a thesis and whose major grade point average at the end of the senior year is 3.6 or higher, but not 3.8, are eligible to be discussed as candidates for departmental honors. A student in this range of eligibility must be sponsored by at least one faculty member with whom she has done coursework, and at least one other faculty member must read some of the student’s advanced work and agree on the excellence of the work in order for departmental honors to be awarded. If there is a sharp difference of opinion, additional readers will serve as needed.

Minor Requirements

A minor in German and German studies consists of seven units of work. To earn a minor, students are normally required to take GERM 201 or 202, and four additional units covering a reasonable range of study topics, of which at least one unit is at the 300 level. Additional upper-level courses in the broader area of German studies may be counted toward the seven units with the approval of the department.

Study Abroad

Students majoring in German are encouraged to spend some time in German-speaking countries in the course of their undergraduate studies. Various possibilities are available: summer work programs, DAAD (German Academic Exchange) scholarships for summer courses at German universities, and selected junior year abroad programs.

GERM B001, B002 Elementary German

Meets five hours a week with the individual class instructor, two hours with student drill instructors. Strong emphasis on communicative competence both in spoken and written German in a larger cultural context. (Kenosian)
GERM B101, B102 Intermediate German
Thorough review of grammar, exercises in composition and conversation. Enforcement of correct grammatical patterns and idiomatic use of language. Study of selected literary and cultural texts and films from German-speaking countries. Two semesters. (Kenosian, Meyer)

GERM B201 Advanced Training:
Language, Text, Context
Emphasis on the development of conversational, writing and interpretive skills through an introductory study of German political, cultural and intellectual life and history, including public debate, institutional practices, mass media, cross-cultural currents, folklore, fashion and advertising. Course content may vary. (Schönherr, Seyhan, Division III)

GERM B202 Introduction to German Studies
Interdisciplinary and historical approaches to the study of German language and culture. Selected texts for study are drawn from autobiography, anthropology, Märchen, satire, philosophical essays and fables, art and film criticism, discourses of gender, travel writing, cultural productions of minority groups, and scientific and journalistic writings. Emphasis is on a critical understanding of issues such as linguistic imperialism and exclusion, language and power, gender and language, and ideology and language. (Meyer, Division I or III)

GERM B209 Introduction to Literary Analysis: Philosophical Approaches to Criticism
A focus on applications and implications of theoretical and aesthetic models of knowledge for the study of literary works. (Seyhan, Division III; cross-listed as COML B209 and PHIL B209) Not offered in 2006-07.

GERM B212 Readings in German Intellectual History
Study of selected texts of German intellectual history, introducing representative works of Theodor W. Adorno, Hannah Arendt, Walter Benjamin, Sigmund Freud, Jürgen Habermas, Georg W. F. Hegel, Martin Heidegger, Werner Heisenberg, Immanuel Kant, G. E. Lessing, Karl Marx, Friedrich Nietzsche, Friedrich Schiller and Ludwig Wittgenstein. The course aims to introduce students to an advanced cultural reading range and the languages and terminology of humanistic disciplines in German-speaking countries, and seeks to develop their critical and interpretive skills. (Meyer, Schönherr, Seyhan, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B204) Not offered in 2006-07.

GERM B223 Topics in German Cultural Studies: Global Masculinities: Male Body in Contemporary Cinema
Course content varies. Previous topics include: Kafka’s Prague; Decadent Munich 1890-1925. (Kenosian, Schlipphacke, Division I or III; cross-listed as COML B223 and HART B223)

GERM H224 Art and Aesthetic Theory: The Model of Theodor Adorno
(Tettlebaum)

GERM H225 The Child in German Literature
(Tettlebaum)
GERM B231 Cultural Profiles in Modern Exile
This course investigates the anthropological, philosophical, psychological, cultural and literary aspects of modern exile. It studies exile as experience and metaphor in the context of modernity, and examines the structure of the relationship between imagined/remembered homelands and transnational identities, and the dialectics of language loss and bi- and multilingualism. Particular attention is given to the psychocultural dimensions of linguistic exclusion and loss. Readings of works by Julia Alvarez, Anita Desai, Sigmund Freud, Milan Kundera, Friedrich Nietzsche, Salman Rushdie and others. (Seyhan, Division III; cross-listed as ANTH B231 and COML B231) Not offered in 2006-07.

GERM B245 Interdisciplinary Approaches to German Literature and Culture: Nation and Identity in Post-War Austrian Literature
Course content varies. Previous topics include: Women's Narratives on Modern Migrancy, Exile and Diaspora; Sexuality and Gender in German Literature and Film. (Meyer, Division III; cross-listed as COML B245)

GERM B262 Re-Imagining the City: Berlin and Vienna in Literature and Film (World War I to the Present) (Tettlebaum)

GERM B299 Cultural Diversity and Its Representations
A focus on representations of "foreignness" and "others" in selected German works since the 18th century, including works of art, social texts and film, and on the cultural productions of non-German writers and artists living in Germany today. (Seyhan, Werlen, Division I or III; cross-listed as COML B299 and HART B298) Not offered in 2006-07.

GERM B305 Modern German Drama: Masculinity in German Drama
Theory and practice of dramatic arts in selected plays by major German, Austrian and Swiss playwrights from the 18th century to the present. Course content varies. Previous topics include Representations of Family in German Drama. (Meyer, Division III)

GERM B308 Political Transformation in Eastern and Western Europe: Germany and Its Neighbors (Hager; cross-listed as POLS B308) Not offered in 2006-07.

GERM B320 Topics in German Literature and Culture: No Place Like Home: Nostalgia in German and American Literature and Film
Course content varies. Previous topics include: Romantic Literary Theory and Literary Modernity; Configurations of Femininity; and Nietzsche and Modern Cultural Criticism. (Meyer, Schlipphacke, Seyhan, Division III; cross-listed as COML B320, HEBR B320 and HART B320)

GERM B321 Advanced Topics in German Cultural Studies: Vienna 1900
Course content varies. Previous topics include: Berlin in the 1920s; Picturing Gender in German Cinema. (Meyer, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B319, COML B321 and HART B348)
Areas of Study

GERM B329 Wittgenstein
(Koggel, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B329) Not offered in 2006-07.

GERM H359 Music—Text—Performance
(Schönherr)

GERM B380 Topics in Contemporary Art
(Saltzman, Division III; cross-listed as HART B380 and HEBR B380) Not offered in 2006-07.

GERM B399 Senior Seminar
(Meyer, Schlipphacke, Seyhan)

GERM B403 Supervised Work
(staff)

Greek, Latin and Classical Studies

Students may complete a major in Greek, Latin, Classical Languages or Classical Culture and Society. Students may complete a minor in Greek, Latin or Classical Culture and Society. Students may complete an M.A. in Latin in the combined A.B./M.A. program.

Faculty
Dobrinka Chiekova, Lecturer
Catherine Conybeare, Associate Professor
Radcliffe Edmonds, Assistant Professor and Greek Major Adviser
Richard Hamilton, Professor and Chair
Eric James Hutchinson, Instructor
Russell T. Scott, Professor, Latin Major Adviser (on leave semester II)

In collaboration with the Department of Classics at Haverford College, the department offers four concentrations in classics: Greek, Latin, classical languages, and classical culture and society. In addition to the sequence of courses specified for each concentration, all students must participate in the Senior Seminar and Conference, a full-year course. In the first term students study various fields in classics (e.g., law, literary history, philosophy, religion, social history), while in the second term they write a long research paper and present their findings to the group. Senior essays of exceptionally high quality may be awarded departmental honors at commencement.

Students, according to their concentrations, are encouraged to consider a term of study during junior year at the College Year in Athens or the Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies in Rome.

Greek

The sequence of courses in the ancient Greek language is designed to acquaint the students with the various aspects of Greek culture through a mastery of the language and a comprehension of Greek history, mythology, religion and the other basic forms of expression through which the culture developed. The works of poets, philosophers and historians are studied both in their historical context and in relation to subsequent Western thought. In addition, the department regularly offers one or more courses on Greek history, myth, literature or religion for which knowledge of the Greek language is not required.

Major Requirements

Requirements in the major are two courses at the introductory level, two courses at the 100 level, two courses at the 200 level, two courses at the 300 level (the senior seminar and conference).

Also required are three courses to be distributed as follows: one in Greek history, one in Greek archaeology and one in Greek philosophy.

The major is completed with two comprehensive examinations: one in sight translation from Greek to English and one in Greek literature and history. Prospective majors in Greek are advised to take Greek in the freshman year. For students entering with Greek there is the possibility of completing the requirements for both A.B. and M.A. degrees in four years. Qualified seniors may undertake independent research leading to a degree with honors. Those interested in pursuing advanced degrees are advised to have a firm grounding in Latin.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for a minor in Greek are two courses at the introductory level, two courses at the 100 level, two courses at the 200 level.

Courses for which a knowledge of Greek is not required are listed under Classical Culture and Society.

GREK B010, B011 Traditional and New Testament Greek

The first part of this year-long course will focus on introducing standard (Classical) Greek grammar through the fall semester. Early in the spring semester the class will split into two sections, with one section reading classical Greek authors such as Xenophon and Plato, and the other reading sections of the New Testament. (Hamilton) Not offered in 2006-07.

GREK B016, B017 Reading Greek for the Golden Age

A grammar-based, “bottom-up” introduction to classical Greek, emphasizing mastery of individual letters, nouns and verbs, and finally single sentences supplemented by readings each week from a “top-down” introduction focusing on the paragraph, comprehension of context and Greek idiom, with the goal of reading a dialogue of Plato and a speech by Lysias. This is a year-long course; both semesters are required for credit. (Hamilton)
GREK B101 Herodotus
Book I of Herodotus' History and weekly prose composition. (Edmonds, Division III)

GREK B104 Homer
Several books of the Odyssey are read and verse composition is attempted. A short essay is required. (Chiekova, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

GREK B201 Plato and Thucydides
The Symposium and The History of the Sicilian Expedition. (Hamilton, Division III)

GREK B202 The Form of Tragedy
(Edmonds, Division III)

GREK H398 Senior Seminar
(Roberts)

GREK B399 Senior Conference
(staff)

GREK B403 Supervised Work
(staff)

LATIN

The major in Latin is designed to acquaint the student with Roman literature and culture, which are examined both in their classical context and as influences on the medieval and modern world.

Major Requirements

Requirements for the major are LATN 101, 102, two literature courses at the 200 level, two literature courses at the 300 level, HIST 207 or 208, Senior Conference, and two courses to be selected from the following: LATN 205; classical archaeology or Greek at the 100 level or above; French, Italian or Spanish at the 200 level or above. Courses taken at the Intercollegiate Center for Classical Studies in Rome are accepted as part of the major. LATN 205 is required for those who plan to teach. By the end of the senior year, majors will be required to have completed a senior essay and a sight translation from Latin to English.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for the minor are normally six courses, including one at the 300 level. For nonmajors, two literature courses at the 200 level must be taken as a prerequisite for admission to a 300-level course. Students who place into 200-level courses in their first year may be eligible to participate in the A.B./M.A. program. Those interested should consult the department as soon as possible.

Courses for which a knowledge of Latin is not required are listed under Classical Culture and Society.

LATN B001, B002 Elementary Latin
Basic grammar, composition and Latin readings, including classical prose and poetry. (Conybeare)

LATN B003 Intermediate Latin
Intensive review of grammar, reading in classical prose and poetry. For students who have had the equivalent of two years of high school Latin or are not adequately prepared to take LATN 101. This course meets three times a week with a required fourth hour to be arranged. (staff)

LATN B102 Latin Literature: Livy and Horace
Prerequisite: LATN 101 or placement by the department. (staff, Division III)
LATN B202 Advanced Latin Literature: The Silver Age
Readings from major authors of the first and second centuries C.E. (Conybeare, Division III)

LATN B203 Medieval Latin Literature
Selected works of Latin prose and poetry from the late Roman Empire through the Carolingian Renaissance. (staff, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

LATN B304 Cicero and Caesar
(Scott, Division III)

LATN H398 Senior Seminar
(Roberts)

LATN B399 Senior Conference
(staff)

LATN B403 Supervised Work
(staff)

Classical Culture and Society
The major provides a broad yet individually structured background for students whose interest in the ancient classical world is general and who wish to pursue more specialized work in one or more particular areas.

Major Requirements
The requirements for the major, in addition to the Senior Conference, are 10 courses distributed as follows:

- two courses in either Latin or Greek beyond the elementary level
- two courses in Greek and/or Roman history
- three courses, at least two of which are at the 200 level or higher, in one of the following concentrations — archaeology and art history, philosophy and religion, literature and the classical tradition, or history and society
- three electives, at least one of which is at the 200 level or higher, drawn from any course listed in or cross-listed with classical culture and society
- Senior Seminar and Conference (CSTS 398-399).

Minor Requirements
For the minor, six courses drawn from the range of courses counted toward the major are required. Of these, two must be in Greek or Latin at the 100 level and at least one must be in classical culture and society at the 200 level.

Classical Languages
The major in classical languages is designed for the student who wishes to divide her time between the two languages and literatures.

Major Requirements
In addition to the Senior Conference in classical culture and society, the requirements for the major are eight courses in Greek and Latin, including at least two at the 200 level in one language and two at the 300 level in the other, the two-semester senior seminar and conference, and two courses in ancient history and/or classical archaeology. There are two final examinations: sight translation from Greek to English, and sight translation from Latin to English.
CSTS B110 The World Through Classical Eyes
A survey of the ways in which the ancient Greeks and Romans perceived and constructed their physical and social world. The evidence of ancient texts and monuments will form the basis for exploring such subjects as cosmology, geography, travel and commerce, ancient ethnography and anthropology, the idea of natural and artificial wonders, and the self-definition of the classical cultures in the context of the oikoumene, the “inhabited world.” (Donohue, Division III)

CSTS B150 Scapegoats, Outlaws and Sinners in Fifth-Century Athens
A study of marginal figures in Athenian literature, religion and politics, emphasizing the context, causes and effects of the profanation of the Eleusinian mysteries in 415 B.C.E. and the trials for impiety of Androcles and Socrates in 400 and 399 B.C.E., and including a survey of the dramatic literature of the period. Topics include the “holy man,” once polluted, now powerful; impiety trials; ostracism; beggars and exiles; pollution; sycophants and the court system. Authors include Andocides, Aristophanes, Euripides, Lysias, Sophocles, Thucydides and Xenophon. (Hamilton, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

CSTS B193 The Routes of Comedy
A broad survey, ranging from the pre-history of comedy in such phenomena as monkey laughs and ritual abuse to the ancient comedies of Greece and Rome and their modern descendants, from the Marx Brothers and Monty Python to the Honeymooners and Seinfeld. (Hamilton, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

CSTS B205 Greek History
A study of Greece down to the end of the Peloponnesian War (404 B.C.E.), with a focus on constitutional changes from monarchy through aristocracy and tyranny to democracy in various parts of the Greek world. Emphasis on learning to interpret ancient sources, including historians (especially Herodotus and Thucydides), inscriptions, and archaeological and numismatic materials. Particular attention is paid to Greek contacts with the Near East; constitutional developments in various Greek-speaking states; Athenian and Spartan foreign policies; and the “unwritten history” of nonelites. (Edmonds, Division III; cross-listed as HIST B205) Not offered in 2006-07.

CSTS B206 Society, Medicine and Law in Ancient Greece
An introduction to the social context of Greek history in the Classical and Hellenistic periods. Topics include the Greek household, occupations, slavery, literacy and education, sexuality, ancient medical practices, and the working of law in the polis. Ancient sources are emphasized, including orators, technical writers, inscriptions and papyri. (Chiekova, Division III; cross-listed as HIST B206) Not offered in 2006-07.
CSTS B207 Early Rome and the Roman Republic
The history of Rome from its origins to the end of the Republic with special emphasis on the rise of Rome in Italy, the Hellenistic world and the evolution of the Roman state. Ancient sources, literary and archaeological, are emphasized. (Scott, Division III; cross-listed as HIST B207)

CSTS B208 The Roman Empire
Imperial history from the principate of Augustus to the House of Constantine with focus on the evolution of Roman culture as presented in the surviving ancient evidence, both literary and archaeological. (Scott, Division I or III; cross-listed as HIST B208) Not offered in 2006-07.

CSTS B209 Eros in Ancient Greek Culture
This course explores the ancient Greek's ideas of love, from the interpersonal loves between people of the same of different genders to the cosmogonic Eros that creates and holds together the entire world. The course examines how the idea of eros is expressed in poetry, philosophy, history and the romances. (Edmonds, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

CSTS B211 Masks, Madness and Mysteries in Greek Religion
A review of ancient evidence, both literary and archaeological, pertaining to the cults of Demeter and Dionysus practiced in ancient Greece, followed by an examination of various modern theories that have been proposed to illuminate the significance of the rites. (Hamilton, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

CSTS B212 Ancient Magic
Bindings and curses, love charms and healing potions, amulets and talismans—from the simple spells designed to meet the needs of the poor and desperate to the complex theurgies of the philosophers, the people of the Greco-Roman world made use of magic to try to influence the world around them. This course will examine the magicians of the ancient world and the techniques and devices they used. We shall consider ancient tablets and spell books as well as literary descriptions of magic in the light of theories relating to the religious, political and social contexts in which magic was used. (Edmonds, Division III)

CSTS B220 Writing the Self
What leads people to write about their lives? Do women and men present themselves differently? Do they think different issues are important? How do they claim authority for their thoughts and experiences? Readings will include Abelard and Heloise's Letters, Augustine’s Confessions, Guibert de Nogent's A Monk's Confession, Patrick’s Confession, Perpetua’s Passion, Radegund’s Fall of Thuringia, and a collection, Medieval Writings on Female Spirituality. (Conybeare, Division III; cross-listed as COML B220)

CSTS B236 The Ancient Novel
A survey of the Greek and Roman prose fiction commonly referred to as the ancient novel. Reading these works in translation we will examine issues surrounding the rise of the genre and its cultural context, compare methods of characterization and narrative structure, investigate the relationship between historicity and fictionality, and consider connections between the ancient novel and its successors. Authors include: Apuleius, Chariton, Heliodorus, Longus, Petronius and Achilles Tatius. (staff, Division III; cross-listed as COML B236) Not offered in 2006-07.

CSTS B239 Dawn of the Middle Ages
(Bjornlie, Division I or III; cross-listed as HIST B239)

CSTS B275 Interpreting Mythology
Greek myths have provoked outrage and fascination, interpretation and retelling, censorship and elaboration. They have been read and understood, recounted and revised, in various cultures and eras, from ancient tellings to modern movies. Explores interpretive theories of understanding, from ancient allegory to modern structural and semiotic theories to gain more profound understanding of the meaning of myths and their cultural context. Provides familiarity with the range of interpretations and strategies of understanding that people of various cultures and times have applied to Greek myths. (Edmonds, Division III; cross-listed as COML B275)

CSTS 369 Topics in Medieval History: The History and Archaeology of Decline and Fall — Putting the ‘Dark Ages’ in Perspective
(Bjornlie, Division I or III; cross-listed as ARCH B369 and HIST B369)

Growth and Structure of Cities

Students may complete a major or minor in Growth and Structure of Cities. Within the major, students may complete a concentration in environmental studies and Latin American and Iberian studies (Haverford). Students may enter the 3-2 Program in City and Regional Planning, offered in cooperation with the University of Pennsylvania.

Faculty

Juan Manuel Arbona, Assistant Professor
Jeffrey A. Cohen, Senior Lecturer
Carola Hein, Associate Professor and Acting Director
John C. Keene, Visiting Professor
Gary W. McDonogh, Professor and Director (on leave 2006-07)
Sam Olshin, Visiting Studio Critic
Ingrid Steffenson, Lecturer
Ellen Stroud, Assistant Professor
Daniela Holt Voith, Senior Lecturer

The interdisciplinary growth and structure of cities major challenges the student to understand the dynamic relationship of urban spatial organization and the built environment to politics, economics, cultures and societies. Core introductory classes present analytic approaches that explore the changing forms of the city over time and analyze the variety of ways through which men and women have recreated urban life through time and across cultures. With these foundations, students pursue their interests through classes in planning, architecture, urban social and economic relations, urban history and the environmental conditions of urban life. Advanced seminars bring together these discussions by focusing on specific cities and topics.

Major Requirements

A minimum of 15 courses (11 courses in Cities and four allied courses) are required to complete the major. Two introductory courses (185, 190) balance formal and sociocultural approaches to urban form and the built environment, and introduce crosscultural and historical comparison of urban development. The introductory sequence should be completed with a broader architectural survey course (253, 254, 255) and an intensive writing course (229 or substitute). These courses should be completed as early as possible in the first and second years; at least two of them must be taken by the end of the first semester of the sophomore year.

In addition to these introductory courses, each student selects six elective courses within the Cities Program, including cross-listed courses. At least two must be at the 300 level. In the senior year, a third advanced course is required. Most students join together in a research seminar, 398. Occasionally, however, after consultation with the major advisers, the student may elect another 300-level course or a program for independent research. This is often the case with double majors.

Finally, each student must identify four courses that represent additional expertise to complement her work in the major. These may include courses such as physics and calculus for architects, special skills in design, language or regional interests. Any minor, concentration or second major also fulfills this requirement.

Both the Cities Program electives and the four or more related courses outside the program must be chosen in close consultation with the major advisers in order to create a strongly coherent sequence and focus. Note that those cities courses that are cross-listed with other departments or originate in them can be counted only once in the course selection, although they may be either allied or elective courses.

Students should also note that many courses in the program are given on an alternate-year basis. Many carry prerequisites in art history, economics, history, sociology and the natural sciences. Hence, careful planning and frequent consultations with the major advisers are particularly important. Special arrangements are made for double majors.

Given the interdisciplinary emphasis and flexibility of the program, it is rare that the programs of any two cities majors will be the same. Recurrent emphases, however, reflect the strengths of the major and incorporate the creative trajectories of student interests. These include:

Architecture and Architectural History. Students interested in architectural and urban design should pursue the studio courses (226, 228) in addition to regular introductory courses. They should also select appropriate electives in architectural history and planning to provide a broad exposure to architecture over time as well as across cultural traditions. Affiliated courses in physics and calculus meet requirements of graduate programs in architecture; the-ses may also be planned to incorporate design projects. Those students focusing more on the history of architecture should consider related offerings in the Departments of History of Art and Classical and Near Eastern Archaeology, and should carefully discuss selections with regard to study abroad in the junior year. Those preparing for graduate work should also make sure that they develop the requisite language skills. These students should consult as early as possible with Carola Hein, Daniela Voith or Jeffrey Cohen, especially if they wish to pursue graduate study outside of the United States.

Planning and Policy.

Students interested in planning and policy may wish to consider the 3-2 Program in City and Regional Planning offered with the University of Pennsylvania (see page 37). Their study plan should reflect a strong background in economics as well as relevant courses on social divisions, politics and policy-making, and ethics. As in other areas of interest, it is important that students also learn to balance their own experiences and commitments with a wider comparative framework of policy and planning options and implementation. This may include study abroad in the junior year as well as internships. Students working in policy and planning areas may consult with Juan Arbona or Gary McDonogh.

Additional trajectories have been created by students who coordinate their interests in cities with law, mass media, medicine, public health or the fine arts, including photography, drawing and other fields. The Cities Program recognizes that new issues and concerns are emerging in many areas of urban and suburban life. These must be met with solid foundations in the data of urban space and experience, cogent choices of methodology and clear analytical writing and visual analysis. Early and frequent consultation with major advisers and discussion with other students in the major are an important part of the Cities Program.

Minor Requirements

Requirements for the minor in the Cities Program are at least two out of the four required courses and four cities electives, of which two must be at the 300 level. Senior Seminar is not mandatory in fulfilling the cities minor.

Concentration in Environmental Studies

The Cities Program participates with other departments in offering a concentration in environmental studies (see page 147). Students interested in environmental policy, action or design should take CITY 175 and GEOL/CITY 103 for credit in the major. Once they follow up with BIOL 220 (which may count as an allied course), they can develop their concentration with courses in architecture, policy and other fields in cities as well as choosing relevant electives in natural sciences, social sciences and humanities. Paperwork for the concentration generally should be filed at the same time as the major work plan. Students also should consider carefully their options with regard to study abroad in the junior year and thesis topics that bridge the major and concentration. Early consultation with Ellen Stroud and the director of environmental studies is advised in the planning of courses.

Concentration in Latin American and Iberian Studies

The Cities Program has just inaugurated a cooperative arrangement with this Haverford-based concentration. This concentration entails competence in Spanish and completion of SPAN/GNPR 240 at Haverford as well as classes inside and outside the major chosen in consultation with Professor Roberto Castillo at Haverford and Cities advisers. The thesis topic should also reflect interest in Latin American and Iberian topics. This concentration also has links to a five-year cooperative M.A. program in Latin American Studies at Georgetown. Students interested in the concentration should contact Juan Arbona or Gary McDonough as well as Roberto Castillo.

3-2 Program in City and Regional Planning

Over the past two decades, many planning students have entered the 3-2 Program in City and Regional Planning, offered in conjunction with the University of Pennsylvania. Students interested in this program should meet with the major advisers early in their sophomore year (see page 37).

Volunteerism and Internships

The Cities Program promotes student volunteer activities and student internships in architectural firms, offices of urban affairs and regional planning commissions. Students wishing to take advantage of these opportunities should consult with the advisers and the Praxis Office before the beginning of the semester.

Study Abroad and Off Campus

Programs for study abroad or off campus are also encouraged, within the limits of the Bryn Mawr and Haverford rules and practices. In general, a one-semester program is preferred, but exceptions are made. The Cities Program regularly works with off-campus and study-abroad programs that are strong in architectural history, planning and design as well as those that allow students to pursue social and cultural interests. Students interested in spending all or part of their junior year away must consult with the major advisers and appropriate deans early in their sophomore year.

Haverford and Swarthmore courses may fulfill electives in the Cities Program. They may be identified in course listings and discussed with the major advisers. Courses at the University of Pennsylvania may sometimes be substituted for certain electives in the Cities Program; these should be examined in conjunction with the major advisers.

CITY B103 Earth System Science and the Environment

(Hoyle, Division III; cross-listed as GEOL B103)

CITY B121 Exploring Society by the Numbers

(Karen, Division I and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as SOCL B121)

CITY B175 Environment and Society: History, Place and Problems

The ideas, themes and methodologies of the interdisciplinary field of environmental studies, beginning with definitions: what is nature? what is environment? and how do people and their settlements fit into each? Distinct disciplinary approaches are then addressed in which scholarship can and does (and does not) inform others. Assignments introduce methodologies of environmental studies, requiring reading landscapes, working with census data and government reports, critically interpreting scientific data, and analyzing work of experts. Counts toward environmental studies concentration. (Stroud, Division I; cross-listed as SOCL B175)

CITY B185 Urban Culture and Society
Techniques and questions of the social sciences as tools for studying historical and contemporary cities. Topics include political-economic organization, conflict and social differentiation (class, ethnicity and gender), and cultural production and representation. Both qualitative and quantitative methods are explored. Philadelphia features prominently in discussion, reading and exploration. (Arbona, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B185)

CITY B190 The Form of the City: Urban Form from Antiquity to the Present
The city as a three-dimensional artifact. A variety of factors — geography, economic and population structure, politics, planning and aesthetics — are considered as determinants of urban form. (Hein, Division I or III; cross-listed as ANTH B190 and HART B190)

CITY B203 Ancient Greek Cities and Sanctuaries
(Wright, Division III; cross-listed as ARCH B203) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B205 Social Inequality
(Karen, Division I; cross-listed as SOCL B205) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B206 Statistical Methods in Economics
(Ross, Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as ECON B203)

CITY B207 Topics in Urban Studies: Philadelphia Architecture
This course involves systematic intermediate-level study of urban issues and topics aimed at polishing skills in data collection, analysis and writing. Such study may focus on particular cities, sets of institutions across cities or global issues such as development, immigration or mass media. (Cohen, Division I or III)

CITY B209 Medical Anthropology
(Pashigian, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B210)

CITY B210 Natural Hazards
(Weil, Division II and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as GEOL B209) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B212 Medieval Architecture
(Kinney, Division III; cross-listed as HART B212) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B213 Taming the Modern Corporation
(Ross, Division I; cross-listed as ECON B213)

CITY B214 Public Finance
(Newburger, Division I; cross-listed as ECON B214)
CITY B217 Research Methods and Theories
This class engages quantitative, qualitative and spatial techniques in the investigation and analysis of urban issues. While the emphasis is on designing research strategies in the context of public policy, students interested in other areas should also consider this course. This course is designed to help students prepare for their senior thesis. Form and topic will vary. Enrollment may be limited. (Arbona, Division I or III)

CITY B218 Globalization and the City
This course introduces students to contemporary issues related to the urban built environment in Africa, Asia and Latin America (collectively referred to as the Third World or developing countries) and the implications of recent political and economic changes. (Arbona, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B221 U.S. Economic History
(Redenius, Division I; cross-listed as ECON B221)

CITY B222 Introduction to Environmental Issues: Policy-Making in Comparative Perspective
(Hager, Division I; cross-listed as POLS B222)

CITY B226 Introduction to Architectural and Urban Design
An introduction to the principles of architectural and urban design. Prerequisites: some history of art or history of architecture and permission of instructor. (Olshin, Voith, Division III)

CITY B227 Topics in Modern Planning
An introduction to planning that focuses, depending on year and professor, on a general overview of the field or on specific cities or contexts. (Hein, Division III; cross-listed as HART B227) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B228 Problems in Architectural Design
A continuation of CITY 226 at a more advanced level. Prerequisites: CITY 226 or other comparable design work and permission of instructor. (Olshin, Voith, Division III)

CITY B229 Comparative Urbanism
An examination of approaches to urban development that focuses on systematic comparison of individual cities through an original research paper that is written in multiple drafts. Themes and cities vary from year to year, although a variety of cultural areas are examined in each offering. In 2006, for example, the class examined growth beyond cities — suburbs, “grand ensembles,” new towns, gated communities, shantytowns and sprawl, with case materials from Buenos Aires, Hong Kong, Los Angeles, Paris and Philadelphia. Other topics have included nature and the city, colonial and post-colonial cities, and race and immigration. (McDonogh, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B229 and EAST B229) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B232 Latin American Urban Development
A theoretical and empirical analysis in a historical setting of the factors that have shaped the urban development of Latin America, with emphasis on the relationship between political and social change
Areas of Study and economic growth. (Arbona, Division I; cross-listed as HART B232) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B234 Environmental Economics (Ross, Division I; cross-listed as ECON B234)

CITY B237 Urbanization in Africa (Ngalamulume, Division I; cross-listed as HIST B237)

CITY B242 Urban Field Research Methods (Takenaka, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B242 and SOCL B242) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B244 Great Empires of the Ancient Near East (Ataç, Division III; cross-listed as ARCH B244, HIST B244 and POLS B244) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B247 Topics: German Cultural Studies (Kenosian, Division I or III; cross-listed as GERM B223 and HIST B247) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B248 Modern Middle East Cities (Harrold, Division I; cross-listed as HEBR B248 and POLS B248) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B249 Asian American Communities (Takenaka, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B249 and SOCL B249) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B253 Survey of Western Architecture
The major traditions in Western architecture are illustrated through detailed analysis of selected examples from classical antiquity to the present. The evolution of architectural design and building technology, and the larger intellectual, aesthetic and social context in which this evolution occurred, are considered. (Hein, Cast Division III; cross-listed as ANTH B254, HART B253 and HIST B253) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B254 History of Modern Architecture
A survey of the development of modern architecture since the 18th century, with principal emphasis on the period since 1890. (Steffenson, Division III; cross-listed as HART B254)

CITY B255 Survey of American Architecture
An examination of forms, figures, contexts and imaginations in the construction of the American built environment from colonial times to the present. Materials in and from Philadelphia figure as major resources. (Cohen, Division III; cross-listed as HART B255)

CITY B266 Schools in American Cities (Cohen, Division I; cross-listed as EDUC B266 and SOCL B266)

CITY B267 History of Philadelphia, 1682 to Present (Shore, Division I; cross-listed as HIST B267) Not offered in 2006-07.
CITY B270 Japanese Architecture and Planning
The built environment in Japan does not resemble its American or European counterparts, leading visitors to characterize it as visually chaotic even as recent observers praise its lively traditional neighborhoods. This course will explore characteristics of Japanese cities, their history and presence, and will examine the particular cultural, political, economic and social contexts of urban form in Japan. (Hein, Division III; cross-listed as EAST B270 and HART B270)

CITY B272 Race and Place in Urban America
(Shedd, Division I; cross-listed as SOCL B272)

CITY B273 Topics in Early and Medieval China: Material, Social, and Philosophical Cultures
(Lin, Division I; cross-listed as EAST B270)

CITY B278 American Environmental History
Explores major themes of American environmental history, examining changes in the American landscape, development of ideas about nature, and the history of environmental activism. Explores definitions of nature, environment and environmental history while investigating interactions between Americans and their physical worlds. Counts toward environmental studies concentration. (Stroud, Division I or III; cross-listed as HIST B278)

CITY B302 Greek Architecture
(Webb, Division III; cross-listed as ARCH B302 and HART B301) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B303 Topics in American History: Immigration and Ethnicity.
(Shore, Division III; cross listed as HIST B303).

CITY B305 Ancient Athens: Monuments and Art
(Miller-Collett; cross-listed as ARCH B305) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B306 Advanced Fieldwork Techniques: Places in Time
A seminar and workshop for research into the history of place, with student projects presented in digital form on the Web. Architectural and urban history, research methods and resources for probing the history of place, the use of tools for creating Web pages and digitizing images, and the design for informational experiences are examined. (Cohen, Division I or III)

CITY B312 Topics in Medieval Art
(Easton, Division III; cross-listed as HART B311) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B314 Topics in Social Policy
(Newburger, Division I; cross-listed as ECON B314)

CITY B319 Advanced Topics in German Cultural Studies: Vienna 1900
(Meyer, Division III; cross-listed as COML B321, GERM B321 and HART B348)

CITY B321 Technology and Politics
(Hager; cross-listed as POLS B321) Not offered in 2006-07.
CITY B328 Geographic Information Systems
(Compton; cross-listed as ARCH B328 and GEOL B328).

CITY B330 Comparative Economic Sociology: Societies of the North and South
(Osirim; cross-listed as SOCL B330) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B334 Seminar on the Economics of Poverty and Discrimination
(Newburger, Division I; cross-listed as ECON B324) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B335 Mass Media and the City
An examination of urban culture as a ground for conflict, domination and resistance through both theoretical and applied analysis of production, texts, readings and social action within a political/economic framework. Topics include imagery, ownership, boundaries, audience and reinterpretation as well as critical cultural policy. Materials are drawn from U.S. and global media, from comics to the Internet, with special emphasis on film and television. (McDonogh, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B335) Not offered in 2006-7.

CITY B336 East Asian Development
(Rock, Division I; cross-listed as EAST B335 and ECON B335) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B339 The Policy Making Process
(Golden; cross-listed as POLS B339) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B345 Advanced Topics in Environment and Society
Advanced students will delve into complex issues of environmental justice and environmental racism. Read leading historical works in the field, engage literature focused on the practice and strategies of the environmental justice movement and explore more polemic works. Investigate ways in which environmentalism can and has led to environmental inequalities; study how resource allocation, property rights and access to social and economic power impact allocations of environmental amenities and risks; and learn to read and understand expressions of power in many landscapes and environments. Counts toward environmental studies concentration. (Stroud, Division I; cross-listed as SOCL B346)

CITY B348 Culture and Ethnic Conflict
(Ross; cross-listed as POLS B348) Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B355 Topics in the History of London
(Cast, Division I or III; cross-listed as HART B355 and HIST B355)

CITY B360 Topics in Urban Culture and Society: Theories of the City
A systematic reading of major theories and theorists of the city, including Castells, Harvey, Lefebvre, Marx and others. Limited to 15 with preference for cities majors and related majors. (Arbona, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B359)

CITY B365 Smart Growth: Policies and Techniques for Managing Urban Development and Redevelopment
An examination of the ways in which law and planning can serve to constrain sprawl in the contemporary United States and foster redevelopment. The seminar will examine both general issues and theories of development and case studies dealing Hebrew and Judaic Studies

Faculty
Amiram Amitai, Lecturer
Deborah Harrold, Lecturer
Tamara Neuman, Visiting Assistant Professor

Hebrew language instruction is available at Bryn Mawr on the elementary level. At Haverford, Judaic Studies courses are offered by the department of religion. Bryn Mawr also offers several courses which complement Haverford’s offerings in Judaic Studies. All of these courses are listed in the Tri-Co Course Guide under the heading “Hebrew and Judaic Studies.”

HEBR B001, B002 Elementary Hebrew
This course prepares students for reading classical religious texts as well as modern literary work. It covers grammar, composition and conversation with primary emphasis on fluency in reading as well as the development of basic conversational skills. This is a year-long course. (Amitai)

HEBR B101, B102 Critical readings in the Book of Genesis Critical reading in the book of Genesis with an emphasis on discussions related to modern commentaries. Writings of compositions on modern topics are emphasized, as well as fluent conversation in the Hebrew language. This is a year-long course. (Amitai, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

with zoning, eminent domain and other intersections of law and development. Limited to 15 with preference for cities majors. (Keene, Division I)

CITY B368 Topics in Medieval History: Urbanism and Urban Violence in Late Antiquity and the Middle Ages
(Bjornie, Division I or III; cross-listed as HIST B368)

CITY B378 The Architecture and Planning of American Collegiate Campuses
An exploration of the architecture, planning, and visual rhetoric of American collegiate campuses from their early history to the present. Historical consideration of design trends and projected imageries will be complemented by student exercises involving documentary research on design genesis and contexts, discussion of critical reception, evidence of contemporary performance and perception, and digital presentation. (Cohen, Division III)

CITY B398 Senior Seminar
An intensive research seminar. (Arbona, Hein, Stroud)

CITY B399 Senior Thesis
An intensive research seminar. Not offered in 2006-07.

CITY B403 Independent Study

Hispanic and Hispanic-American Studies

Students may complete a concentration in Hispanic and Hispanic-American Studies.

Coordinators:
Lázaro Lima (on leave 2006-07)
Enrique Sacerio-Gari

The program is designed for students interested in a comprehensive study of the society and culture of Spanish America or Spain or both. Students supplement a major in other departments with (1) SPAN 240: Hispanic Culture and Civilization, the core course for the concentration, (2) allied courses outside their major department dealing with Hispanic and Latino topics and (3) a Senior Essay focusing on a topic that cuts across all the major areas involved.

Concentration Requirements

1. Competence in Spanish, to be achieved no later than the junior year. This competence may be attested either by a score of at least 690 on the Spanish Achievement test of the College Entrance Examination Board or by the completion of a course above the intermediate level with a grade of at least 2.0.

2. SPAN 240 and at least five other courses outside the major department and approved by the program coordinator. Students should consult with their advisers as to which courses are most appropriate for their major and special interests.
3. A long paper or an independent project on Spain or Spanish America, to be completed in either semester of the junior year or the first semester of the senior year as part of the work for one of the courses in the major. Topics must be approved and the paper read by both the major department and the Hispanic studies coordinator.

4. A senior essay supervised by a faculty member in one of the departments participating in the concentration.

The Hispanic and Hispanic-American Studies concentration is under the general supervision of one member of the Department of Spanish. Students are admitted into the concentration at the end of their sophomore year after the submission of a plan of study, worked out by the student and her major department, that meets the requirements of the concentration.

History

Students may complete a major or minor in History.

A primary aim of the Department of History is to deepen students' sense of time as a factor in cultural diversity and change. Our program of study offers students the opportunity to experience the past through attention to long-range questions and comparative history.

HIST 101, (taken preferably before the junior year) aims to address specific disciplinary concerns and objectives as well as general College-wide curricular needs by introducing students to the study of history as a field. Within this framework, each instructor highlights specific themes, periods, traditions, texts and contexts to introduce students to the discipline of history.

In the 200-level courses, the department offers students the opportunity to pursue interests in specific cultures, regions, policies or societies, and enable them to experience a broad array of approaches to history.
The department’s 300-level focused topical courses build on students’ knowledge gained in 200-level classes and gives them the chance to work in a small seminar setting.

The capstone sequence of HIST 395 and 398 is a year long thesis project. In the fall, senior majors work together to hone their research skills as they prepare to write their own thesis — a process they complete in the spring.

Major Requirements

Eleven courses are required for the history major, three of which must be taken at Bryn Mawr. These are The Historical Imagination (HIST 101), which majors are encouraged to take before their junior year; and the capstone sequence — Exploring History (HIST 395) and the Senior Thesis (HIST 398), which are taken in the senior year.

The remaining eight history courses may range across fields or concentrate within them, depending on how a major’s interests develop. Of these, at least two must be seminars at the 300 level offered by the Departments of History at Bryn Mawr, Haverford or Swarthmore Colleges or the University of Pennsylvania. (It is strongly recommended that at least one of these advanced courses be taken with Bryn Mawr history faculty, as it is with one of them that majors will be working on their senior thesis.)

Only two 100-level courses may be counted toward the major. Credit toward the major is not given for either the Advanced Placement examination or the International Baccalaureate.

Honors

Majors with cumulative GPAs of at least 2.7 (general) and 3.5 (history) at the end of their senior year, and who achieve a grade of at least 3.7 on their senior thesis, qualify for departmental honors.

Minor Requirements

The requirement for the minor is six courses, at least four of which must be taken in the Bryn Mawr Department of History, and include the following — HIST 101, at least one 300-level course within the department, and two additional history courses within the department.

HIST B101 The Historical Imagination

Explores some of the ways people have thought about, represented and used the past across time and space. Introduces students to modern historical practices and debates through examination and discussion of texts and archives that range from scholarly monographs and documents to monuments, oral traditions and other media. Majors are required to take this course, preferably before the junior year. (Gallup-Diaz, Division I or III)

HIST B131 Chinese Civilization

(Kim, Division I or III; cross-listed as EAST B131) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B200 European Expansion and Competition: History of Three Worlds: The Atlantic World

The aim of this course is to provide an understanding of the way in which peoples, goods and ideas from Africa, Europe and the Americas came together to form an interconnected Atlantic World system. The course is designed to chart the manner in which an integrated system was created in the Americas in the early modern period, rather than to treat the history of the Atlantic World as nothing more than an expanded version of North American, Caribbean or Latin American history. (Gallup-Diaz, Division I or III; cross-listed as ANTH B200)

HIST B202 American History: 1850 to the Present
Covering U.S. history from Civil War to the present, this course is designed to provide an overview of the central political and social changes that have produced the modern American nation. (Ullman, Division I or III) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B203 High Middle Ages
An introduction to the major cultural changes in the societies of Europe and the Mediterranean basin from circa 1000 to 1348. (Staff, Division I or III) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B205 Greek History
(Edmonds, Division III; cross-listed as CSTS B205) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B206 Society, Medicine and Law in Ancient Greece
(Chiekova, Division III; cross-listed as CSTS B206) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B207 Early Rome and the Early Republic
(Edmonds, Scott, Division III; cross-listed as CSTS B207)

HIST B208 The Roman Empire
(Scott, Division I or III; cross-listed as CSTS B208) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST 219 The ‘Other’ Side of Medieval Society: Gender, Poverty and the Excluded
Although the marginalized and excluded of medieval society have contributed less directly to the historical record of the Middle Ages than we would have it, their presence nonetheless impacted the dominant culture in profound ways. This course will consider ways in which that dominant culture became defined by the unrepresented margins by examining the lives of women, the poor, Jews, heretics and homosexuals. Our inquiry will begin with late-Roman attitudes toward the excluded and progress to the culture dominated by the high medieval Church. (Bjornlie, Division I or III)

HIST B225 Europe’s Long 19th Century: Revolution and Progress
Beginning with the “dual revolutions” of France in 1789 and industry in England, this course will examine the key ideas and forces that contributed to Europe’s religion of progress in the age of its worldwide dominance before World War I. We will examine political ideologies, the nation-state, imperialism, domestic life and consumer society, among other themes. (Lazda, Division III)

HIST B226 Europe in the 20th Century: From Catastrophe to Coexistence
This course will explore the history of Europe in this century from a number of vantage points and through themes that will involve going backwards and forwards in time. This will allow us to revisit issues or periods from different perspectives, and to study the history of issues that may currently be in the news. Topics covered will include Europe’s 20th-century wars; revolution in Soviet Russia and counter-revolution in Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany; Europe’s “others,” including Jews, colonial peoples and post-imperial diasporas; welfare states; the 1960s; and post-Cold War Europe. (Lazda, Division I or III)

HIST B227 American Attractions: Leisure, Technology, and National Identity
This interdisciplinary class looks at the forms and social roles of public spectacles in America from the end of the Civil War to the present and introduces a range of theoretical approaches to cultural analysis. We will focus on the relationship between technological change and the development of commercialized leisure and look at the construction of national identity through popular forms such as the circus, expositions and fairs, museums, malls and especially the cinema. (Ullman, P. White [Swarthmore], Division I or III; cross-listed as ENGL B227)

HIST B228 Benjamin Franklin: His Life and Legacy
The readings for this course will center on Ben’s own Autobiography, which will be assigned to be read before the class begins, and biographies of him through the last 300 years. We will discuss the man, his legacy, his meaning to generations of U.S. citizens, his place in the scientific world and in popular culture. Assignments will center on the varying interpretations of his life through the last three centuries. (Shore, Division I or III) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B235 Africa to 1800
The course explores the development of African societies to 1800. Themes will be drawn from across the continent. We will discuss issues related to the creation, maintenance or destruction of a social order (small-scale societies and states), production, social reproduction, explanations, identities, conflicts, external contacts and social change, and examine selective narratives, documents, debates and films. (Ngalamulume, Division I or III) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B236 African History: Africa Since 1800
The course analyzes the history of Africa in the last two hundred years in the context of global political economy. We will examine the major themes in modern African history, including the 19th century state formation, expansion or restructuration; partition and resistance; colonial rule; economic, social, political, religious and cultural developments; nationalism; post-independence politics, economics, and society, as well as conflicts and the burden of disease. The course will also introduce students to the sources and methods of African history. (Ngalamulume, Division I or III)

HIST B237 Themes in Modern African History: Urbanization in Africa
The course examines the cultural, environmental, economic, political and social factors that contributed to the expansion and transformation of preindustrial cities, colonial cities and cities today. We will examine various themes, such as the relationship between cities and societies, migration and social change, urban space, health problems, city life and women. (Ngalamulume, Division I or III; cross-listed as CITY B237)
HIST B239 Dawn of the Middle Ages
Described as Late Antiquity or the Early Middle Ages, the period from Constantine to Charlemagne (roughly 300 to 800 C.E.) represents an age of dynamic cultural transition sometimes viewed as a crucible for the blending of Roman, barbarian and Christian. This course will examine key categories of cultural change including urban and rural landscapes, court society and elites, the movement of migrant peoples, education and literary practices, art, diverse religious practices and Church authority. (Bjornlie, Division I or III; cross-listed as CSTS B239)

HIST B241 American Politics and Society: 1890-1945
While the 20th century has often been called the American Century (usually by Americans), this century can truthfully be looked to as the moment when American influence and power, for good and ill, came to be felt on a national and global scale. While much of this "bigfoot" quality is associated with the post-WWII period, one cannot understand the America of today — at the dawn of the 21st century — without looking at this earlier moment. This course looks closely at the political, social and cultural developments that helped shape America in these pivotal years. (Ullman, Division I or III)

HIST B242 American Politics and Society: 1945 to the Present
This is a lecture course focusing on America after World War II that explores the political, social and cultural factors creating recent American history. Special attention will be paid to social movements and foreign policy. (Ullman, Division I or III) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B243 Atlantic Cultures: Maroon Societies
The course explores the process of self-emancipation by slaves in the early modern Atlantic World. What was the nature of the communities that free blacks forged? What were their relationships to the empires from which they had freed themselves? How was race constructed in the early modern period? Did conceptions of race change over time? Through readings and discussion we will investigate the establishment of autonomous African settlements and cultures throughout the Americas, and examine the nature of local autonomy within a strife-torn world of contending empires and nation-states. (Gallup-Diaz, Division I or III)

HIST B244 Great Empires of the Ancient Near East
(Ataç, Division III; cross-listed as ARCH B244, CITY B244 and POLS B244) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B247 Topics: German Cultural Studies
(Kenosian, Division I or III; cross-listed as CITY B247 and GERM B223) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B250 Nazi Germany and the Holocaust
This course examines political, cultural and socioeconomic factors in the creation of the Third Reich and the mass murder of European Jews as well as the memory and representation of the Holocaust. (Lazda, Division I or III) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B257 British Empire I: Capitalism and Slavery
Focusing on the Atlantic slave trade and the slave plantation mode of production, this course explores English colonization, and the emergence and the decline of British Empire in the Americas and Caribbean from the 17th through the late 20th centuries. It tracks some of the intersecting and overlapping routes — and roots — connecting histories and politics within and between these “new” world locations. It also tracks the further and proliferating links between developments in these regions and the histories and politics of regions in the “old” world, from the north Atlantic to the South China sea. (Kale, Division I or III)

HIST B252 Introduction to Korean Culture
(Kim, Division III; cross-listed as EAST B234) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B253 Survey of Western Architecture
(Hein, Division III; cross-listed as ANTH B254, CITY B253 and HART B253) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B258 British Empire: Imagining Indias
This course considers ideas about and experiences of “modern” India, i.e., India during the colonial and post-independence periods (roughly 1757-present). While “India” and “Indian history” along with “British empire” and “British history” will be the ostensible objects of our consideration and discussions, the course proposes that their imagination and meanings are continually mediated by a wide variety of institutions, agents and analytical categories (nation, religion, class, race, gender, to name a few examples). The course uses primary sources, scholarly analyses and cultural productions to explore the political economies of knowledge, representation and power in the production of modernity. (Kale, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B261 Palestine and Israeli Society: Cultural and Historical Perspectives
(Neuman; cross-listed as ANTH B261, GNST B261 and HEBR B261)

HIST B264 Passages from India: 1800-Present
This course explores the histories and effects of migration from the Indian subcontinent to far-flung destinations across the globe. It starts with the circular migrations of traders, merchants and pilgrims in the medieval period from the Indian subcontinent to points east (in southeast Asia) and west (eastern Africa). The focus of the course is on modern migrations from the subcontinent, from the indentured labor migrations of the British colonial period (to Africa, the Caribbean and the South Pacific) to the post-Independence emigrations from the new nations of the subcontinent to Australia, Britain, Canada, New Zealand and the United States. (Kale, Division I or III)

HIST B265 Colonial Encounters in the Americas
The course explores the confrontations, conquests and accommodations that formed the “ground-level” experience of day-to-day colonialism throughout the Americas. The course is comparative in scope, examining events and structures in North, South and Central America, with particular attention paid to indigenous peoples and the nature of indigenous leadership in the colonial world of the 18th century. (Gallup-Diaz, Division I or III) Not offered in 2006-07.
HIST B267 History of Philadelphia, 1682 to Present
This course will focus on the intersection of the sense of Philadelphia as it is popularly understood and the Philadelphia that we can reconstruct individually and together using scholarly books and articles, documentary and popular films and novels, visual evidence, and visits to the chief repositories of the city's history. We will analyze the relationship between the official representations of Philadelphia and their sources and we will create our own history of the city. Preference given to junior and senior growth and structure of cities and history majors and those students who were previously lotteried out of the course. (Shore, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B267) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B271 Medieval Islamic Society and Politics
This course examines the rise and fall of Islamic empires, focusing on political, social and religious movements within the Islamic world from the early conquests until the early Ottoman state. Considers the role of geography in history, state formation and consolidation, the change from tribal societies into settled empires, the place of the medieval Islamic world in a global context and the social and sectarian divisions that caused political turmoil. (Jacobs)

HIST B278 American Environmental History
(Stroud, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B278)

HIST B282 Women and Gender in Modern Europe
Investigates the participation of women in European history from the French Revolution to the present and examines how gender analysis informs narratives of the past. Topics include: gender and nationalism, socialism and feminism, women and war, femininity and masculinity. Course counts toward gender and sexuality studies concentration. (Lazda, Division I or III) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B283 Introduction to the Politics of the Modern Middle East and North Africa
(Harrold, Division I; cross-listed as HEBR B283 and POLS B283)

HIST B290 Israel and the Palestinians
(Harrold, Division I; cross-listed as HEBR B233 and POLS B233) Not offered in 2006-07.

HIST B303 Topics in American History: Immigration and Ethnicity
How we understand the history of immigration to the territory now known as the United States has been transformed by recent explorations of the notion of "whiteness." This course will be framed by the ways in which this powerful lens for interpretation has helped to recast the meaning of ethnicity as we focus on individual immigrant groups and the context which they both entered and created from the 17th century to the present. The first half of the semester will concentrate largely on the "century of immigration," from the early 19th through the early 20th century. (Shore, Division I or III; cross-listed as CITY B303)
HIST B318 Topics in Modern European History: Totalitarianism in Modern Europe: Stalinism and Nazism
This course compares different manifestations of totalitarianism — communism, fascism and National Socialism and how these regimes shaped 20th-century European societies. We will examine how totalitarian leaders sought to establish total control from above as well as how individuals collaborated, resisted and simply sought to survive. We will discuss the theoretical and historiographical debates on totalitarianism as a category of analysis. Finally, we will conclude the course with an examination of the memory of totalitarianism through an analysis of literature and film. (Lazda, Division I or III)

HIST B319 Topics in Modern European History: Film, Propaganda and Power
This course will view modern European history through the lens of film, addressing how film depicts the past from revolution and war to everyday life. We will also discuss larger topics about the relationship between film, power and European identity, including: film as propaganda; the use of film to challenge traditional historical narratives; and the role of film in shaping regional, national, and European identities. (Lazda, Division I or III)

HIST B325 Topics in Social History: American Radicals
Americans have often resisted injustice through radical means. Although commonly erased by history or marginalized in memory as ineffective, in fact radical political actions have profoundly transformed the course of American history. From John Brown to the Black Panthers to ACT UP, American radicals have changed America. This seminar focuses on key radical movements and actors from the ante bellum era through today. (Ullman, Division I or III)

HIST B327 Topics in Early American History: Indians of the Americas
This course explores the complex nature of the “religious conquest” of indigenous peoples that was an adjunct process to the physical conquest of territory in the early modern period (1500-1800). We will investigate the indigenous religious systems as they existed before contact, the modes of Christianity that the European missionaries worked to impose upon the “conquered,” and the nature of the complicated forms of ritual practice and spirituality that arose in the communities of those peoples that survived the conquest. (Gallup-Diaz, Division I or III; cross-listed as ANTH B327)

HIST B337 Topics in African History: Social History of Medicine in Africa
The course will focus on the issues of social history as well as the issues of the history of medicine. We will explore various themes, such as the indigenous theories of disease and therapies, disease, imperialism and medicine, medical pluralism in contemporary Africa, the emerging diseases, medical education, women in medicine and differential access to health care. We will also discuss the questions regarding the sources of African history and their quality. (Ngalamulume, Division I or III)

HIST B355 Topics in the History of London
(Cast; cross-listed as CITY B355 and HART B355)
HIST B357 Topics in British Empire: End of the Raj and Birth of the Nations
This advanced topics seminar in history of the British empire explores the politics and genealogies of nationalist movements in the Indian subcontinent from the late 19th century through the establishment of sovereign nations after 1947, and on into the present. Course texts will include the political manifestos, short stories, poetry, plays and films of contemporaries (both well-known and obscure) as well as recent scholarship on the histories and politics of the nations in the region. (Kale, Division I or III)

HIST B368 Topics in Medieval History: Urbanism and Urban Violence in Late Antiquity and the Middle Ages
The cities of antiquity and medieval Europe localized and intensified cultural changes that periodically culminated in outbreaks of political dissent and intense violence. Such flashpoints have a range of causes — demographic shifts, political opportunism, social injustice and religious rivalry. This course will examine a series of case studies for urban violence including religious riots in late-antique Rome and Alexandria, circus riots in Constantinople, factional violence between families in medieval Tours, Jewish pogroms during the Crusades and student uprisings in medieval Paris. (Bjornlie, Division I or III; cross-listed as CITY B368)

HIST 369 Topics in Medieval History: The History and Archaeology of Decline and Fall — Putting the ‘Dark Ages’ in Perspective
Recent decades have produced a formidable amount of scholarship on the transition of the Roman Empire into a society of medieval kingdoms. Depending on a scholar’s perspective, Europe is either described as experiencing decline and fall gradually over centuries or spasmodically as the result of catastrophic intervention. This course will examine the often widely divergent interpretations of material and documentary evidence (primarily from the 5th and 6th centuries) offered by classicists, historians and archaeologists. Our inquiry will attempt to shed light on the nature of the ‘Dark Ages.’ (Bjornlie, Division I or III; cross-listed as ARCH B369 and CSTS B369)

HIST B371 Topics in Atlantic History: The Early Modern Pirate in Fact and Fiction
This course will explore piracy in the Americas in the period 1550-1750. We will investigate the historical reality of pirates and what they did, and the manner in which pirates have entered the popular imagination through fiction and films. Pirates have been depicted as lovable rogues, anti-establishment rebels and enlightened multiculturalists who were skilled in dealing with the indigenous and African peoples of the Americas. The course will examine the facts and the fictions surrounding these important historical actors. (Gallup-Diaz, Division I or III)

HIST B381 The Arabian Peninsula Since 1700
The Arabian Peninsula has been important to world history and trade long before the discovery of oil. This course examines the history of Saudi Arabia, Yemen, Oman and the Gulf states from 1700 until today. Topics include provincial Ottoman politics; colonialism and trade; the changing relationship between sectarianism and monarchy; the transformations of society following the rise of the Wahhabis and the discovery of oil; dissident movements in the various peninsula countries; and finally, the role of the peninsula states in world politics and history today. (Jacobs)

HIST B383 Two Hundred Years of Islamic Reform, Radicalism and Revolution (Harrold, Division I; cross-listed as POLS B383).

HIST B395 Exploring History
An intensive introduction to theory and interpretation in history through the discussion of exemplary historiographical debates and analyses selected by the instructor. The coursework also includes research for and completion of a prospectus for an original research project. These two goals prepare senior majors for their own historical production in the spring semester, when the senior thesis is completed and presented. Enrollment is limited to senior history majors. (Ullman, Division I or III)

HIST B398 Senior Thesis
The second semester of a year-long sequence. This semester students research and write a thesis on a topic of their choice. Enrollment is limited to senior history majors. (Ngalamulume, Shore, Division I or III)

HIST B403 Supervised Work
Optional independent study, which requires permission of the instructor and the major adviser. (staff)

History of Art

Students may complete a major or minor in History of Art.

Faculty

David J. Cast, Professor
Martha Easton, Lecturer
Christiane Hertel, Professor (on leave semester II)
Homay King, Assistant Professor
Dale Kinney, Professor
Steven Z. Levine, Professor
Gridley McKim-Smith, Professor and Major Advisor
Lisa Saltzman, Associate Professor and Acting Chair
Suzanne Spain, Lecturer

The curriculum in History of Art immerses students in the study of visual culture. Structured by a set of evolving disciplinary concerns, students learn to interpret the visual through methodologies dedicated to the historical, the material, the critical and the theoretical. Majors are encouraged to supplement courses taken in the department with history of art courses offered at Swarthmore and the University of Pennsylvania. Majors are also encouraged to study abroad for a semester. Should they choose to do so, they should plan to undertake that work during the spring semester of their junior year.

Major Requirements

The major requires eleven units, approved by the major adviser. A usual sequence of courses would include at least one 100-level "critical approaches" seminar, four 200-level lecture courses, four 300-level seminars, and two semesters of senior conference. Beginning with the class of 2008, majors will be required to take junior seminar in the fall semester of the junior year and senior conference in the spring semester of senior year. In the course of their departmental studies, students are strongly encouraged to take courses across media and areas, and in at least three of the following fields of study: Ancient and Medieval, Renaissance and Baroque, Modern and Contemporary, Film, and non-Western.

With the approval of the major adviser, courses in fine arts or with significant curricular investment in visual studies may be counted toward the fulfillment of the distribution requirements. Similarly, courses in art history taken abroad or at another institution in the United States may be counted. Generally, no more than two such courses may be counted toward the major requirements.

A senior paper, based on independent research and using scholarly methods of historical and/or critical interpretation must be submitted at the end of the spring semester. Generally 25-40 pages in length, the senior paper represents the culmination of the departmental experience.

Honors

Seniors whose major average at the beginning of the spring semester is 3.7 or higher will be invited to write an honors thesis instead of the senior paper.

Minor Requirements

A minor in history of art requires six units: one or two 100-level courses and four or five others selected in consultation with the major adviser.

HART B100 The Stuff of Art

(Burgmayer, Division III; cross-listed as CHEM B100) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B104 Critical Approaches to Visual Representation: The Classical Tradition

An investigation of the historical and philosophical ideas of the classical, with particular attention to the Italian Renaissance and the continuance of its formulations throughout the Westernized world. (Cast, Division III)

HART B105 Critical Approaches to Visual Representation: Poetry and Politics in Landscape Art

An introduction to the representation and perception of nature in different visual media, with attention to such issues as nature and utopia; nature and violence; natural freedom; and the femininity of nature. (Hertel, Division III)

HART B107 Critical Approaches to Visual Representation: Self and Other in the Arts of France

A study of artists’ self-representations in the context of the philosophy and psychology of their time, with particular attention to issues of political patronage, gender and class, power and desire. (Levine, Division III)
HART B108 Critical Approaches to Visual Representation: Women, Feminism and History of Art
An investigation of the history of art since the Renaissance organized around the practice of women artists, the representation of women in art and the visual economy of the gaze. (Easton, Division III)

HART B110 Critical Approaches to Visual Representation: Identification in the Cinema
An introduction to the analysis of film through particular attention to the role of the spectator. (King, Division III)

HART B190 The Form of the City (Hein, Division I or III; cross-listed as ANTH B190 and CITY B190)

HART B204 Greek Sculpture (Webb, Division III; cross-listed as ARCH B205) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B205 Introduction to Film (Horne, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B205)

HART B206 Hellenistic and Roman Sculpture (Donohue, Division III; cross-listed as ARCH B206) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B210 Medieval Art
An overview of artistic production in Europe antiquity to the 14th century. Special attention will be paid to problems of interpretation and recent developments in art-historical scholarship. (Easton, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B212 Medieval Architecture
A survey of medieval building types, including churches, mosques, synagogues, palaces, castles and government structures, from the fourth through the 14th centuries in Europe, the British Isles and the Near East. Special attention to regional differences and interrelations, the relation of design to use, the respective roles of builders and patrons. (Kinney, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B212) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B223 Topics in German Cultural Series: Global Masculinity: Male Body in Contemporary Cinema (staff, Division I or III; cross-listed as COML B223 and GERM B223)

HART B227 Topics in Modern Planning (Hein, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B227) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B230 Renaissance Art
A survey of painting in Florence and Rome in the 15th and 16th centuries (Botticelli, Giotto, Leonardo, Masaccio, Michelangelo, Raphael), with particular attention to contemporary intellectual, social and religious developments. (Cast, Division III)

HART B237 Northern Renaissance Art
An introduction to painting, graphic arts and sculpture in Germany in the first half of the 16th century, with emphasis on the influence of the Protestant Reformation on the visual arts. Artists studied include Altdorfer, Cranach, Dürer, Grünewald, Holbein and Riemenschneider. (Hertel, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B238 Silent Film: International Film to 1930 (Horne, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B238)
HART B239 Women and Cinema
(Horne, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B239) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B241 Art of the Spanish-Speaking World
A study of painting and sculpture in Spain from 1492 to the early 19th century, with emphasis on such artists as El Greco, Goya, Velázquez, Zurbarán and the polychrome sculptors. As relevant, commentary is made on Latin America and the Spanish world’s complex heritage, with its contacts with Islam, Northern Europe and pre-Columbian cultures. Continuities and disjunctions within these diverse traditions as they evolve both in Spain and the Americas are noted, and issues of canon formation and national identity are raised. (McKim-Smith, Division III)

HART B245 Dutch Art of the 17th Century
A survey of painting in the Northern Netherlands with emphasis on such issues as Calvinism, civic organization, colonialism, the scientific revolution, popular culture and nationalism. Attention is given to various approaches to the study of Dutch painting; to its inherited classification into portrait, still life, history, scenes of social life, landscape and architectural paintings; and to the oeuvres of some individual artists, notably Vermeer and Rembrandt. (Hertel, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B246 Interdisciplinary Approaches to German Literature and Culture
(Meyer, Division III; cross-listed as GERM B245) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B250 Nineteenth-Century Art in France
Close attention is selectively given to the work of Cézanne, Courbet, David, Degas, Delacroix, Géricault, Ingres, Manet and Monet. Extensive readings in art criticism are required. (Levine, Division III)

HART B253 Survey of Western Architecture
(Hein, Division III; cross-listed as ANTH B254, CITY B253 and HIST B253) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B254 History of Modern Architecture
(staff, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B254)

HART B255 Survey of American Architecture
(Cohen, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B255)

HART B266 Contemporary Art and Theory
America, Europe and beyond, from the 1950s to the present, in visual media and visual theory. (Saltzman, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B269 Japanese Art
A study of visual culture of Japan from prehistory to the present, through the lens of Japanese history, literature and religion. Topics will include: the interaction of Buddhism and Japanese art and architecture; the illustration of the “Tale of Genji” and Heian court culture; scrolls, screens and the mechanics of painting format; nature as literary and symbolic motif; class, gender and ukiyo-e; and trends in contemporary Japanese art. Discusses the idea of cultural interaction and appropriation between Japan, China and the West. (Easton, Division III)

HART B270 Japanese Architecture and Planning
(Hein, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B270 and EAST B270)

HART B276 Video Art
If the “origins” of video art date to 1965, when Sony introduced its Portapac to the United States and Nam Jun Paik shot his first piece in New York; its theorization dates to 1976, when Rosalind Krauss published her field defining essay. This course functions as both an introduction to and an immersion in the history and theory of video art. (Saltzman, Division III)

HART B298 Cultural Diversity and Its Representations
(Werlen, Division I or III; cross-listed as COML B299 and GERM B299) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B299 History of Narrative Cinema
(King, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B299)

HART B301 Greek Architecture
(Webb, Division III; cross-listed as ARCH B302 and CITY B302) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B303 Art and Technology
A consideration of the technological examination of paintings. While studying the appropriate aspects of technology — such as the infrared vidicon, the radiograph and autoradiograph, analysis of pigment samples and pigment cross-sections — students are also encouraged to approach the laboratory in a spirit of creative scrutiny. Raw data neither ask nor answer questions, and it remains the province of the students to shape meaningful questions and answers. Students become acquainted with the technology involved in examining paintings and are encouraged to find fresh applications for available technology in answering art-historical questions. (McKim-Smith, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B305 Classical Bodies
(Donohue, Division III; cross-listed as ARCH B303)

HART B311 Topics in Medieval Art
Topics include illuminated manuscripts and the role of gender in medieval art. (Easton, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B312) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B320 Topics in German Literature and Culture: No Place Like Home: Nostalgia
(staff, Division III; cross-listed as COML B320, GERM B320 and HEBR B320)

HART B321 Late Gothic Painting in Northern Europe
A study of late medieval illuminated manuscripts and Early Netherlandish painting. (Easton)

HART B327 Feminist Film Theory and Practice
An intensive introduction to feminist film theory and films by feminist directors. (King, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B327) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B329 Screen Melodrama
(Horne, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B329)
HART B334 Topics in Film Studies: Orientalism and Cinema
Explores cinematic representations of East Asia from the 1920s to the present. Examines how Hollywood films have replicated stereotypes that depict East Asia not only as other and primitive, but also as enigmatic, duplicitous and untranslatable in Western knowledge and representation systems. Looks at films from Europe and Asia that complicate the stereotype. Students will gain tools for understanding Orientalism and for thinking broadly about cross-cultural exchange and the relation between the self and other. Prerequisite: HART/ENGL 205, HART/ENGL 299 or equivalent. (King, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B334)

HART B348 Topics in German Art: Vienna 1900
(Meyer, Division III; cross-listed as CITY B319, COML B321 and GERM B321)

HART B349 Theories of Authorship in the Cinema
The study of the author-director remains one of the primary categories through which film is to be understood; various directors and critical approaches to this topic will be studied. (King; cross-listed as ENGL B349) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B350 Topics in Modern Art: Art and Psychoanalysis
(Levine, Division III)

HART B354 Topics in Art Criticism
Individual topics in art-historical methodology, such as art and psychoanalysis, feminism, post-structuralism or semiotics are treated. (Levine; cross-listed as COML B354) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B355 Topics in the History of London
Selected topics of social, literary and architectural concern in the history of London, emphasizing London since the 18th century. (Cast, Division I or III; cross-listed as CITY B355 and HIST B355)

HART B359 Topics in Urban Culture and Society: Theories of the City
(Arbona, Division I or III; cross-listed as ANTH B359 and CITY B360)

HART B380 Topics in Contemporary Art
Poems and novels, films and photographs, paintings and performances, monuments and memorials, even comics — in the aftermath of Art Spiegelman’s Maus — have been the cultural forms that engage us with the catastrophic and traumatic history of the Holocaust. Through these cultural forms we have come to know events considered by some to defy the very possibility of historical, let alone aesthetic, representation. Our task will be to examine such cultural objects, aided by the extensive body of the critical, historical, theoretical and ethical writings through which such work has been variously critiqued and commented. (Saltzman, Division III; cross-listed as GERM B380 and HEBR B380) Not offered in 2006-07.

HART B381 Topics in Japanese Art
A study of the visual culture of Japan from prehistory to the present, seen through the lens of history, literature and religion. Trends in contemporary Japanese art in the late 20th and early 21st centuries will also be considered, as will the cultural interaction of Japan, China and the West. (Easton, Division III; cross-listed as EAST B381) Not offered in 2006-07.
HART B397 Junior Seminar
The junior seminar, required of all majors beginning with the class of 2008 and held in the fall of the junior year, provides entering majors with an opportunity to delve intensively into the methods and materials of their chosen discipline. The junior seminar expands and refines the modes of disciplinary inquiry first encountered in the 100-level introductory seminars and equips students with the tools necessary for a productive intellectual experience in the major. (Saltzman, Division III)

HART B398 Senior Conference
A critical review of the discipline of art history in preparation for the senior paper. Required of all majors. (Easton)

HART B399 Senior Conference
A seminar for the discussion of senior research papers and such theoretical and historical concerns as may be appropriate to them. Interim oral reports. Required of all majors; culminates in the senior paper. (King)

HART B403 Supervised Work
Advanced students may do independent research under the supervision of a faculty member whose special competence coincides with the area of the proposed research. Consent of the supervising faculty member and of the major adviser is required. (staff)

INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

Students may complete a minor in International Studies.

International studies is the study of relationships among people and states affected by increasingly permeable borders and facing global issues. The minor in international studies aims to prepare students to be responsible citizens by introducing them to issues of importance in an increasingly interdependent world of global dynamics in politics, economics, ideas, language and culture. Around the world, international studies programs are preparing students for productive roles in transnational or intergovernmental institutions and in the areas of public policy, governance, business, diplomacy, development and cultural studies. A goal of the minor is to provide a foundation for students interested in pursuing career opportunities in these areas or in entering graduate programs in international studies.
The minor combines applied and theoretical approaches to international studies and draws from an increasing number of disciplines that are now exploring the descriptive and normative aspects of living in a world impacted by features of globalization. The minor allows students to use the disciplinary methods and materials acquired in their major as a base from which to engage in the necessarily inter- and multidisciplinary course work of international studies. Finally, the minor employs a broad conception of international studies by incorporating the study of politics, economics and political theory (as captured in the core courses) with the complementary study of specific themes (as captured by each of the five tracks).

Although language study is not required per se for the minor, students intending to undertake graduate work in international studies should plan to acquire proficiency in a foreign language, which is a requirement (at the time of admission or graduation) in the most selective programs here and abroad.

Minor Requirements

Students minoring in international studies must complete a total of seven courses. Four of these are core courses. Three of these form a coherent group coming (one each) from political science, economics and philosophy and the fourth provides critical inquiry into cultural differences. The core courses form the base from which students can then concentrate their study in one of five tracks: international politics, international economics, social justice, area studies, or language and arts. Within a track, students can choose three electives from among a range of courses drawn from the social sciences and humanities. The three electives should demonstrate coherence and be approved by an adviser from the Center for International Studies.

Core courses

There are a total of four core courses. All students are required to take three courses, one from each of political science, economics and philosophy. These disciplines have become central to international studies programs. Each of the two sets identified below form a coherent group of three courses designed to introduce students to the field as a whole by providing them with resources for studying the most basic elements of globalization in the context of international relations, economics and politics. If one of the core courses from a set is not offered in a given year, substitutions will be made with another allied course, offered at Bryn Mawr or Haverford, with the approval of an adviser from the Center for International Studies.

POLS B141 Introduction to International Politics
ECON B225 Economic Development
PHIL B344 Development Ethics

or

PHIL B221 Ethics
ECON B206 International Trade
POLS B391 International Political Economy

To complete the core requirements, students must take one course on cultural differences. This requirement allows students to acquire a greater appreciation of the significance of culture in the global context by providing an awareness of how different values, norms, beliefs and practices affect possibilities for understanding different cultures and for cross-cultural dialogue and consensus. The course may be selected from (but is not limited to) the following:

ANTH B102 Introduction to Anthropology: Cultural Anthropology

COML/PHIL B202 or B323 Culture and Interpretation

COML/ITAL/HEBR B211 Primo Levi, the Holocaust and Its Aftermath

ANTH/COML/GERM/CITY B245 Women’s Narratives on Modern Migrancy, Exile and Diaspora

FREN B251 La Mosaïque France

Electives

In addition to the four core courses listed above, three electives are required. Each of the five tracks identifies a major topic or theme in international studies that builds on or develops the core. Students should choose the three electives from the approved lists under one of the tracks identified below. Electives should demonstrate coherence and be approved by an adviser. At least one of the courses must be a 300-level course. Please refer to the International Studies Web site for detailed information regarding approved electives: http://www.brynmawr.edu/international-studies.

International Politics

This track allows students to focus on the dynamics and structures of intergovernmental and transnational relationships from the perspective of the discipline of political science. Through engagement with the most salient theoretical and policy debates, students may focus upon such themes as globalization and resistance to it, development and sustainability, nationalism and sovereignty, human rights, conflict and peace, public international law and institutions, and nongovernmental or civil society organizations and movements at regional, transregional and global levels.

The three elective courses are to be selected from an approved list or be approved by an adviser from the Center for International Studies.

International Economics

This track allows students to focus on various theoretical, empirical and policy issues in international economics. Each of the courses in the track — trade, open-economy macroeconomics, development and environmental economics — focuses on different economic aspects of the international or global economy. International trade looks at the major theories offered to explain trade and examines the effects of trade barriers and trade liberalization on welfare. International macroeconomics and international finance examines policy-making in open economies, exchange rate systems, exchange rate behavior, and financial integration and financial crises. Development economics is concerned, among other things, with understanding how developing countries can structure their participation in the global economy so as to benefit their development. Environmental economics uses economic analysis to examine the behavioral causes of local, regional and global environmental and natural resource problems and to evaluate policy responses to them.

The three elective courses are to be selected from an approved list or be approved by a faculty member in Economics affiliated with the Center for International Studies.

Social Justice

This track allows students to explore issues of social and political change in the context of economic and political transition in the global context. Students gain insight into how global issues affect relationships among people and cultures within and across national boundaries and how global issues are in turn affected by these relationships. Major themes include: a) migration, imperialism and colonialism; b) international/ethnic conflict and cooperation; c) culture and values; d) justice and global issues; e) globalization and urban development; and f) social movements and change in the global context.

A coherent set of courses can be achieved by selecting the three electives from approved lists within one of the thematic groupings or be approved by an adviser from the Center for International Studies.

Area Studies

This track allows students to situate and apply the economic, political and social theory provided in the core to the study of a particular geopolitical area. It provides students with a global frame of reference from which to examine issues of history, migration, colonization, modernization, social change and development through an area study.

A coherent set of courses can be achieved by selecting the three electives from approved lists within an area study or be approved by an adviser from the Center for International Studies.

Language and Arts

This track allows students to explore human interaction at the global level through language, literature, music and arts. Students in this track focus their studies on the forms of language and the arts that are generated through global processes and in turn affect the generation and exchange of ideas in and between different societies and cultures.

A coherent set of courses can be achieved by selecting the three electives from approved lists within a language study or be approved by an adviser from the Center for International Studies.
ITALIAN

Students may complete a major or minor in Italian.

Faculty
Titina Caporale, Lecturer
Nickolas Patruno, Professor and Chair
Roberta Ricci, Assistant Professor (on leave 2006-07)
Ute Striker, Instructor at Haverford College
Nancy J. Vickers, Professor

The aims of the major are to acquire a knowledge of Italian language and literature and an understanding of Italian culture. The Department of Italian also cooperates with the Departments of French and Spanish in the Romance Languages major (see page 273).

Major Requirements
Major requirements in Italian are 10 courses: ITAL 101, 102 and eight additional units, at least two of which are to be chosen from the offerings on the 300 level, and no more than two from an allied field. All students must take a course on Dante (301), one on the Italian Renaissance and one on modern Italian literature. Where courses in translation are offered, students may, with the approval of the department, obtain major credit provided they read the texts in Italian, submit written work in Italian and, when the instructor finds it necessary, meet with the instructor for additional discussion in Italian.

Courses allied to the Italian major include, with departmental approval, all courses for major credit in ancient and modern languages and related courses in archaeology, art history, history, music, philosophy and political science. Each student's program is planned in consultation with the department.

Students who begin their work in Italian at the 200 level will be exempted from ITAL 101 and 102.

Honors
The requirements for honors in Italian are a grade point average of 3.7 in the major and, usually, a research paper written at the invitation of the department, either in Senior Conference or in a unit of supervised work.

Minor Requirements
Requirements for the minor in Italian are ITAL 101, 102 and four additional units including, on the 300 level, at least Italian 301. With departmental approval, students who begin their work in Italian at the 200 level will be exempted from ITAL 101 and 102. For courses in translation, the same conditions for majors in Italian apply.

Study Abroad
Italian majors are encouraged to study in Italy during the junior year in a program approved by the College. The Bryn Mawr summer program in Pisa offers courses for major credit in Italian, or students may study in other approved summer programs in Italy or in the United States. Courses for major credit in Italian may also be taken at the University of Pennsylvania.
ITAL B001, B002 Elementary Italian
A practical knowledge of the language is acquired by studying grammar, listening, speaking, writing and reading. Coursework includes the use of the Language Learning Center. The course meets in intensive (eight hours a week at Bryn Mawr) and non-intensive (five hours a week at Bryn Mawr and Haverford) sections. (Caporale)

ITAL B101, B102 Intermediate Italian
A review of grammar and readings from Italian authors with topics assigned for composition and discussion; conducted in Italian. The course meets in intensive (four hours a week) and non-intensive (three hours a week) sections. (Caporale, Patruno)

ITAL B200 Advanced Conversation and Composition
The purpose of this course is to increase fluency in Italian and to facilitate the transition to literature courses. The focus is on spoken Italian and on the appropriate use of idiomatic and everyday expressions. Students will be expected to do intensive and extensive language drills, orally and in the form of written compositions as well as Web-related exercises. Literary material will be used; conducted in Italian. (Caporale)

ITAL B201 Prose and Poetry of Contemporary Italy
A study of the artistic and cultural developments of pre-Fascist, Fascist and post-Fascist Italy seen through the works of poets such as Montale, Quasimodo and Ungaretti, and through the narratives of Ginzburg, P. Levi, Moravia, Pavese, Pirandello, Silone, Vittorini and others. Offered in Italian. (Patruno, Division III)

ITAL B203 Italian Theater
A survey of Italian theater from the Renaissance to the present. Readings include plays by Alfieri, Dario Fo, Natalia Ginzburg, Goldoni, Machiavelli, Dacia Mariani, Pirandello, Ruzante and Verga. Offered in Italian. (Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ITAL B205 The Short Story of Modern Italy
Examination of the best of Italian short stories from post-unification to today's Italy. In addition to their artistic value, these works will be viewed within the context of related historical and political events. Among the authors to be read are Buzzati, Calvino, D'Annunzio, Ginzburg, Moravia, Pirandello and Verga. (Patruno, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

ITAL B207 Dante in Translation
A reading of the Vita Nuova and Inferno in order to discover the subtle nuances of meaning in the text and to introduce students to the most famous depiction and judgments of the poem in his native Florence. Dante's masterpiece lends itself to study from various perspectives: theological, philosophical, political, allegorical, historical, cultural and literary. Personal and civic responsibilities, love, genre, governmental accountability, church-state relations, economics and social justice, the tenuous balance between freedom of expression and censorship — these are some of the themes that will frame the discussions. (Ricci, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.
ITAL B208 Petrarca and Boccaccio in Translation
The course will be based on selections from Petrarch’s Canzoniere and Boccaccio’s Decameron with some attention given to some of their minor works. Attention will also be given to the historical context connected with these works. (Patruno, Division III)

ITAL B211 Primo Levi, the Holocaust and Its Aftermath
A consideration, through analysis and appreciation of his major works, of how the horrific experience of the Holocaust awakened in Primo Levi a growing awareness of his Jewish heritage and led him to become one of the dominant voices of that tragic historical event, as well as one of the most original new literary figures of post-World War II Italy. Always in relation to Levi and his works, attention will also be given to other Italian women writers whose works are also connected with the Holocaust. (Patruno, Division III; cross-listed as COML B211 and HEBR B211) Not offered in 2006-07.

ITAL B212 Italia D’Oggi
This course, taught in Italian, will focus primarily on the works of the so-called “migrant writers” who, having adopted the Italian language, have become a significant part of the new voice of Italy. In addition to the aesthetic appreciation of these works, this course will also take into consideration the social, cultural and political factors surrounding them. (Patruno, Division III)

ITAL B225 Italian Cinema and Literary Adaptation
A survey, taught in English but also valid for Italian languages credit for those who qualify to do reading and writing in Italian, of Italian cinema with emphasis placed on its relation to literature. The course will discuss how cinema conditions literary imagination and how literature leaves its imprint on cinema. We will “read” films as “literary images” and “see” novels as “visual stories.” The reading of the literary sources will be followed by evaluation of the corresponding films (all subtitled) by well-known directors, including Bocci, Burtolucci, Rosi, the Taviani brothers and L. Visconti. (Ricci) Not offered in 2006-07.

ITAL B301 Dante
Prerequisite: two years of Italian or the equivalent. Taught in Italian. See course description for ITAL B207. (Patruno, Division III)

ITAL B303 Petrarca and Boccaccio
The course, to be conducted in Italian, will focus on a close analysis of Petrarch’s poetry and Boccaccio’s short stories in the original. Attention will also be given to the historical context connected with these works. (Patruno, Division III)

ITAL B304 Il Rinascimento
Topics include: the construction of gender and the place of women in Cinquecento literary culture, the ‘Questione della lingua’ and its impact on literary culture, chivalric and epic genre, the lyric poetry, Florentine political theory, court culture, the Counter Reformation and its cultural effects, and the neo-Platonic debate on beauty. Prerequisite: two years of Italian or the equivalent. (Ricci, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.
ITAL B398 Senior Seminar
(Patruno)

ITAL B399 Senior Conference
Under the direction of the instructor, each student prepares a paper on an author or a theme that the student has chosen. This course is open only to senior Italian majors. (Patruno)

ITAL B403 Supervised Work
Offered with approval of the department. (staff)

LINGUISTICS

Students may submit an application to major in Linguistics through the independent major program. Students may complete a minor in Linguistics at Haverford College.

Coordinators

Ted Fernald, at Swarthmore College
Shizhe Huang, at Haverford College
Jason Kandybowicz, Bryn Mawr College

Bryn Mawr College students may take advantage of courses offered by the Department of Linguistics at Swarthmore College. Students interested in majoring in linguistics may do so via the independent major program (see page 22). Such students must meet the requirements set by the independent major program at Bryn Mawr.

Linguistics is the study of language. On the most general level it deals with the internal structure of language, the history of the development of language, the information language can give us about the human mind and the roles language plays in influencing the entire spectrum of human activity.

The relevance of linguistics to the disciplines of anthropology, language study, philosophy, psychology and sociology has been recognized for a long time. But recently a knowledge of linguistics has become important to a much wider range of activities in today’s world. It is a basic tool in artificial intelligence. It is increasingly a valuable tool in literary analysis. It is fundamental to an understanding of communication skills and cognitive science.
And, because the very nature of modern linguistic inquiry is to build arguments for particular analyses, the study of linguistics gives the student finely-honed argumentation skills, which stand in good stead in careers in business, law and other professions where such skills are crucial.

Bryn Mawr offers the following course in linguistics.

GNST B239 Introduction to Linguistics
(Kandybowicz, Division I)

Swarthmore College currently offers the following courses in Linguistics:

- LING 001 Introduction to Language and Linguistics
- LING 006 FYS: Language and Deafness
- LING 020 Natural Language Processing
- LING 024 Discourse Analysis
- LING 040 Semantics
- LING 045 Phonology
- LING 050 Syntax
- LING 055 Writing Systems, Decipherment and Cryptography
- LING 070R Translation Workshop
- LING 094 Special Project in Linguistics
- LING 100 Research Seminar
- LING 195 Senior Honors Thesis

Mathematics

Students may complete a major or minor in Mathematics. With the major, students may complete the requirements for secondary school certification. Majors may complete an M.A. in Mathematics, if accepted into the combined A.B./M.A. program, or may enter the 3-2 Program in Engineering and Applied Science at the California Institute of Technology.

Faculty

- Leslie C. Cheng, Assistant Professor
- Mary Louise Cookson, Instructor
- David Crombecque, Lecturer
- Victor J. Donnay, Professor
- Jane Farella, Instructor
- Helen G. Grundman, Professor (on leave 2006-07)
- Rhonda J. Hughes, Professor
- Jill Jordan, Lecturer
- Peter G. Kasius, Instructor
- Paul M. Melvin, Professor
- Lisa Traynor, Professor and Chair

The Mathematics curriculum is designed to expose students to a wide spectrum of ideas in modern mathematics, train students in the art of logical reasoning and clear expression, and provide students with an appreciation of the beauty of the subject and of its vast applicability.

Major Requirements

A minimum of 10 semester courses are required for the major, including the six core courses listed below and four electives at or above the 200 level.
Core Requirements:

MATH B201 Multivariable Calculus (H121 or H216)
MATH B203 Linear Algebra (H215)
MATH B301 and B302 Real Analysis I and II (H317 and H318)
MATH B303 Abstract Algebra I (H333)
MATH B398 or B399 Senior Conference

With the exception of Senior Conference, equivalent courses at Haverford or elsewhere may be substituted for Bryn Mawr courses with approval of the major adviser. In consultation with a major adviser, a student may also petition the department to accept courses in fields outside of mathematics as electives if these courses have serious mathematical content appropriate to the student’s program.

Mathematics majors are encouraged to complete their core requirements other than Senior Conference by the end of their junior year. Senior Conference must be taken during the senior year. Students considering the possibility of graduate study in mathematics or related fields are urged to go well beyond the minimum requirements of the major. In such cases, a suitable program of study should be designed with the advice of a major adviser.

Honors

A degree with honors in mathematics will be awarded by the department to students who complete the major in mathematics and also meet the following further requirements: at least two additional semesters of work at the 300 level or above (this includes Supervised Work 403), completion of a meritorious project consisting of a written thesis and an oral presentation of the thesis, and a major grade point average of at least 3.6, calculated at the end of the senior year.

Minor Requirements

The minor requires five courses in mathematics at the 200 level or higher, of which at least two must be at the 300 level or higher.

Advanced Placement

Students entering with a 4 or 5 on the Calculus AB advanced placement test will be given credit for MATH 101 and should enroll in MATH 102 as their first mathematics course. Students entering with a 4 or 5 on the Calculus BC advanced placement test will be given credit for MATH 101 and 102, and should enroll in MATH 201 as their first mathematics course. All other students are strongly encouraged to take the Mathematics Placement Exam so they can be best advised.

A.B./M.A. Program

For students entering with advanced placement credits it is possible to earn both the A.B. and M.A. degrees in an integrated program in four or five years (see page 36).

3-2 Program in Engineering and Applied Science

See page 36 for a description of the 3-2 Program in Engineering and Applied Science, offered in cooperation with the California Institute of Technology, for earning both an A.B. at Bryn Mawr and a B.S. at Cal Tech.
MATH B001 Fundamentals of Mathematics
Basic techniques of algebra, analytic geometry, graphing and trigonometry for students who need to improve these skills before entering other courses that use them, both inside and outside mathematics. Placement in this course is by advice of the department and permission of the instructor. (Farella)

MATH B005 Math Workshop
Review of arithmetic and introduction to the basics of elementary and intermediate algebra for students whose mathematical backgrounds require such support. This course prepares students to take either MATH 001 or MATH 104 immediately thereafter. Placement in this course is by advice of the department. 0.5 course credit. (Farella)

MATH B101, B102 Calculus with Analytic Geometry I and II
Differentiation and integration of algebraic and elementary transcendental functions, with the necessary elements of analytic geometry and trigonometry; the fundamental theorem, its role in theory and applications, methods of integration, applications of the definite integral, infinite series. May include a computer lab component. Prerequisite: math readiness or permission of the instructor. Students in the calculus sequence need a grade of 2.0 or better to continue with the next course. (Cookson, Donnay, Division II and Quantitative Skills)

MATH B104 Elements of Probability and Statistics
Basic concepts and applications of probability theory and statistics, including finite sample spaces, permutations and combinations, random variables, expected value, variance, conditional probability, hypothesis testing, linear regression and correlation. The computer is used; prior knowledge of a computer language is not required. This course may not be taken after any other statistics course. Prerequisite: math readiness or permission of instructor. (staff, Quantitative Skills)

MATH B201 Multivariable Calculus
Vectors and geometry in two and three dimensions, partial derivatives, extremal problems, double and triple integrals, line and surface integrals, Green’s and Stokes’ Theorems. May include a computer lab component. Prerequisite: MATH 102 or permission of instructor. (Kasius, Division II and Quantitative Skills)

MATH B203 Linear Algebra
Matrices and systems of linear equations, vector spaces and linear transformations, determinants, eigenvalues and eigenvectors, inner product spaces and quadratic forms. May include a computer lab component. Prerequisite: MATH 102 or permission of instructor. (Kasius, Division II and Quantitative Skills)

MATH B205 Theory of Probability with Applications
Random variables, probability distributions on R^n, limit theorems, random processes. Prerequisite: MATH 201. (staff, Division II and Quantitative Skills) Not offered in 2006-07.

MATH B206 Transition to Higher Mathematics
An introduction to higher mathematics with a focus on proof writing. Topics include active reading of mathematics, constructing appropriate examples, problem solving, logical reasoning and communication of mathematics through proofs. Students will develop skills while exploring key concepts from algebra, analysis, topology and other advanced fields. Corequisite: MATH 203; not open to students who have had a 300-level math course. (Cheng, Division II)

MATH B210 Differential Equations with Applications
Ordinary differential equations, including general first-order equations, linear equations of higher order and systems of equations, via numerical, geometrical and analytic methods. Applications to physics, biology and economics. Corequisite: MATH 201 or 203. (Donnay, Division II and Quantitative Skills)

MATH B221 Introduction to Topology and Geometry
An introduction to the ideas of topology and geometry through the study of knots and surfaces in three-dimensional space. The course content may vary from year to year, but will generally include some historical perspectives and some discussion of connections with the natural and life sciences. Corequisite: MATH 201 or 203. (staff, Division II and Quantitative Skills) Not offered in 2006-07.

MATH B225 Introduction to Financial Mathematics
Topics to be covered include market conventions and instruments, Black-Scholes option-pricing model, and practical aspects of trading and hedging. All necessary definitions from probability theory (random variables, normal and lognormal distribution, etc.) will be explained. Prerequisite: MATH 102. ECON 105 is recommended. (staff, Division II) Not offered in 2006-07.

MATH B231 Discrete Mathematics I
(Weaver, Division II and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as CMSC B231 and PHIL B230)

MATH B261 Introduction to Harmonic Analysis and Wavelets
A first introduction to harmonic analysis and wavelets. Topics to be covered: Fourier series, Fourier transform, wavelets, and their applications, including signal processing and medical imaging. Prerequisite: MATH 203 or permission of instructor. (Cheng, Division II)

MATH B290 Elementary Number Theory
Properties of the integers, divisibility, primality and factorization, congruences, Chinese remainder theorem, multiplicative functions, quadratic residues and quadratic reciprocity, continued fractions, and applications to computer science and cryptography. Prerequisite: MATH 102. (Kasius, Division II)

MATH B295 Selected Topics in Mathematics
This course will cover topics that are not part of the standard departmental offerings and will vary from semester to semester. Students may take this course more than once. Prerequisites vary, depending on the topic. (staff, Division II) Not offered in 2006-07.
MATH B301, B302 Introduction to Real Analysis I and II
The real number system, elements of set theory and topology, continuous functions, uniform convergence, the Riemann integral, power series, Fourier series and other limit processes. Prerequisite: MATH 201. (Cheng, Traynor, Division II)

MATH B303, B304 Abstract Algebra I and II
Groups, rings, fields and their morphisms. Prerequisite: MATH 203. (Kasius, Melvin, Division II)

MATH B311 Partial Differential Equations
Heat and wave equations on bounded and unbounded domains, Laplace's equation, Fourier series and the Fourier transform, qualitative behavior of solutions, computational methods. Applications to the physical and life sciences. Prerequisite: MATH 301 or permission of instructor. (Melvin, Division II)

MATH B312 Topology
General topology (topological spaces, continuity, compactness, connectedness, quotient spaces), the fundamental group and covering spaces. Introduction to geometric topology (classification of surfaces, manifolds) and algebraic topology (homotopy theory, homology and cohomology theory, duality on manifolds). Prerequisites: MATH 201 and 203, or permission of instructor. (Melvin, Division II)

MATH B315 Geometry
An introduction to geometry with an emphasis that varies from year to year. Prerequisites: MATH 201 and 203 (or equivalent) or permission of instructor. (staff, Division II) Not offered in 2006-07.

MATH B322 Functions of Complex Variables
Analytic functions, Cauchy's theorem, Laurent series, calculus of residues, conformal mappings, Moebius transformations, infinite products, entire functions, Riemann mapping theorem, Picard's theorem. Prerequisite: MATH 301 or permission of instructor. (staff, Division II) Not offered in 2006-07.

MATH B361 Introduction Harmonic Analysis and Wavelets
A first introduction to harmonic analysis and wavelets. Topics to be covered include Fourier series on the circle, Fourier transforms on the line and space, Discrete Wavelet Transform, Fast Wavelet Transform and filter-bank representation of wavelets. Prerequisite: MATH 203 or permission of instructor. (staff, Division II) Not offered in 2006-07.

MATH B390 Number Theory
Algebraic number fields and rings of integers, quadratic and cyclotomic fields, norm and trace, ideal theory, factorization and prime decomposition, lattices and the geometry of algebraic integers, class numbers and ideal class groups, computational methods, Dirichlet's unit theorem. Prerequisite: MATH 303 or permission of instructor. (Grundman, Division II) Not offered in 2006-07.

MATH B395 Research Seminar
A research seminar for students involved in individual or small group research under the supervision of the instructor. With permission, the course may be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: MATH 203 or permission of instructor. (staff)

MATH B396 Research Seminar
A research seminar for students involved in individual or small group research under the supervision of the instructor. With permission, the course may be repeated for credit. Prerequisite: MATH 203 or permission of instructor. (staff)

MATH B398, B399 Senior Conference
A seminar for seniors majoring in mathematics. Topics vary from year to year. (Donnay, Hughes)

MATH B403 Supervised Work
(staff)

Music

Students may complete a major or minor in Music at Haverford College

Faculty
Ingrid Arauco, Associate Professor and Chair
Christine Cacioppo, Visiting Instructor
Curt Cacioppo, Ruth Marshall Magill Professor
Richard Freedman, Professor
Heidi Jacob, Associate Professor and Director of the Haverford-Bryn Mawr Orchestral Program
David Kasunic, Visiting Assistant Professor
Thomas Lloyd, Associate Professor and Director of the Haverford-Bryn Mawr Choral Program

The Music curriculum is designed to deepen understanding of musical form and expression through development of skills in composition and performance joined with analysis of musical works and their place in various cultures. A major in music provides a foundation for further study leading to a career in music.

The composition/theory program stresses proficiency in aural, keyboard and vocal skills, and written harmony and counterpoint. Composition following important historical models and experimentation with contemporary styles are emphasized.

The musicology program, which emphasizes European, North American, and Asian traditions, considers music in the rich context of its social, religious, and aesthetic surroundings.

The performance program offers opportunities to participate in the Haverford-Bryn Mawr Chamber Singers, Chorale, Orchestra, and ensembles formed within the context of Haverford's chamber music program. Students can receive academic credit for participating in these ensembles (MUSC 102, 214, 215, 216, and 219), and can receive credit for Private Study (MUSC 208, 209, 210) in voice or their chosen instrument.

Special Programs and Funds

The Music Department Guest Artists Series presents distinguished and emerging performers in public concerts, master classes, lecture-demonstrations, reading sessions, and informal encounters. Among artists recently featured have been Native American flutist Mary Youngblood, the Cuarteto Latinoamericano, pianist Charles Abramovic, violinist Arnold Steinhardt, the Network for New Music and the American String Quartet. The William Heartt Reese Music Fund was established in 1977 to honor William Heartt Reese, professor of music and conductor of the glee club and orchestra at Haverford from 1947 to 1975. The fund supports applied music lessons for students enrolled in the department's private study program. The John H. Davison '51 Fund for Student Composers supports new works by student composers. This fund recognizes Davison's 40 years of teaching and musical creativity at Haverford. The Orpheus Prize is awarded for exceptional achievement in the practice of tonal harmony. The Kessinger Family Fund for Asian Performing Arts sponsors musical performances and lecture-demonstrations that enrich Haverford's cross-cultural programs. Since its inception in 1997, the fund has sponsored visits by artists representing traditions of South, Central and East Asia, and Indonesia.

Major Requirements

1) Theory-composition: MUSC 203a, 204b, 303a.

2) Musicology: three courses chosen from MUSC 221a, 222b, 223a, 224b, 325a or b.

3) Two electives in music, chosen from: MUSC 207a or b, 221a, 222b, 223a, 224b, 227a, 228a, 250a or b, 251a or b, 265a or b, 266b, 304b, and 325a or b.

4) Performance: participation in a department-sponsored performance group is required for at least a year. MUSC 208, 209, or 210f,i instrumental or vocal private study for one year. Continuing ensemble participation and instrumental or vocal private study are strongly urged.

5) An additional full credit course equivalent is required of music majors in their senior year. The senior experience in music may be fulfilled through an independent study project (usually a composition, performance, or research paper pursued in the context of MUSC 480) or through enhancement of a regular advanced course offering to include an independent study component. The format of the senior experience will be determined prior to the beginning of the student's senior year, after consultation with the department.
6) Majors are expected to attend the majority of department-sponsored concerts, lectures, and colloquia.

Minor Requirements

1) Theory-Composition: MUSC 203a, 204b
2) Musicology: two courses chosen from MUSC 221a, 222b, 223a, 224b.
3) One elective chosen from: MUSC 207a or b, courses not already taken in fulfillment of requirement two, 228a or b, 250a or b, 251a or b, 265a or b, 266b, 303a, 304b, 325a or b
4) MUSC 208, 209, 210f,i instrumental or vocal private study or department ensemble participation for one year. Continuing ensemble participation and instrumental or vocal private study are strongly urged.

Substitutions for Haverford College courses in fulfillment of the major or minor in music must be approved in advance by the Music Department.

Requirements for Honors

Departmental Honors or High Honors will be awarded on the basis of superior work in music courses combined with exceptional accomplishment in the senior experience.

Theory and Composition

MUSC H110 Musicianship and Literature

Intensive introduction to the notational and theoretical materials of music, complemented by work in sight-singing and keyboard harmony. Discussion of musical forms and techniques of melody writing and harmonization; short projects in composition. (Cacioppo)

MUSC H203 Tonal Harmony I

The harmonic vocabulary and compositional techniques of Bach, Beethoven, Haydn, Mozart, Schubert and others. Emphasis is on composing melodies, constructing phrases, and harmonizing in four parts. Composition of minuet and trio, set of variations, or other homophonic piece is the final project. Three class hours plus laboratory period covering related aural and keyboard harmony skills. Prerequisite: MUSC 110 or consent of instructor. (Arauco)

MUSC H204 Tonal Harmony II

Continuation of MUSC 203, introducing chromatic harmony and focusing on the development of sonata forms from the Classical through the Romantic period. Composition of a sonata exposition is the final project. Three class hours plus laboratory period covering related aural and keyboard harmony skills. Prerequisite: MUSC 203. (Cacioppo)

MUSC H265 Symphonic Technique and Tradition

In this course, we will be familiarizing ourselves with significant orchestral repertory of the past three centuries, learning to read the orchestral score, studying the capabilities of various orchestral instruments and how they are used together, and tracing the evolution of orchestral writing and orchestral forms from the Classical period to the present. Short exercises in scoring for orchestra; final project is a presentation on a major orchestral work of your choice. Prerequisite: MUSC 203. (Arauco)
MUSC H266 Composition
An introduction to the art of composition through weekly assignments designed to invite creative, individual responses to a variety of musical ideas. Scoring for various instruments and ensembles; experimentation with harmony, form, notation and text setting. Weekly performance of student pieces; end-of-semester recital. Prerequisite: MUSC 204 or consent of instructor. (Arauco)

MUSC H303 Advanced Tonal Harmony
Study of late 19th-century harmonic practice in selected works of Brahms, Debussy, Faure, Liszt, Mahler, Wagner and Wolf. Exploration of chromatic harmony through analysis and short exercises; final composition project consisting of either art song or piano piece such as nocturne or intermezzo. Musicianship lab covers related aural and keyboard harmony skills. Prerequisite: MUSC 204. (Cacioppo)

MUSC H304 Counterpoint
Eighteenth-century contrapuntal techniques and forms with emphasis on the works of J. S. Bach. Canon; composition of two-part invention; fugal writing in three parts; chorale prelude; analysis. Three class hours plus laboratory period covering related aural and keyboard harmony skills. Prerequisite: MUSC 204. (Arauco)

MUSC H325 Seminar in 20th Century Theory and Practice
Classic and contemporary 20th-century composers, works and trends, with reference to theoretical and aesthetic writings and the broader cultural context. Prerequisite: MUSC 303a or 224. (Arauco) Not offered in 2006-07.

Performance

MUSC H102 Chorale
Chorale is a large mixed chorus that performs major works from the oratorio repertoire with orchestra. Attendance at weekly two-hour rehearsals and dress rehearsals during performance week is required. Prerequisite: Audition and consent of the instructor. (Lloyd)

MUSC H107 Introductory Piano
MUSC 107 is an introduction to music and the art of playing the piano. The course consists of a weekly hour long session on Tuesday evenings (lecture, directed listening or playing workshop) plus an individual lesson of 20 minutes at an arranged time. A short paper on the listening assignments is required, as is playing on the class recital at the end of the term (these together will comprise the final exam). Enrollment limited to 16 students (5 spaces for majors/minors). (Christine Cacioppo)

MUSC H207 Topics in Piano
Combines private lessons and studio/master classes, musical analysis, research questions into performance practice and historical context, critical examination of sound recorded sources. Preparation of works of selected composer or style period for end of semester class recital is required. Prerequisite: Audition and consent of instructor. (Cacioppo) Not offered in 2006-07.

MUSC H208 Private Study: Instrumental
All students enrolled in the private study program should be participating in a departmentally directed ensemble or activity (Chorale, Orchestra, etc.) as advised by their program supervisor. All students in the private study program perform for a faculty jury at the end of the semester. Students assume the cost of their private lessons, but may apply for private study subsidies at the beginning of each semester’s study through the department. Prerequisite: Departmental audition and consent of supervisor. (Jacob)

MUSC H209 Private Study: Voice
Prerequisite: Departmental audition and consent of supervisor. (Lloyd)

MUSC H210 Private Study: Piano/Organ
Prerequisite: Departmental audition and consent of supervisor. (Cacioppo)

MUSC H214 Chamber Singers
Chamber Singers is a 30-voice mixed choir that performs a wide range of mostly a cappella repertoire from the Renaissance to the present day in original languages. Attendance required at three 80-minute rehearsals weekly. Prerequisite: Audition and consent of instructor. (Lloyd)

MUSC H215 Chamber Music
Intensive rehearsal of works for small instrumental groups, with supplemental research and listening assigned. Performance is required. The course is available to those who are concurrently studying privately, or who have studied privately immediately prior to the start of the semester. Prerequisite: Audition and consent of instructor. (Jacob)

MUSC H216 Orchestra
For students participating in the Haverford-Bryn Mawr Orchestra, this course addresses the special musical problems of literature rehearsed and performed during the semester. Prerequisite: Audition and consent of instructor. (Jacob)

MUSC H219 Art Song
A performance course devoted to the American, English, French and German art song literature from Schubert to the present. Weekly performance classes will be accompanied by weekly individual coachings with the instructor, culminating in a public recital at the end of the semester. Prerequisite: Vocal Private Study and consent of instructor. (Lloyd)

Musicology
MUSC H111 Introduction to Western Music
A survey of the European musical tradition from the middle ages to modern times. Students will hear music by Bach, Beethoven, Glass, Monteverdi, Mozart, Stravinsky, Wagner, among many others, developing both listening skills and an awareness of how music relates to the culture that fosters it. In addition to listening and reading, students will attend concerts and prepare written assignments. (Freedman)

MUSC H112 Opera
A survey of the history of opera, focusing on the most influential operas, their forms and the cultural, aesthetic, and political desires that shaped them. The goal of the course is to teach students the art of close listening, that is, to privilege their hearing over their seeing. Audio and visual recordings will be supplemented by a course packet of primary and secondary source readings. No previous musical training or coursework required. (Kasunic) Not offered in 2006-07.
MUSC H221 Medieval and Renaissance Music
Music of the 12th through 16th centuries, emphasizing changing approaches to composition, notation and expression in works by composers such as Hildegard von Bingen, Guillaume de Machaut, Josquin de Prez, and many others. This year we will put a special focus on the visit by guest artists, the Orlando Consort. Classroom assignments will consider basic problems raised by the study of early music: questions of style and structure, debates about performance practice, and issues of cultural history. Prerequisite: MUSC 110 or 111 or consent of instructor. (Freedman) Not offered in 2006-07.

MUSC H222 Baroque Music
Music of the 17th and 18th centuries, with focus on central developments of opera, sacred music, and instrumental genres. Through careful study of works by Bach, Corelli, Handel, Lully, Monteverdi and Rameau, students will explore changing approaches to musical style and design, basic problems of performance practice, and how musicologists have sought to understand the place of music in cultural history. Prerequisite: MUSC 110 or 111 or consent of instructor. (Freedman) Not offered in 2006-07.

MUSC H223 Classical Music
The music of Beethoven, Haydn, Mozart and Schubert (among many others). Classroom assignments will lead students to explore the origins and development of vocal and instrumental music of the years around 1800, and to consider the ways in which musicologists have approached the study of this repertory. Prerequisite: MUSC 110 or 111 or consent of instructor. (Freedman) Not offered in 2006-07.

MUSC H224 Romantic Music
Music by Brahms, Chopin, Dvorak, Mahler, Schubert, Schumann, Verdi and Wagner, among others, with special focus on changing approaches to style of expression, and to the aesthetic principles such works articulate. This term our themes will be ballads and myths, nationalisms, and nostalgia and history. Assignments will allow students to explore individual vocal and instrumental works, and will give students a sense of some of the perspectives to be found in the musicological literature on 19th century music. Prerequisite: MUSC 110 or 111 or consent of instructor. (Freedman)

MUSC H251 Music, Film and Narrative
An introduction to music and film, with special attention to works from the 1930's through the 1950's by composers such as Auric, Copland, Eisler, Herrmann, Korngold, Prokofiev, Shostakovich, Steiner, Tiomkin and Waxman. Close study of orchestration, harmony and thematic process as they contribute to cinematic narrative and form. Source readings to include artistic positions staked out by film composers themselves, as well as critical and scholarly essays by leading writers on the narrative possibilities of film music. Prerequisite: MUSC 203 or equivalent knowledge of music theory. (Freedman) Not offered in 2006-07.

MUSC H258 Vienna at theTurns of Centuries: Art, Politics and Culture
Prerequisite: Sophomore standing. Not offered in 2006-07.
MUSC H276 Piano in the Age of Chopin
An inquiry into piano manufacture, composition and pedagogy during the first half of the 19th century, the era of the pianist-composer, when the piano came into its own and assumed its status as the foremost solo musical instrument. Piano performance in class to demonstrate points, though not required, will be encouraged. Prerequisite: MUSC 110 or 111 or consent of instructor. (Kasunic)

MUSC H480 Independent Study
(Freedman)

Diverse Traditions

MUSC H149 Native American Music and Belief
Surveys the principal styles of Native North American singing in ceremonial and secular contexts; discusses contemporary Indian musical cross-overs and the aesthetic of multi-culturalism; emphasizes class participation in singing traditional Indian songs. (Cacioppo)

MUSC H227 Jazz and the Politics of Culture
A study of jazz and its social meanings. Starting with an overview of jazz styles and European idioms closely bound to jazz history, the course gives students a basic aural education in musical forms, the process of improvisation, and the fabric of musical performance in the context of how assumptions about order and disorder in music reflect deeply felt views about society and culture. Enrollment limited to 35 students. Prerequisite: Sophomore standing or higher. (Freedman) Not offered in 2006-07.

MUSC H228 Musical Voices of Asia
The musical traditions of South, East and Central Asia, as well as Indonesia. Extensive discussion of vocal and instrumental genres, approaches to texts and stories, and systems of learning. We will also pay special attention to the place of music in broader cultural and social contexts: as a definer of gender or religious identities, as an object of national or political ownership, and in its interaction with Western classical and popular forms. Prerequisite: Sophomore standing or higher. (Freedman) Not offered in 2006-07.
Neural and Behavioral Sciences

Students may complete a concentration in Neural and Behavioral Sciences within the majors of biology and psychology.

Coordinator
Wendy F. Sternberg, at Haverford College

Advisory Committee
Douglas Blank (on leave 2006-07)
Peter D. Brodfuehrer, Concentration Adviser for Biology
Kimberly Wright Cassidy
Rebecca Compton, Concentration Adviser for Psychology at Haverford College
Karen F. Greif
Paul Grobstein
Margaret A. Hollyday
Deepak Kumar
Andrea Morris (on leave 2006-07)
Leslie Rescorla (on leave semester II)
Anjali Thapar
Earl Thomas, Concentration Adviser for Psychology (on leave semester II)

The concentration in the neural and behavioral sciences is designed to allow students to pursue their interests in behavior and the nervous system across disciplines. The concentration is offered by the Departments of Biology and Psychology at Bryn Mawr and the Departments of Biology and Psychology at Haverford College. Students undertaking the concentration must major in one of these four departments.

The concentration consists of two components. Students must satisfy the requirements of the department in which they major, with appropriate modifications related to the concentration (consult departmental advisers listed above). For the concentration itself, students must take a series of courses that represent the background in the neural and behavioral sciences and other sciences common to all approaches to the nervous system and behavior. All students, regardless of major, must fulfill the requirements of the core program.

Concentration Requirements

1. Introductory-level work, with lab, outside the major (at least one semester) in psychology and biology.
2. Core course in neural and behavioral sciences. One of the following three: Neurobiology and Behavior (BIOL 202 at Bryn Mawr), Behavioral Neuroscience (PSYC 218 at Bryn Mawr) or Biological Psychology (PSYC 217 at Haverford).
3. One course in neural and behavioral sciences outside the major (from the list below or approved by the student's major department).

Requirements 1-3 must be completed before the senior year.
4. One additional course in neural and behavioral sciences from any participating department.
5. Two semesters of senior research (BIOL 401, PSYC 401 at Bryn Mawr).
6. Senior Seminar for concentrators (BIOL 396, PSYC 396 at Bryn Mawr).

Note: Two half-semester courses equal one full-semester course
Students may complete a concentration in Peace and Conflict Studies.

Coordinator
Marc Howard Ross (on leave 2006-07)

Faculty
Tamara Neuman, Visiting Assistant Professor and Acting Coordinator

The goal of the Bi-College concentration is to present a range of social science theories and methods relevant to explaining human conflict and cooperation in settings ranging from local small communities to the international system.

Concentration Requirements
The concentration is composed of a six-course cluster centering around conflict and cooperation within and between nations. Of these six courses, no more than three may be in the student’s major. The peace and conflict studies concentration draws upon the long-standing interest in war, conflict and peacemaking, and social justice, as well as questions derived from work in the fields of anthropology, economics, history, political science, social psychology and sociology. It draws on these fields for theoretical understandings of matters such as bargaining, social, economic and political sources of conflict, cooperative and competitive strategies of negotiation, intergroup relations, social justice, post-conflict peacemaking and the role of institutions in conflict management.

Students meet with the coordinator in the spring of their sophomore year to work out a plan for the concentration. All concentrators are required to take three core courses: the introductory course, POLS 111 (offered as ANTH 111 at Haverford); either POLS 206 or ANTH 322; and POLS 347. It is advised that concentrators complete at least two of these three courses by the end of their junior year.

Students are required to take three additional courses chosen in consultation with the coordinator, working out a plan that focuses this second half of their concentration regionally, conceptually or around a particular substantive problem. These courses might include international conflict and resolution; ethnic conflict in general or in a specific region of the world (e.g., South Africa, the Middle East, Northern Ireland); a theoretical approach to the field, such as nonviolence, bargaining or game theory; an applied approach, such as reducing violence among youth, the arts and peacemaking, community mediation or post-conflict peacebuilding and reconciliation.

Peace and conflict studies courses currently available at Bryn Mawr include:

ANTH B200/HIST B200 European Expansion and Competition: History of Three Worlds: The Atlantic World
ANTH/GNST/HEBR/HIST B261 Palestine and Israeli Society
ANTH/GNST/HEBR B342 Middle Eastern Diasporas
HEBR B283/HIST B283/POLS B283 Introduction to the Politics of the Modern Middle East and North Africa
HIST B325 Topics in Social History: Radical Movements
POLB B111 Introduction to Peace and Conflict Studies
POLB B141 Introduction to International Politics
POLB B243 African and Caribbean Perspectives in World Politics
POLB B278 Oil, Politics, Economy and Society
POLB B347 Advanced Issues in Peace and Conflict Studies: Genocide

Peace and conflict studies courses at Haverford include:

ANTH H111 Introduction to Peace and Conflict Studies
ANTH H234 Violence, Terror and Trauma
ANTH H322 Field Methods in Peace and Conflict Studies
GNPR H301 Human Rights, Development and International Activism
HIST H240 History and Principles of Quakerism
SOCI H235 Class, Race and Education

Philosophy

Students may complete a major or minor in Philosophy.

Faculty

Robert J. Dostal, Professor (on leave semester II)
Christine M. Koggel, Professor, Chair and Major Adviser (on leave semester I)
Michael Krausz, Professor and Acting Chair, semester I
Adriel Trott, Instructor
Morgan Wallhagen, Lecturer
George E. Weaver Jr., Professor

The Department of Philosophy introduces students to some of the most compelling answers to questions of human existence and knowledge. It also grooms students for a variety of fields that require analysis, conceptual precision, argumentative skill and clarity of thought and expression. These include administration, the arts, business, computer science, health professions, law and social services. The major in philosophy also prepares students for graduate-level study leading to careers in teaching and research in the discipline.

The curriculum focuses on three major areas: the systematic areas of philosophy, such as logic, theory of knowledge, metaphysics, ethics and aesthetics; the history of philosophy through the study of key philosophers and philosophical periods; and the philosophical explication of methods in such domains as art, history, religion and science.
The department is a member of the Greater Philadelphia Philosophy Consortium comprising 13 member institutions in the Delaware Valley. It sponsors conferences on various topics in philosophy and an annual undergraduate student philosophy conference.

Major Requirements

Students majoring in philosophy must take a minimum of 10 semester courses and attend the monthly noncredit departmental colloquia. The following five courses are required for the major: the two-semester Historical Introduction (PHIL 101 and 201); Ethics (PHIL 221); Theory of Knowledge (PHIL 211), Metaphysics (PHIL 212) or Logic (PHIL 103); and Senior Conference (PHIL 399). At least three other courses at the 300 level are required. Majors must take one historical course that concentrates on the work of a single philosopher or a period in philosophy.

Philosophy majors are encouraged to supplement their philosophical interests by taking advantage of courses offered in related areas, such as anthropology, history, history of art, languages, literature, mathematics, political science, psychology and sociology.

Honors

Honors will be awarded by the department based on the senior thesis and other work completed in the department. The Milton C. Nahm Prize in Philosophy is a cash award presented to the graduating senior major whose senior thesis the department judges to be of outstanding caliber. This prize need not be granted every year.

Minor Requirements

Students may minor in philosophy by taking six courses in the discipline at any level. They must also attend the monthly noncredit departmental colloquia.

Cross-Registration

Students may take advantage of cross-registration arrangements with Haverford College, Swarthmore College and the University of Pennsylvania. Courses at these institutions may satisfy Bryn Mawr requirements, but students should check with the chair of the department to make sure specific courses meet requirements.

Prerequisites

No introductory-level course carries a prerequisite. However, most courses at both the intermediate and advanced levels carry prerequisites. Unless stated otherwise in the course description, any introductory course satisfies the prerequisite for an intermediate-level course, and any intermediate course satisfies the prerequisite for an advanced-level course.

PHIL B101 Historical Introduction to Philosophy: Ancient Philosophy

What is the fundamental nature of the world? Can we have knowledge about the world and ourselves, and if so, how? What is the good life? In this course, we explore answers to these sorts of metaphysical, epistemological and ethical questions by examining the works of the Pre-Socratics and of the two central Greek philosophers, Plato and Aristotle. (Dostal, Trott, Division III)
PHIL B102 Introduction to Problems in Philosophy
Contemporary formulations of certain philosophical problems are examined, such as the nature of knowledge, persons, freedom and determinism, the grounds of rationality, cognitive and moral relativism, and creativity in both science and art. (Wallhagen, Division III)

PHIL B103 Introduction to Logic
Training in reading and writing proof discourses (i.e., those segments of writing or speech that express deductive reasoning) to gain insight into the nature of logic, the relationship between logic and linguistics, and the place of logic in theory of knowledge. (Weaver)

PHIL B201 Historical Introduction to Philosophy: Modern Philosophy
The development of philosophic thought from Descartes to Nietzsche. (Trott, Wallhagen, Division III)

PHIL B202 Culture and Interpretation
A study of methodological and philosophical issues associated with interpreting alternative cultures, including whether ethnocentrism is inevitable, whether alternative cultures are found or imputed, whether interpretation is invariably circular or relativistic, and what counts as a good reason for one cultural interpretation over another. (Krausz, Division III; cross-listed as COML B202) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B204 Readings in German Intellectual History
(Seyhan, Division III; cross-listed as GERM B212) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B209 Introduction to Literary Analysis: Philosophical Approaches to Criticism
(Seyhan, Division III; cross-listed as COML B209 and GERM B209) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B210 Philosophy of Social Science: Philosophy of Psychology
Prerequisite: ANTH 102 or another introductory course in the social sciences or philosophy, or permission of instructor. (staff, Division I or II; cross-listed as ANTH B201) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B211 Theory of Knowledge: Relativism and Realism
What sorts of things are there and what constraints are there in knowing them? Have we access to things as such or are they inevitably filtered through some conceptual scheme? This course will examine the debate between relativism and absolutism in relation to the debate between realism and antirealism. The course will seek to instill philosophical skills in the critical evaluation of pertinent theories. Readings will include works of Nelson Goodman, Chhanda Gupta, Karl Popper, Hilary Putnam, Israel Scheffler and others. (Krausz, Division III)

PHIL B212 Metaphysics
An examination of the issues that arise when we try to discern the fundamental nature of the world. What does it mean to say that something is real, objective, mind-independent or true? How do we go about deciding whether the world includes values, God, mind, numbers? Is there a reason to regard science's description of the world as depicting the world as it really is? (Wallhagen, Division III)
PHIL B213 Introduction to Mathematical Logic
Equational logics and the equational theories of algebra are used as an introduction to mathematical logic. While the basics of the grammar and deductive systems of these logics are covered, the primary focus is their semantics or model theory. Particular attention is given to those ideas and results that anticipate developments in classical first-order model theory. Prerequisites: PHIL 103 and MATH 231. (Weaver, Division II; cross-listed as GNST B213)

PHIL B214 Modal Logic
This course examines the Kripke "possible world" semantics for a family of logics whose logical vocabulary contains 'necessity' and 'possibility'. Primary emphasis is given to sentential logics and the modal extensions. Techniques are developed for establishing completeness, compactness and interpolation results. Time permitting, both quantified modal logics and temporal logics will also be considered. Prerequisite: PHIL B103 or equivalent. (Weaver, Division II) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B221 Ethics
How should we live our lives and interact with others? This course explores answers to this question in the context of the global community in which we now live. It introduces students to ethics by way of an examination of moral theories (such as theories of justice and human rights, utilitarianism, Kant's categorical imperative, relativism and care ethics) and of practical issues (such as abortion, euthanasia, pornography and censorship, animal rights and the environment, and equity). (Koggel, Division III)

PHIL B222 Aesthetics: Nature and Experience of Art
What sorts of things are works of art, music and literature? Can criticism in the arts be objective? Do such works answer to more than one admissible interpretation? If so, what is to prevent one from sliding into an interpretive anarchism? What is the role of a creator's intentions in fixing upon admissible interpretations? What is the nature of aesthetic experience? Readings will be drawn from contemporary sources from the analytic and continental traditions. (Krausz, Division III; cross-listed as COML B222)

PHIL B226 Introduction to Confucianism
(Kim, Division III; cross-listed as EAST B226 and POLS B226) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B228 Introduction to Political Philosophy: Ancient and Early Modern
(Salkever, Division III; cross-listed as POLS B228)

PHIL B229 Concepts of the Self
In this course, we will discuss several related philosophical questions about the nature of the self, introspection, self-knowledge and personal identity. What kind of thing is the self? Is the self identical with your body or something distinct from it? What is introspection? What are you conscious of when you are self-conscious? How does knowledge of your own thoughts, sensations and desires differ from other kinds of knowledge? What kinds of changes can you undergo and still remain the same person you were before? We will address these issues by reading work from both historical and contemporary sources. (Wallhagen, Division III)

PHIL B230 Discrete Mathematics
An introduction to discrete mathematics with strong applications to computer science. Topics include set theory, functions and relations, propositional logic, proof techniques, recursion, counting techniques, difference equations, graphs and trees. (Weaver, Division II and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as CMSC B231 and MATH B231)

PHIL B231 Introduction to Political Philosophy: Modern
(Salkever, Division III; cross-listed as POLS B238)

PHIL B236 Plato: Early and Middle Dialogues
Plato is sometimes accused of being out of touch with the real world, of radically changing his mind in his later years, of keeping his “secret” philosophy hidden, and even of writing not philosophy so much as dramatic fiction. Carefully reading representative later and earlier work, we will try to see how far such claims might or might not be justified. (Dostal, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B238 Science, Technology and the Good Life
This course considers questions concerning what is science, what is technology and what is their relationship to each other and to the domains of ethics and politics. We will consider how modern science defined itself in its opposition to Aristotelian science. We will examine the Cartesian and Baconian scientific models and the self-understanding of these models with regard to ethics and politics. Developments in the philosophy of science will be considered, e.g., positivism, phenomenology, feminism, sociology of science. Biotechnology and information technology illustrate fundamental questions. The “science wars” of the 1990s provide debates concerning science, technology and the good life. (Dostal, Division III; cross-listed as POLS B238) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B243 Twentieth-Century Continental Philosophy
Surveys 20th-century continental philosophy: phenomenology, existentialism, hermeneutics, Marxism and the Frankfurt school, structuralism and post-structuralism and deconstruction. Themes include meaning and truth, the basis for ethics and politics, embodiment, language, the “other” and feminism. Philosophers discussed include Derrida, Foucault, Gadamer, Habermas, Heidegger, Husserl, Merleau-Ponty and Sartre. Prerequisites: PHIL B101 and PHIL B201. (Dostal, Division III)

PHIL B244 Philosophy and Cognitive Science
Cognitive science is a multi-disciplinary approach to the study of human cognition. It goes from the abstract study of concepts of cognition at one end to well-defined empirical research into language and cognition and the specifics of cognitive modeling on computers at the other. Philosophy, linguistics, psychology, computer science and neuroscience are the major contributors to cognitive science. (Wallhagen, Division III)

PHIL B246 Philosophical Skepticism
This course will examine philosophical arguments that purport to show that we cannot know the things we take ourselves to know. We will focus on the problem of induction, external world skepticism, the problem of other minds and self-knowledge. (staff, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B250 Topics in Chinese Cultural History: Introduction to Chinese Philosophy
(Kim, Division III; cross-listed as EAST B210)

PHIL B252 Feminist Theory
(Barker, Division III; cross-listed as POLS B253) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B300 Nietzsche, Kant, Plato: Modes of Practical Philosophy
(Salkever; cross-listed as POLS B300) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B301 Hume
A close examination of Hume’s philosophy, focusing on his psychology and its implications on his epistemology, metaphysics, philosophy of mind and ethics. His views on causation, substance, personal identity, induction, practical reasoning, free will and the basis of moral judgements are considered in detail. How Hume is related to other British and continental philosophers, and the significance of his views for Kant as well as for a number of philosophical debates, are also examined. (staff, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B303 Advanced Mathematical Logic
This course develops various advanced topics in the branch of mathematical logic called model theory. Topics include homogeneous models, universal models, saturated and special models, back-and-forth constructions, ultraproducts, the compactness and Lowenheim-Skolem theorems, submodel complete theories, model complete theories, and omega-categorical theories. Prerequisite: PHIL 213 or Haverford’s MATH 237. (Weaver; cross-listed as GNST B303) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B310 Philosophy of Science
An examination of positivistic science and its critics. Topics include the possibility and nature of scientific progress from relativistic perspectives. (Grobstein, Krausz, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B314 Existentialism
In this course we will examine the critique of the modern subject as presented by existentialism through the themes of freedom, anxiety, consciousness, selfhood and death. While the existentialists boldly embrace freedom, they do not deny the limitations to that freedom that the world presents. The course will be divided into four sections, each dedicated to one of the following thinkers: Heidegger, Kierkegaard, Nietzsche and Sartre. (Trott, Division III)

PHIL B316 History and Philosophy of Mathematics
Epistemological problems, particularly in reference to mathematical realism, are examined and various solutions are discussed, with emphasis on “structuralist” solutions arising out of modern abstract algebra. Prerequisite: PHIL 103 or 214. (Weaver)

PHIL B318 Philosophy of Language
Mathematically precise results in linguistics, computer science and logic presup-pose the theory of strings. This theory has two formulations: (1) the theory of string systems; and (2) the theory of generalized arithmetics. These formulations are equivalent and within the theory of string systems three different models for linguistic description are developed: algebraic, automata theoretic and formal grammar. As an example we take distributional structure and define regular sets. We then show that these regular sets are the class of languages generated by left linear grammars and that this class is those languages accepted by finite state automata. Prerequisite: PHIL 103. (Weaver, Division III)

PHIL B319 Philosophy of Mind
In this course we will examine some of the core philosophical problems about the mind. Among the questions we will address are: What is the relationship between mind and body? What makes a particular state of a creature a mental state? Are minds a kind of computer? How do mental states manage to represent, or be about, other states of affairs? How can we account for various features of sensation and perception? What are thoughts, and do any non-human animals have them? What is consciousness, and does it show that there is something non-physical, or immaterial, about the mind? (Wallhagen, Division III)

PHIL B321 Greek Political Philosophy: Aristotle: Ethics and Politics
(Salkever, Division III; cross-listed as POLS B320)

PHIL B323 Culture and Interpretation
This course will pursue such questions as the following. For all objects of interpretation, must there be a single right interpretation? If not, what is to prevent one from sliding into an interpretive anarchism? Does interpretation affect the nature or the number of an object of interpretation? Does the singularity or multiplicity of interpretations mandate either realism or constructivism or any other ontology? Discussions will be based on contemporary readings. (Krausz, Division III; cross-listed as COML B323) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B325 Philosophy of Classical Music
This course will consider philosophical issues pertaining to the ontology of works of music, meaning and understanding of music, emotions and expressiveness of music, music and intentionality, scores in relation to performances, the idea of rightness of interpretation, music and morality, and music in relation to other arts and practices. Examples of works will be provided in class. Prerequisite: a 200-level philosophy course or a course in music, music theory or criticism, or permission of instructor. (Krausz, Division III)

PHIL B326 Relativism: Cognitive and Moral
Cognitive relativists believe that truth is relative to particular cultures or conceptual schemes. In an analogous way, moral relativists believe that moral rightness is relative to particular cultures or conceptual schemes. Relativistic theories of truth and morality are widely embraced in the current intellectual climate, and they are as perplexing as they are provocative. This course will examine varieties of relativism and their absolutistic counterparts. Readings will be drawn from contemporary sources. (Krausz, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.
PHIL B327 Political Philosophy in the 20th Century
(Salkever; cross-listed as POLS B327) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B329 Wittgenstein
Wittgenstein is notable for developing two philosophical systems. In the first, he attempted to show there is a single common structure underlying all language, thought and being, and that the job of philosophy was to make it clear. In the second, he denied the idea of such a structure was even coherent, and claimed that the job of philosophy was to free philosophers from bewitchments due to misunderstandings of ordinary concepts in language. The course begins by examining the first system in the Tractatus-Logico-Philosophicus and turns to his rejection of his earlier ideas in Philosophical Investigations and in On Certainty. (Koggep, Division III; cross-listed as GERM B329) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B330 Kant
The significance of Kant’s transcendental philosophy for thought in the 19th and 20th centuries cannot be overstated. His work is profoundly important for both the analytical and the so-called “continental” schools of thought. This course will provide a close study of Kant’s breakthrough work: The Critique of Pure Reason. We will read and discuss the text with reference to its historical context (Descartes, Hume, Leibniz, Locke, etc.) and with respect to its impact on developments in epistemology, philosophy of mind, philosophy of science, philosophy of religion as well as developments in German Idealism and 20th century phenomenology (Heidegger and Husserl). (Dostal, Division III)

PHIL B336 Plato: Later Dialogues
An examination of several so-called “late” dialogues, primarily Philebus, Sophist, Statesman and Theaetetus. Special attention is given to the literary character of the dialogues, with thematic focus on dialectic and dialogic inquiry; Aristotelian modes of explanation and the Platonic images of the philosopher and the political leader. Fundamental ontological, epistemological and political questions are considered in these dialogues. (Dostal, Division III; cross-listed as POLS B336) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B338 Phenomenology
This upper-level seminar will consider the two main proponents of phenomenology — a movement in philosophy in the 20th century that attempted to restart philosophy in a radical way. Its concerns are philosophically comprehensive: ontology, epistemology, philosophy of science, ethics and so on. Phenomenology provides the important background for other later developments in 20th-century philosophy and beyond: existentialism, deconstruction, post-modernism. This seminar will focus primarily on Edmund Husserl’s Crisis of the European Sciences and Martin Heidegger’s Being and Time. Other writings to be considered include some of Heidegger’s later work and Merleau-Ponty’s preface to his Phenomenology of Perception. (Dostal, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B344 Development Ethics
This course explores the questions and moral issues raised by development in the context of globalization. Questions to be considered include: In what direction and by what means should a society develop? What are the obligations, if any, of rich countries to poor countries? What role, if any, should rich countries, international institutions and nongovernmental organizations have in the development or self-development of poor countries? To what extent, if any, do moral relativism, national sovereignty and universalism pose a challenge to cross-cultural ethical inquiry about theories of human flourishing, human rights and justice? (Koggel, Division III; cross-listed as POLS B344)

PHIL B347 Philosophy of Perception
A discussion of several issues in the philosophy of perception. What exactly do we perceive? What is the role of concepts in our experience? What is the relation between perceptual experience and empirical judgment? Does our capacity to think depend on our ability to perceive? (staff, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B361 Interpretation Theory: Gadamer
This upper-level seminar focuses on a major work of contemporary philosophy, Hans-Georg Gadamer’s Truth and Method, which provides a comprehensive theory of interpretation. Gadamer argues that all experience and understanding is interpretive. The seminar will consider both the background for and the reception of this work through selections from, among others, Aristotle, Derrida, Dilthey, Habermas, Heidegger, Kant, Plato and Strauss. (Dostal, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B364 Political Philosophy: Irony and Inquiry
(Elkins, Salkever; cross-listed as COML B364 and POLS B364)

PHIL B367 Hegel’s Philosophy of Right
Hegel’s Philosophy of Right, his major work of legal and political philosophy, is an account of the ethical basis of the state and of the relationship of politics, law and morality. In this course, we will engage in a close reading of the full text of the Philosophy of Right and consider several supplementary texts, including Marx’s Critique of the Philosophy of Right. (Elkins, Division III; cross-listed as POLS B367) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B368 The Enlightenment and Its Critics
(Barker, Division III; cross-listed as POLS B368)

PHIL B371 Topics in Legal and Political Philosophy
(Elkins, Division I or III; cross-listed as POLS B371)

PHIL B372 Introduction to Artificial Intelligence
(Kumar, Division II and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as CMSC B372)

PHIL B376 Citizenship and Migration
(Barker, Division III; cross-listed as POLS B376)

PHIL B380 Persons, Morality and Modernity
(Elkins; cross-listed as POLS B380) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHIL B384 Islamic Political Thought
(Harrold; cross-listed as POLS B384) Not offered in 2006-07.
PHIL B399 Senior Conference
Senior majors are required to write an undergraduate thesis on an approved topic. The senior conference is the course in which research and writing are directed. Seniors will meet collectively and individually with the supervising instructor. (Krausz, Division III)

PHIL B403 Supervised Work
(staff)

Physics

Students may complete a major or minor in Physics. Within the major, students may complete a minor in computational methods or educational studies, or complete the requirements for secondary education certification. Students may complete an M.A. in the combined A.B./M.A. program.

Faculty
Peter A. Beckmann, Professor and Chair
Mark Matlin, Senior Lecturer and Laboratory Coordinator
Elizabeth F. McCormack, Professor
David Nice, Visiting Assistant Professor
Michael W. Noel, Associate Professor (on leave 2006-07)

The courses in Physics emphasize the concepts and techniques that have led to our present state of understanding of the physical universe. They are designed to relate the individual parts of physics to the whole rather than to treat them as separate disciplines. In the advanced courses, the student applies these concepts and techniques to increasingly independent studies of physical phenomena. Opportunities exist for interdisciplinary work, for participation by qualified majors in research with members of the faculty, and for training in electronics, instrumentation and experimentation, including computer interfacing and programming.

Required Introductory Courses for the Major and Minor

The introductory courses required for the physics major and minor are PHYS 103, 104 or 101, 102 and MATH 101, 102. Advanced placement and credit is given for a score of 4 or 5 on the AP tests. Alternatively, students may take the departmental advanced placement examinations just prior to or during the first week of classes. Entering students are strongly urged to take departmental placement examinations in physics and mathematics if they had reasonably strong courses in high school. It is best for a student considering a physics major to complete the introductory requirements in the first year. However, the major sequence is designed such that a student who completes the introductory sequence by the end of the sophomore year can major in physics.

Major Requirements

Beyond the four introductory physics and mathematics courses, nine additional courses are required for the major. (Haverford courses may be substituted for Bryn Mawr courses where appropriate.) Five of the nine courses are PHYS 206, 214, 215, 306 and MATH 201. The remaining four courses must be chosen from among the 300-level physics courses, any one course from among ASTR 305, 320 and 322, or any one course from among MATH 303, 312 and 322.

The department has been very successful in preparing students for graduate school in physics, physical chemistry, materials science, engineering and related fields. To be well prepared for graduate school, students should take PHYS 302, 303, 308, 309 and 331. These students should also take any additional physics, mathematics and chemistry courses that reflect their interests, and should engage in research with a member of the faculty by taking PHYS 403. Note that PHYS 403 does not count toward one of the 13 courses required for the major.

Typical plans for a four-year major in physics are listed below.

Four-Year Plan meeting the minimum requirements for the major:

1st Year
PHYS 103, 104
MATH 101, 102

2nd Year
PHYS 214, 215, 206

3rd Year
PHYS 306 and one (or two) other 300-level physics course(s)

4th Year
Three (or two) other 300-level physics courses

Four-Year Plan providing adequate preparation for graduate school:

1st Year
PHYS 103, 104
MATH 101, 102

2nd Year
PHYS 214, 215, 206
MATH 201

3rd Year
PHYS 306, PHYS 331 and either 303, 309 or 308, 302

4th Year
PHYS 308, 302 or 303, 309
PHYS 403

The physics program at Bryn Mawr allows for a student to major in physics even if the introductory courses are not completed until the end of the sophomore year, as long as calculus is taken in the first year. It is also possible, although difficult, for the student majoring in three years to be adequately prepared for graduate school. To do this, the outline below should be supplemented with (at least) PHYS 403 in the 4th year.

Three-Year Plan meeting the minimum requirements for the major:

1st Year  MATH 101, 102
2nd Year  PHYS 103, 104, 206
           MATH 201
3rd Year  PHYS 214, 215, 306 and 302
           or 331
4th Year  Three 300-level physics courses

Honors
The A.B. degree may be awarded with honors in physics. The award is based on the quality of original research done by the student and a minimum grade point average. The research must be described in a senior thesis presented to the department. A grade point average of 3.4 or higher in 200- and 300-level physics courses (excluding PHYS 380 and 390) and an overall grade point average of at least 3.0, both calculated at the end of the senior year, must be achieved.

Minor Requirements
The requirements for the minor, beyond the introductory sequence, are PHYS 206, 214, 215, 306; MATH 201; and two additional 300-level physics courses.

Minor in Computational Methods
Students may major in physics and receive a minor in computational methods. Students would need to complete the requirements for the physics major including 306 and 322. Further, students would have to complete CMSC 110, 206 and 231 and one of CMSC 212, 225 (at Haverford), 245, 246, 330 or 340 (at Haverford).

Minor in Educational Studies or Secondary-School Teacher Certification
Students majoring in physics may pursue a minor in educational studies or state certification to teach at the secondary-school level. Students seeking the minor need to complete the requirements for the physics major including one of PHYS 380, 459 (at Haverford) or 460 (at Haverford), and five additional courses in the Education Program, including a two-semester senior seminar, which requires five to eight hours per week of fieldwork. To earn secondary-school certification (grades 7-12) in physics students must: complete the physics major plus two semesters of chemistry and one semester as a teaching assistant in a laboratory for introductory or intermediate physics courses; complete one year of biology (recommended); complete six education courses; and student-teach full-time (for two course credits) second semester of their senior year.

A.B./M.A. Program
To earn an M.A. degree in physics in the College’s A.B./M.A. program, a student must complete the requirements for an undergraduate physics major and also must complete six units of graduate level work in physics. Of these six units, as many as two units may be undergraduate courses at the 300 level taken for graduate credit (these same two courses may be used to fulfill the major requirements for the A.B. degree), at least two units must be graduate seminars at the 500 level, and two units must be graduate research at the 700 level leading to the submission and oral defense of an acceptable M.A. thesis. Students must also demonstrate skill in computing or in a foreign language.

Courses at Haverford College

Many upper-level physics courses are taught at Haverford and Bryn Mawr in alternate years. These courses (numbered 302, 303, 308, 309 and 322) may be taken interchangeably to satisfy major requirements.

PHYS B101, B102 Introductory Physics I
Two introductory courses on the study of the physical universe. Emphasis is on developing an understanding of how we study the universe, the ideas that have arisen from that study, and on problem solving. PHYS 101 includes topics from among Newtonian kinematics and dynamics, relativity, gravitation, fluid mechanics, and waves and sound. PHYS 102 includes electricity and magnetism, electrical circuits, light and optics, quantum mechanics, atomic and nuclear physics, and particle physics and cosmology. Calculus is introduced and used throughout. Topics include: particle physics; cosmology; the fundamental forces of nature; attempts at unifying the forces; Newtonian kinematics and dynamics; conservation laws; gravitation; electricity and magnetism; weak force and radioactive decay; nuclear physics; particle physics; sound waves; electromagnetic waves; quantum mechanics; atoms and molecules; and general relativity. Students are advised against taking PHYS 104 without having taken PHYS 103. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. (staff, Division IIL and Quantitative Skills)

PHYS B107 Conceptual Physics
This course is an introduction to our modern understanding of the physical universe. Special emphasis is placed on how the laws of physics are inferred and tested, how paradigms are developed and how working principles are extrapolated to new areas of investigation. The systematic and serendipitous nature of discoveries is explored. Examples and illustrations are typically drawn from particle physics, cosmology, nuclear physics, relativity and mechanics. This is a terminal course open to all students who have not taken college-level physics. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. (staff, Division IIL and Quantitative Skills)

PHYS B109 How Things Work
This course provides non-science majors the opportunity to explore the physical principles that govern the objects and activities familiar in their everyday lives. For example, objects such a roller coasters, rockets, light bulbs and Xerographic copiers will be used to explore motion,
PHYS B206 Mathematical Methods in the Physical Sciences I
This course is the first of a two-course sequence with PHYS 306 presenting topics in applied mathematics and computational methods useful to students studying any of the natural sciences including physicists, engineers, physical chemists, geologists and computer scientists. Topics typically covered include vector and complex algebra and analysis, linear systems of equations, probability and statistics, an introduction to first and second order differential equations and partial differential equations, and numerical methods for solving differential equations, solving linear systems of equations, pseudo-random number generation, numerical integration and curve fitting. Lecture and discussion four hours a week. Prerequisite: MATH 201. (staff, Quantitative Skills)

PHYS B214 Modern Physics and Quantum Mechanics
Survey of particles and fields, experimental origins of quantum theory; Schrödinger's equation, one-dimensional quantum mechanical problems; classical and quantum mechanical treatments of the harmonic oscillator and motion in an inverse square field; the hydrogen atom. Lecture three hours, laboratory in modern physics and physical optics three hours a week. Prerequisite: PHYS 102 or 104, or permission of instructor. Corequisite: MATH 201 or Haverford equivalents. (staff, Division III and Quantitative Skills)

PHYS B215 Special Relativity, Electromagnetism and Particle Physics
Topics covered in lecture include electro- and magnetostatics, electrodynamics, Maxwell's equations, light and physical optics. Maxwell's theory is used to motivate the study of the special theory of relativity; its impact on Newtonian mechanics is considered. The covariant formalism is introduced. Other fundamental forces of nature and their possible unification are studied. The laboratory covers topics in direct and alternating current and digital circuitry. Lecture three hours, laboratory three hours a week. Prerequisite: PHYS 102 or 104 and MATH 201, or Haverford equivalents. (staff, Division III and Quantitative Skills)

PHYS B302 Quantum Mechanics and Applications
This course presents nonrelativistic quantum mechanics, including Schrödinger's equation, the eigenvalue problem, the measurement process, the hydrogen atom, the harmonic oscillator, angular momentum, spin, the periodic table, time-dependent perturbation theory and the relationship between quantum and Newtonian mechanics. Lecture and discussion four hours a week. Prerequisites: PHYS 214 and 306. (staff) Alternates between Bryn Mawr and Haverford; 2006-07 at Haverford.

PHYS B303 Statistical and Thermal Physics
This course presents the statistical description of the macroscopic states of classical and quantum systems, including conditions for equilibrium; microcanonical, canonical and grand canonical ensembles; and Bose-Einstein, Fermi-Dirac and Max... well Boltzmann statistics. Examples and applications are drawn from thermodynamics, solid state physics, low temperature physics, atomic and molecular physics and electromagnetic waves. Lecture and discussion four hours a week. Prerequisite: PHYS 214. Corequisite: PHYS 306. (staff) Alternates between Bryn Mawr and Haverford; 2006-07 at Haverford.

PHYS B306 Mathematical Methods in the Physical Sciences
This course is the second of a sequence with PHYS 206 presenting topics in applied mathematics and computational methods useful to students studying the natural sciences including physicists, engineers, physical chemists, geologists and computer scientists. Topics covered include coordinate transformations and tensors, vector spaces, Fourier series, integral transforms, advanced ordinary and partial differential equations, special functions, boundary-value problems, functions of complex variables, an introduction to group theory and numerical methods for matrix diagonalization, solving systems of ordinary differential equations, solving partial differential equations, and Monte Carlo simulations. Lecture and discussion four hours a week. Prerequisites: MATH 201 and PHYS 206. (staff)

PHYS B308 Advanced Classical Mechanics
This course presents kinematics and dynamics of particles and macroscopic systems using Newtonian, Lagrangian and Hamiltonian techniques. Topics include oscillations, normal mode analysis, inverse square laws, nonlinear dynamics, rotating rigid bodies and motion in noninertial reference frames. Lecture and discussion four hours a week. Corequisite: PHYS 306. (staff) Alternates between Bryn Mawr and Haverford; 2006-07 at Haverford.

PHYS B309 Advanced Electromagnetic Theory
This course presents the mathematical structure of classical field theories. Topics include electrostatics and magnetostatics, dielectrics, magnetic materials, electrodynamics, Maxwell’s equations, electromagnetic waves and relativity. Examples and applications may also be drawn from superconductivity, plasma physics and radiation theory. Lecture and discussion four hours a week. Prerequisites: PHYS 215 and 306. (staff) Alternates between Bryn Mawr and Haverford; 2006-07 at Bryn Mawr.

PHYS B313 Particle Physics
This course presents models of the structure and interactions of the fundamental particles. Topics include relativistic kinematics; symmetries and conservation laws; the Feynman diagram formalism; quantum theories of the electromagnetic, weak and strong forces; the Standard Model; gauge theories; unification of the fundamental forces; and an introduction to string theory. Prerequisite: PHYS 302. (staff) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHYS B322 Solid State Physics
This course presents the physics of solids. Topics include crystal structure and diffraction; the reciprocal lattice and Brillouin zones; crystal binding; lattice vibrations and normal modes; phonon dispersion; Einstein and Debye models for the specific heat; the free electron model; the Fermi surface; electrons in periodic structures; the Bloch theorem; band structure; semi-classical electron dynamics; semiconductors; and superconductivity. Lecture and discussion four hours a week. Prerequisites: PHYS 306. (staff) Alternates between Bryn Mawr and Haverford; 2006-07 at Bryn Mawr.

PHYS B325 Unified Grand Tour of Theoretical Physics
This course presents an introduction to the successful mathematical models of physical systems developed over the last 100 years. Topics will be taken from the geometry of spacetime, special relativity, general relativity and gravitation, quantum theory, second quantization and quantum field theory, relativistic quantum mechanics, gauge fields, the standard model of the particles and forces, grand unified theories, gravity and supersymmetry, and string theory. Lecture and discussion four hours a week. Prerequisites: PHYS 306 and 308. Corequisite: PHYS 302. (staff) Not offered in 2006-07.

PHYS B331 Advanced Modern Physics Laboratory
This laboratory course consists of set-piece experiments as well as directed experimental projects to study a variety of phenomena in atomic, molecular, optical, nuclear and solid state physics. The experiments and projects serve as an introduction to contemporary instrumentation and the experimental techniques used in physics research laboratories in industry and in universities. Laboratory eight hours a week. Prerequisites: PHYS 214. Corequisite: PHYS 215. (staff)

PHYS B380 Assistant Teaching in Physics
Students have the opportunity to work with an experienced faculty member as they serve as assistant teachers in a college course in physics. Students will participate in a directed study of the literature on teaching and learning pedagogy; participate in constructing and designing a course; and engage in teaching components of the course. Supervised work 12 hours a week. Prerequisite: PHYS 103/104 or equivalent, and permission of the instructor. (staff)

PHYS B390 Independent Study
At the discretion of the department, juniors or seniors may supplement their work in physics with the study of topics not covered in regular course offerings. Supervised work 12 hours a week. Prerequisite: PHYS 306 and permission of the instructor. (staff)

PHYS B403 Supervised Research
At the discretion of the department, juniors and seniors may supplement their work in physics with research in one of the faculty research groups. At the discretion of the research supervisor, a written paper and an oral presentation may be required at the end of the semester or year. The available areas of supervised research projects include molecular spectroscopy and dynamics, nonlinear dynamics, condensed matter physics and physical chemistry. Students are encouraged to contact individual faculty members and the departmental Web pages for further information. (staff)
The Caroline McCormick Slade Department of Political Science

Students may complete a major or minor in Political Science. Within the major, students may complete a concentration in environmental studies.

The major in Political Science aims at developing the reading, writing and thinking skills needed for a critical understanding of the political world. Coursework includes a variety of approaches to the study of politics: historical/interpretive, quantitative/deductive and philosophical. Using these approaches, students examine political life in a variety of contexts from the small-scale neighborhood to the international system, asking questions about the different ways in which humans have addressed the organization of society, the management of conflicts and the organization of power and authority.

Major Requirements

The major consists of a minimum of 10 courses, including 398 and 399. Two of these must be chosen from among any of the following entry-level courses: 101, 121, 131, 141, 205, 220, 228 and 231. The major must include work done in two distinct fields. A minimum of three courses must be taken in each field, and at least one course in each field must be at the 300 level. Majors take the Senior Seminar (398) in the first semester of the senior year and write the Senior Essay (399) in the second.

Fields are not fixed in advance, but are set by consultation between the student and departmental advisers. The most common fields have been American politics, comparative politics, international politics and political philosophy, but fields have also been established in American history, East Asian studies, environmental studies, Hispanic studies, international economics, political psychology, public policy and women and politics, among others.

Up to three courses from departments other than Political Science may be accepted for major credit, if in the judgment of the department these courses are an integral part of the student’s major plan. This may occur in two ways: an entire field may be drawn from courses in a related department (such as economics or history) or courses taken in related departments will count toward the major if they are closely linked with work the student has done in political science. Ordinarily, courses at the 100 level or other introductory courses taken in related departments may not be used for major credit in political science. In addition, at least three of the courses taken towards completion of the major must be taken in the Bryn Mawr Department of Political Science, not counting POLS 398 and 399.

Honors

Students who have done distinguished work in their courses in the major and who write outstanding senior essays will be considered by the department for departmental honors.

Minor Requirements

A minor in political science consists of six courses distributed across at least two fields. At least two of the courses must be at the 300 level. At least three of the courses must be taken from the Bryn Mawr Department of Political Science course offerings.

Concentration in Environmental Studies

The Department of Political Science participates with other departments in offering a concentration within the major in environmental studies (see page 147).

Cross-Registration

All Haverford political science courses count toward the Bryn Mawr major; courses in related departments at Haverford that are accepted for political science major credit will be considered in the same way as similar courses taken at Bryn Mawr. All Bryn Mawr majors in political science must take at least three courses in political science at Bryn Mawr, not counting POLS 398 and 399.

POLS B101 Introduction to Political Science

An introduction to various theoretical and empirical approaches to the study of politics with emphasis on three concepts central to political life in all societies: authority, community and conflict. The course examines these concepts in relation to local communities, nations and the international system. (Harrold, Division I)

POLS B111 Introduction to Peace and Conflict Studies

A broad and interdisciplinary overview of the study of conflict management. Areas to be introduced will include interpersonal conflict and conflict management, alternative dispute resolution and the law, community conflict and mediation, organizational, intergroup and international conflict and conflict management. This course will also serve as a foundation course for students in or considering the peace studies concentration. (Neuman, Division I)

POLS B121 Introduction to American Politics

An introduction to the major features and characteristics of the American political system. Features examined include voting and elections; the institutions of government (Congress, the Presidency, the courts and the bureaucracy); the policy-making process; and the role of groups (interest groups, women and ethnic and racial minorities) in the political process. Enrollment is limited to 35 students. (Golden, Division I)
POLS B131 Comparative Politics
An introduction to the comparative study of political systems. A sampling of major questions addressed by comparative approaches such as why authority structures differ across countries; how major issues such as inequality, environmental degradation and ethno-nationalism arise in different polities; and why governmental responses to those issues differ so widely. Comparisons are made across time and space. Emphasis is placed on institutional, cultural and historical explanations. Enrollment is limited to 35 students. (Hager, Division I)

POLS B141 Introduction to International Politics
An introduction to international relations, exploring its main subdivisions and theoretical approaches. Phenomena and problems in world politics examined include systems of power management, imperialism, war, cold war, bargaining and peace. Problems and institutions of international economy and international law are also addressed. This course assumes a reasonable knowledge of modern world history. Enrollment is limited to 35 students. (Allen, Division I)

POLS B205 European Politics: Between Unification and Dissolution
An analysis of the accelerating process of European unification and the increasing political divisiveness within individual European countries. We focus on the evolution of the state-society relationship in selected countries and the emergence of new sources of conflict in recent years. These are placed in the context of a changing international scene: the eastward expansion of the European Union, European social and economic unity and the introduction of the Euro. (Hager, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B206 Conflict and Conflict Management: A Cross-Cultural Approach
This course examines cross-cultural differences in the levels and forms of conflict and its management through a wide range of cases and alternative theoretical perspectives. Conflicts of interest range from the interpersonal to the international levels and an important question is the relevance of conflict and its management in small-scale societies as a way to understand political conflict and dispute settlement in the United States and modern industrial settings. Prerequisite: one course in political science, anthropology or sociology. (Ross, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B206) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B210 Human Rights, Conflict and Transitional Justice: No Justice, No Peace?
This course will explore how human rights norms can both support and complicate conflict resolution and peace-building efforts. After examining the various meanings and forms of "human rights," we will consider the range of "transitional justice" options available for societies attempting to move away from and make sense of their experience of protracted political conflict. Attention will be paid to the transitions in South Africa and Guatemala and the ongoing processes taking place in Peru and Sri Lanka. (Keenan, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.
POLS B220 Constitutional Law
A consideration of some of the leading cases and controversies in American constitutional law. The course will focus on such questions as the role of the constitution in mediating the relationship between public and private power with respect to both difference and hierarchy, and on the role of judicial review within a constitutional system. Enrollment is limited to 35 students. (Elkins, Division I)

POLS B222 Introduction to Environmental Issues: Movements, Controversies and Policy Making in Comparative Perspective
An exploration of the ways in which different cultural, economic and political settings have shaped issue emergence and policymaking. Consideration is given to the prospects for international cooperation in solving environmental problems. (Hager, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B222)

POLS B226 Introduction to Confucianism
(Kim, Division III; cross-listed as EAST B226 and PHIL B226) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B228 Introduction to Political Philosophy: Ancient and Early Modern
An introduction to the fundamental problems of political philosophy, especially the relationship between political life and the human good or goods. Readings from Aristotle, Hobbes, Machiavelli, Plato and Rousseau. (Salkever, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B228)

POLS B231 Introduction to Political Philosophy: Modern
A continuation of POLS 228, although 228 is not a prerequisite. Particular attention is given to the various ways in which the concept of freedom is used in explaining political life. Readings from Hegel, Locke, Marx, J.S. Mill and Nietzsche. (Salkever, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B231)

POLS B233 Israel and the Palestinians
This course brings students to examination and analysis of the historical events and political processes that have produced the current situation faced by Israel and the Palestinians. Designed to introduce students to the complexity behind the sound-bytes, the course readings will emphasize analytical skills for reading different kinds of texts, including primary sources. Topics include the history of the Zionist movement, the emergence of Palestinian nationalism, major changes in Israeli domestic politics and negotiation processes. (Harrold, Division I; cross-listed as HEBR B233 and HIST B290) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B234 The Jurisprudence of the Administrative State
Through an intensive examination of judicial opinions and secondary texts, this course considers the nature of law and rights in the administrative state. Topics include the sources of legitimate agency power, the role of courts and agencies in interpreting statutes, and the rights of individuals to participate in agency decision-making and to challenge agency action. (Elkins, Division I)
POLs B238 Science, Technology and the Good Life
(Dostal, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B238) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLs B241 The Politics of International Law and Institutions
An introduction to international law, which assumes a working knowledge of modern world history and politics since World War II. The origins of modern international legal norms in philosophy and political necessity are explored, showing the schools of thought to which the understandings of these origins give rise. Significant cases are used to illustrate various principles and problems. Prerequisite: POLs 141. (Allen, Division I)

POLs B243 African and Caribbean Perspectives in World Politics
This course makes African and Caribbean voices audible as they create or adopt visions of the world that explain their positions and challenges in world politics. Students learn analytical tools useful in understanding other parts of the world. Prerequisite: POLs 141. (Allen, Division I)

POLs B244 Great Empires of the Ancient Near East
(Ataç, Division III; cross-listed as ARCH B244, CITY B244 and HIST B244) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLs B248 Modern Middle East Cities
Taking advantage of the considerable new scholarship on cities, the course will draw from diverse fields to bring different methods to the study of Middle Eastern cities and urbanization. The course will treat the negotiation of state control, urban planning and its alterations in urban practices, social movements and new spaces of politics, competing architectural visions, globalizations, and new local identities. It will treat such topics as Islamic charities in Cairo, shopping malls as public space in Dubai City, Islamic politics in public space in Istanbul, the restructuring of Beirut, and ideas of modernity in the construction of Tel Aviv. (Harrold, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B248 and HEBR B248) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLs B251 Politics and the Mass Media: Global Era
A consideration of the mass media as a pervasive fact of U.S. political life and how they influence American politics. Topics include how the media have altered American political institutions and campaigns, how selective attention to particular issues and exclusion of others shape public concerns, and the conditions under which the media directly influence the content of political beliefs and the behavior of citizens. Prerequisite: one course in political science, preferably POLs 121. (Robertson, Division I)

POLs B253 Feminist Theory
An examination of feminist critiques of traditional philosophical conceptions of morality, the self, reason and objectivity; philosophical contributions to issues of concern for feminists, such as the nature of equality, justice and oppression, are studied. Prerequisite: one course in philosophy or permission of instructor. (Barker, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B252) Not offered in 2006-07.
POLS B262 Who Believes What and Why: the Sociology of Public Opinion
(Wright, Division I; cross-listed as SOCL B262)

POLS B265 Political Data Analysis
(Paradigms and Perestroika)
This course invokes renewed emphasis in the discipline of political science on methodological pluralism. In that spirit, it introduces students to a variety of different ways in which to gather data in order to make knowledge claims about politics. Data are construed broadly to encompass qualitative information as well as quantitative. Methods range from historical contextualization to experiments, surveys, field studies and interpretations of texts and images. (Schram, Division I)

POLS B278 Oil, Politics, Society and Economy
Examines the role oil has played in transforming societies, in shaping national politics and in the distribution of wealth within and between nations. Rentier states and authoritarianism, the historical relationships between oil companies and states, monopolies, boycotts, sanctions and demands for succession and issues of social justice mark the political economy of oil. (Harrold)

POLS B281 Issues in U.S. Foreign Policy
With the beginning of the Cold War, U.S. policy makers defined the Middle East as a major area of concern, and the United States became involved in blocking or assisting European, Israeli or Soviet interests. This course will examine the development of U.S. foreign policy in the Middle East up to and including U.S. policies in Afghanistan and Iraq. We will consider theoretical underpinnings of U.S. policy, how U.S. policy has been made, the role of oil resources, and the special relationship with Israel. Prerequisites: one course in American Politics, American History, Middle East Politics or U.S. Foreign Policy. (Harrold, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B283 Introduction to the Politics of the Modern Middle East and North Africa
This course is a multidisciplinary approach to understanding the politics of the region, using works of history, political science, political economy, film and fiction as well as primary sources. The course will concern itself with three broad areas: the legacy of colonialism and the importance of international forces; the role of Islam in politics; and the political and social effects of particular economic conditions, policies and practices. (Harrold, Division I; cross-listed as HEBR B283 and HIST B283)

POLS B300 Nietzsche, Kant, Plato: Modes of Practical Philosophy
A study of three important ways of thinking about theory and practice in Western political philosophy. Prerequisites: POLS 228 and 231, or PHIL 101 and 201. (Salkever; cross-listed as PHIL B300) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B308 Political Transformation in Eastern and Western Europe: Germany and Its Neighbors
This course examines the many recent changes in Europe through the lens of German politics. From the two world wars to the Cold War to the East European revolutions of 1989 and the European Union, Germany has played a pivotal role in world politics. We will identify cultural, political and economic factors that have shaped this role and analyze Germany's actions in the broader context of international politics. (Hager; cross-listed as GERM B308) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B310 Comparative Public Policy
A comparison of the policy-making process and policy outcomes in a variety of countries. Focusing on particular issues such as the environment, poverty, suburban sprawl, and domestic security, we will identify institutional, historical and cultural sources of the differences. We will also examine the growing importance of international-level policymaking and the interplay between international and domestic pressures on policy makers. Enrollment is limited to 18 students. (Hager, Division I)

POLS B316 The Politics of Ethnic, Racial, and National Groups
An analysis of ethnic, racial and national group cooperation and conflict in a variety of settings. Particular attention is paid to processes of group identification and definition; the politicization of race, ethnic and national identity; and various patterns of accommodation and conflict among groups. Prerequisite: two courses in political science, anthropology or sociology, or permission of instructor. (Ross) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B320 Greek Political Philosophy
A consideration of major works by Thucydides, Plato and Aristotle, along with readings from the current debate over the relevance of Greek philosophy to philosophy and politics today. (Salkever; cross-listed as PHIL B321)

POLS B321 Technology and Politics
An analysis of the complex role of technology in Western political development in the industrial age. We focus on the implications of technological advance for human emancipation. Discussions of theoretical approaches to technology will be supplemented by case studies illustrating the politics of particular technological issues. Prerequisite: one course in political science or permission of instructor. (Hager; cross-listed as CITY B321) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B327 Political Philosophy in the 20th Century
A study of 20th-century extensions of three traditions in Western political philosophy: the adherents of the German and English ideas of freedom and the founders of classical naturalism. Authors read include Hannah Arendt, Jurgen Habermas and John Rawls. Topics include the relationship of individual rationality and political authority, the "crisis of modernity" and the debate concerning contemporary democratic citizenship. Prerequisites: POLS 228 and 231, or PHIL 101 and 201. Enrollment is limited to 18 students. (Salkever; cross-listed as PHIL B327) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B336 Plato: Later Dialogues
(Dostal, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B336) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B339 The Policy-Making Process
This course examines the processes by which we make and implement public policy in the United States, and the institutions and actors involved in those processes. The aim of the course is to increase our understanding of how these institutions and actors interact at different stages in the policy process and the nature of the policies that result. Examples will be drawn from a range of policy domains including environmental policy and civil rights. Enrollment is limited to 20 students. (Golden; cross-listed as CITY B339) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B344 Developmental Ethics
(Koggel; cross-listed as PHIL B344)

POLS B347 Advanced Issues in Peace and Conflict Studies: Genocide
An in-depth examination of crucial issues and particular cases of interest to advanced students in peace and conflict studies through common readings and student projects. Various important theories of conflict and conflict management are compared and students undertake semester-long field research. The second half of the semester focuses on student research topics with continued exploration of conflict-resolution theories and research methods. Prerequisite: POLS 206, 111 or Haverford’s POLS 247. (Neuman)

POLS B348 Culture and Ethnic Conflict
An examination of the role of culture in the origin, escalation and settlement of ethnic conflicts. This course examines the politics of culture and how it constrains and offers opportunities for ethnic conflict and cooperation. The role of narratives, rituals and symbols is emphasized in examining political contestation over cultural representations and expressions such as parades, holy sites, public dress, museums, monuments and language in culturally framed ethnic conflicts from all regions of the world. Prerequisites: two courses in the social sciences. (Ross; cross-listed as CITY B348) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B358 Political Psychology of Group Identification
(Ross; cross-listed as PSYC B358) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B364 Political Philosophy: Irony and Inquiry
In the work of both Plato and Nietzsche, there is a special and important relation between substance and “style” — that is, between what is said, how it is said and what it is meant to do. Through a close reading of primary texts, this course will explore this relation. In the course of our inquiry, we will explore such questions as the relationship of truth and power; of immanence and transcendence; of thought, action and the good life; and the notion of philosophical irony. (Elkins, Salkever; cross-listed as COML B364 and PHIL B364)

POLS B366 Building Peace: Democratization and Civil Society in Situations of Protracted Conflict
This course will examine attempts to strengthen the ability of local “civil society” to mediate conflicts peacefully and build bridges across polarized and distrustful communities. The course will introduce students to differing theories of “peacebuilding,” while placing these theories in the context of competing ideas about the nature of democratization and the democratic potential of “civil society.” Cases to be examined might include East Timor, El Salvador, Guatemala, Mozambique, Northern Ireland, South Africa and Sri Lanka. (Keenan) Not offered in 2006-07.
POLS B367 Hegel's Philosophy of Right
(Elkins, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B367) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B368 The Enlightenment and Its Critics
How do we make sense of the fact that the philosophical elaboration of universal rights and popular sovereignty coincided with political systems riddled with forms of inequality and second-class citizenship? Are these inequalities products of Enlightenment thought, or are they its historical exceptions? Takes up these questions through critical engagement with the Enlightenment tradition from the perspective of class, race, gender and sexuality, as well as in relation to postcolonial theory. (Barker, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B368)

POLS B371 Topics in Legal and Political Philosophy
This course examines a variety of topics on the relationship between justice, authority, community, violence and law. Specific issues include the role of violence in liberal polities and legal regimes, civil disobedience, the relationship of law, state and society, morality and war, and hate speech. (Elkins; cross-listed as PHIL B371)

POLS B372 Comparative Democratic Institutions
This course examines the structure and dynamics of different democratic institutions. In this process, we consider differences between parliamentary and presidential systems, between different electoral systems, and different systems for power sharing such as federalism and consociationalism. The goal of the course is to understand the workings of these institutions, the practical implications of particular institutional designs, and the normative justifications invoked to support them in different historical contexts. Particular attention will be paid to the historical processes through which democratization emerged in the West, with comparisons to processes of political transformation in the "Third World" and elsewhere. (Ahmed, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B374 Gender and Power in Comparative Context
Patriarchy and fraternity are powerful forms of authority in traditional and modern societies, forms of authority that operate along lines of gender and age and have proved resilient and resistant to feminist challenge. This course examines patriarchy, fraternity and forms of resistance through political theory and empirical analysis of social practices. Our studies will include different historical practices of veiling in Muslim countries, violence and nature in the American West, young women factory workers in Malaysia and labor protest, women politicians in Turkey, fathers, sons and soldiers in Israel, and discourses of respect, respectability and masculinity for African American men. (Harrold) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B375 Women, Work and Family
As the number of women participating in the paid workforce who are also mothers exceeds 50 percent, it becomes increasingly important to study the issues raised by these dual roles as well as to study women's decisions to participate in the paid workforce itself. This seminar will examine the experiences of working and nonworking mothers in the United States, the roles of fathers, the impact of working mothers on children and the policy implications of women, work and family. (Golden; cross-listed as SOCL B375)

POLS B376 Citizenship and Migration
An exploration of the theories, policies and practices surrounding political membership, with a focus on contemporary labor migration. The course will examine political theory texts on the subject of citizenship, as well as undertake a comparative review of theories of migration, national migration policies and regional migration pathways. Topics will include immigrant incorporation, transnational identity and the feminization of migration. (Barker, Division III; cross-listed as PHIL B376)

POLS B380 Persons, Morality and Modernity
What demands does the modern world impose on those who live in it? What kinds of persons does the modern world bring into being? What kinds of ethical claims can that world make on us? What is the relationship between public and private morality, and between each of us as public citizens and private persons? This course explores such questions through an examination of a variety of texts in political theory and philosophy. (Elkins; cross-listed as PHIL B380) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B383 Two Hundred Years of Islamic Reform, Radicalism and Revolution
This course will examine the transformation of Islamic politics in the past two hundred years, emphasizing historical accounts, comparative analysis of developments in different parts of the Islamic world. Topics covered include the rationalist Salafy movement; the so-called conservative movements (Sanussi of Libya, the Mahdi in the Sudan and the Wahhabi movement in Arabia); the Caliphate movement; contemporary debates over Islamic constitutions; among others. The course is not restricted to the Middle East or Arab world. Prerequisites: A course on Islam and modern European history, or an earlier course on the Modern Middle East, or 19th-century India or permission of instructor. (Harrold, Division I; cross-listed as HIST B383)

POLS B384 Islamic Political Thought
The course is concerned with Islamic political thought both as philosophy and as engagement with its contemporary historical world. Readings will be drawn from the rational and philosophic tradition in Islam: al-Farabi, Ibn Rushd (Averroes), Ibn Sina (Avicenna) and al-Ghazali, as well as from later thinkers who engaged issues of authoritarianism, non-Islamic rule, modernity and change: Ibn Taimiya, al-Afghani, Abduh, Mawdudi, Qutb and Khomeini. (Harrold; cross-listed as PHIL B384) Not offered in 2006-07.

POLS B391 International Political Economy
This seminar examines the growing importance of economic issues in world politics and traces the development of the modern world economy from its origins in colonialism and the industrial revolution. Major paradigms in political economy are critically examined. Aspects of and issues in international economic relations such as finance, trade, migration and foreign investment are examined in the light of selected approaches. (Allen)
POLS B398 Senior Conference
Required of senior majors. This course is divided into two parts. During the first eight weeks of the term, department faculty meet weekly with senior majors to discuss core questions of method and epistemology in political science and to consider a few selected examples of outstanding work in the discipline. The rest of the term is devoted to individual reading and tutorial instruction in preparation for writing the senior essay. (Golden)

POLS B399 Senior Essay
(Allen, Elkins, Golden, Hager, Salkever)

POLS B403 Supervised Work
(staff)

Psycho logical

Students may complete a major or minor in Psychology. Within the major, students may complete a concentration in neural and behavioral sciences.

Faculty
Kimberly Wright Cassidy, Associate Professor and Chair
Margaret A. Hollyday, Professor
Clark R. McCauley, Professor
Paul Neuman, Senior Lecturer
Leslie Rescorla, Professor (on leave semester II)
Marc Schulz, Associate Professor
Anjali Thapar, Associate Professor
Earl Thomas, Professor (on leave semester II)
Robert H. Wozniak, Professor

The department offers the student a major program that allows a choice of courses from among a wide variety of fields in psychology: clinical, cognitive, developmental, physiological and social. In addition to the considerable breadth offered, the program encourages the student to focus on more specialized areas through advanced coursework, seminars and especially through supervised research. Students have found that the major program provides a strong foundation for graduate work in clinical, cognitive, developmental, experimental, physiological and social psychology, as well as for graduate study in law, medicine and business.
Major Requirements

Major requirements in psychology are either PSYC 101 or 102 (or a one-semester introductory psychology course taken elsewhere); PSYC 205; and additional courses at the 200 and 300 levels, as described below. Students may choose to take either PSYC 101 or 102, or they can elect to take both, as the content areas differ. Beginning for students graduating in 2009, if a student takes one of the 100-level courses (101 or 102), the major requires at least eight courses above the 100 level, not including PSYC 205: four 200-level and four 300-level courses, or five 200-level and three 300-level courses. If a student takes both 101 and 102, she must take four 200-level and three 300-level courses. With permission of the department, two semesters of supervised research may be substituted for one 300-level course.

Majors may substitute advance placement credit (score of 5 on the Psychology Advanced Placement exam) for either PSYC 101 or 102.

Courses at the 200 level survey major content areas of psychological research. With the exception of PSYC 205, all 200-level courses require PSYC 101 or 102 or the permission of the instructor. Courses at the 300 level have a 200-level survey course as a prerequisite and offer either specialization within a content area or integration across areas.

The psychology major requires two courses with a laboratory, one at the 100 level (101 or 102) and one at the 200 or 300 level. If a major elects to take both 101 and 102, a laboratory course at the 200 or 300 level is still required. If a student takes introductory psychology elsewhere, and the course has no laboratory, or the student receives advanced placement credit for introductory psychology, then two laboratory courses must be taken at the 200 or 300 level to fulfill major requirements.

Majors are also required to attend a one-hour, weekly seminar in the junior year for one semester. This seminar is designed to sharpen students' analytical and critical thinking skills, to introduce students to faculty members' areas of research, to provide additional opportunities for student-faculty interactions and to build a sense of community.

The selection of courses to meet the major requirements is made in consultation with the student's major adviser. Any continuing faculty member can serve as a major adviser. It is expected that the student will sample broadly among the diverse fields represented in the curriculum. Courses outside the department may be taken for major credit if they satisfy the above descriptions of 200-level and 300-level courses and are approved by the student's major adviser. Students should contact their major adviser about major credit for a course outside the department before taking the course.

Honors

Departmental honors (called Honors in Research in Psychology) are awarded on the merits of a report of research (the design and execution; and the scholarship exhibited in the writing of a paper based on the research). To be considered for honors, students must have a grade point average in psychology of 3.6 or higher at the end of the fall semester of the senior year.

Minor Requirements
A student may minor in psychology by taking PSYC 101 or 102 and any other five courses that meet the requirements of the major.

Concentration in Neural and Behavioral Sciences
An interdepartmental concentration in neural and behavioral sciences is available as an option to students majoring in either biology or psychology. Students electing this option must fulfill requirements of both the major and the concentration, which is administered by an interdepartmental committee.

For a psychology major with a concentration in neural and behavioral sciences, students must complete six required courses: PSYC 101 or 102, 201, 205, 212, 218 and one of the following 300-level courses — PSYC 323, 326, 350, 351 or 395.

Five additional psychology courses at the 200, 300 and 400 levels are required to complete the psychology major with a concentration in neural and behavioral sciences. These should be chosen in consultation with the major adviser to ensure that the distribution of 200- and 300-level courses satisfies the psychology major requirements. Some of these courses (such as Supervised Research) may also fulfill core major requirements.

These departmental requirements are in addition to the requirements for the neural and behavioral sciences concentration, which are described on page 230.

Minor in Computational Methods
Students majoring in psychology can minor in computational methods. Requirements for the minor are listed on page 112.

Haverford College Courses
Certain courses currently offered at Haverford College may be substituted for the equivalent Bryn Mawr courses for purposes of the Bryn Mawr psychology major.

Introductory psychology at Haverford may be substituted for 101/102. PSYC 200 at Haverford may be substituted for PSYC 205. The following courses at Haverford will count as 200-level courses for the major: PSYC 213 (Memory and Cognition), PSYCH 215 (Introduction to Personality Psychology), PSYC 217 (Biological Psychology), PSYC 224 (Social Psychology), PSYC 238 (Psychology of Language), PSYC 260 (Cognitive Neuroscience).

The following Haverford courses will count as 300-level courses for the major: PSYC 214 (Psychology of Adolescence), PSYC 220 (The Psychology of Time), PSYC 221 (The Primate Origins of Society), PSYC 222 (Evolution and Behavior), PSYCH 225 (Self and Identity), PSYC 240 (Psychology of Pain and Pain Inhibition), PSYC 250 (Biopsychology of Emotion and Personality), PSYC 311 (Advanced Personality Psychology: Freud), PSYC 325 (The Psychology of Close Relationships), PSYC 340 (Human Neuropsychology), PSYC 350 (Biopsychology of Stress). Students who take Haverford courses with the half credit laboratory attachments may count the lab portion of the course toward fulfilling the advanced lab requirement for the Bryn Mawr major.

PSYC B101, B102 Experimental Psychology
Both PSYC 101 and 102 present psychology as a natural science and provide a survey of methods, facts and principles relating to basic psychological processes. Topics covered in 101 include neural bases of behavior, learning and motivation, and psychosocial development and abnormal psychology. Topics covered in 102 include human cognition, cognitive development, individual differences and social psychology. Lecture three hours and laboratory four hours a week (for both 101 and 102). (Cassidy, Rescorla, Division III)

PSYC B201 Learning Theory and Behavior
This course covers the basic principles of behavior, most of which were discovered through animal research, and their application to the understanding of the human condition. Traditionally, learning has been described in terms of operant and Pavlovian processes, with modeling treated as a special kind of operant conditioning. The basic procedures and principles of operant and Pavlovian conditioning are examined, and their relation to complex human functioning, such as concept formation and awareness, is explored. An introduction to functional assessment and analysis — the benchmarks of applied behavior analysis — will follow. Lecture three hours, laboratory one to two hours a week. (Neuman, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

PSYC B203 Educational Psychology
Topics in the psychology of human cognitive, social and affective behavior are examined and related to educational practice. Issues covered include learning theories, memory, attention, thinking, motivation, social/emotional issues in adolescence and assessment/learning disabilities. This course provides a Praxis Level I opportunity. Classroom observation is required. (Cassidy, Division I)

PSYC B205 Experimental Methods and Statistics
An introduction to experimental design, general research methodology, and the analysis and interpretation of data. Emphasis will be placed on issues involved with conducting psychological research. Topics include descriptive and inferential statistics, experimental design and validity, analysis of variance, and correlation and regression. Each statistical method will also be executed using computers. Lecture three hours, laboratory 90 minutes a week. (Thapar, Division I and Quantitative Skills)

PSYC B206 Developmental Psychology
A topical survey of psychological development from infancy through adolescence, focusing on the interaction of personal and environmental factors in the ontogeny of perception, language, cognition and social interactions within the family and with peers. Topics include developmental theories; infant perception; attachment; language development; theory of mind; memory development; peer relations, schools and the family as contexts of development; and identity and the adolescent transition. (Wozniak, Division I)
PSYC B208 Social Psychology
A survey of theories and data in the study of human social behavior. Special attention to methodological issues of general importance in the conduct and evaluation of research with humans. Topics include group dynamics (conformity, leadership, encounter groups, crowd behavior, intergroup conflict); attitude change (consistency theories, attitudes and behavior, mass media persuasion); and person perception (stereotyping, essentializing, moral judgment). Participation in a research project is required. (McCauley, Division I)

PSYC B209 Abnormal Psychology
This course examines the experience, origins and consequences of psychological problems. What do we mean by abnormal behavior or psychopathology? How is psychopathology assessed and classified? How do psychologists study and treat it? What causes psychological difficulties and what are their consequences? Are psychological states linked to physical health? Do psychological treatments (therapies) work? This course will consider major psychological, social and biological explanatory models in addressing these questions. Readings, lecture and discussion will introduce a broad range of psychological disturbances. Two lectures, one discussion section a week. (Schulz, Division I)

PSYC B212 Human Cognition
A survey of the history, theories and data of cognitive psychology. Emphasis is placed on those models and methods that fall within the information-processing approach to human cognition. Topics include perception, object recognition, attention and automaticity, memory, mental representations and knowledge, language and problem solving. Data from laboratory experiments (including those conducted within the course) and the performance of patients with brain damage are reviewed. Participation in self-administered laboratory experiments is mandatory. A research project or paper is also required. (Thapar, Division III)

PSYC B214 Behavior Modification
This course covers the basic principles of behavior and their relevance and application to clinical problems. The theoretical approaches of Pavlovian conditioning and operant conditioning (behavior analysis) will be covered to help understand the methods used in clinical practice. Topics may include eating disorders, anxiety disorders, addictive behavior, autistic behavior, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder and oppositional/conduct disorder. Methods for recording, analyzing and modifying behavior will be covered. This course provides a Praxis Level I opportunity. (Neuman, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

PSYC B218 Behavioral Neuroscience
An interdisciplinary course on the neurobiological bases of experience and behavior, emphasizing the contribution of the various neurosciences to the understanding of basic problems of psychology. An introduction to the fundamentals of neuroanatomy, neurophysiology and neurochemistry with an emphasis upon synaptic transmission; followed by the application of these principles to an analysis of sensory processes and perception, emotion, motivation, learning and cognition. Lecture three hours a week. (Thomas, Division II)
PSYC B305 Psychological Testing
Principles of measurement relevant to both experimental and individual differences psychology, with special emphasis on evaluating tests for either research or practical selection problems. Tests considered include intelligence tests (e.g., WAIS, WISC, Stanford Binet, Raven's Matrices), aptitude tests (e.g., SAT, GRE), and personality tests (e.g., MMPI, NEO, Rorschach). Issues considered include creativity versus intelligence testing, nature versus nurture in IQ scores and effects of base rate in using tests for selection. Prerequisite: PSYC 205. (McCauley) Not offered in 2006-07.

PSYC B312 History of Modern American Psychology
An examination of major 20th-century trends in American psychology and their 18th- and 19th-century social and intellectual roots. Topics include physiological and philosophical origins of scientific psychology; growth of American developmental, comparative, social and clinical psychology; and the cognitive revolution. Open only to juniors and seniors majoring in psychology or by permission of the instructor. (Wozniak)

PSYC B323 Advanced Topics in Cognitive Neuroscience: Biopsychology of Sex Differences
A survey and critical analysis of research and theory regarding biological, psychological, social and cultural determinants of sex differences in cognition. The first half of the semester will examine the role that developmental processes, cultural socialization and gender-role stereotypes play in the creation of sex differences in cognition. The second half will examine the role that sex chromosomes and hormones play in creating sex differences in the brain and behavior. Class time will involve discussion of theory and research as well as the design and execution of original research. (Thapar)

PSYC B326 From Channels to Behavior (Brodfuehrer, Division II; cross-listed as BIOL B326)

PSYC B340 Women's Mental Health
This course will provide an overview of current research and theory related to women's mental health. We will discuss psychological phenomena and disorders that are particularly salient to and prevalent among women, why these phenomena/disorders affect women disproportionately over men, and how they may impact women's psychological and physical well-being. Psychological disorders covered will include: depression, eating disorders, dissociative identity disorder, borderline personality disorder and chronic pain disorders. Other topics will include work-family conflict for working mothers, the role of sociocultural influences on women's mental health, and mental health issues particular to women of color and to lesbian women. (Rosenfeld, Division I)

PSYC B351 Developmental Psychopathology
An examination of research and theory addressing the origins, progression and consequences of maladaptive functioning in children, adolescents and families. Major forms of psychopathology, such as depression and disruptive behavior syndromes will be considered. An important focus of the course is on the identification of biological, social and psychological risk and protective factors for psychopathology and the implications of these factors for prevention and treatment efforts. The role of family-based risk and protective factors, such as marital conflict and parenting quality, will be emphasized. Prerequisite: PSYC 206 or 209. (staff)

PSYC B352 Advanced Topics in Developmental Psychology
This course will provide an in-depth exploration of the development of the concept of gender and the formation of gender stereotypes in children. We will examine the major theoretical positions relating to children's understanding of gender and the empirical data that supports those positions. The course will involve the critical exploration of popular press books on gender development, focusing on the broader issue of how psychological research gets translated for public consumption. In addition, the course contains a laboratory component, which will involve original research designed by the class for both children and adults. Prerequisite: PSYC 206 (Cassidy, Division III)

PSYC B353 Advanced Topics in Clinical Developmental Psychology
This course examines research and theory at the intersection of clinical and developmental psychology. Topics will include emotion and family relationships, stress and psychological or physical well-being and family research methods. Class will involve discussion of relevant theory and research as well as the design and execution of research projects. Open only to juniors and seniors majoring in psychology. (Schulz, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

PSYC B358 Political Psychology of Group Identification
This seminar will explore the common interests of psychologists and political scientists in the phenomena of group identification. The focus will be identification with ethnic and national groups, with special attention to the ways in which research on small-group dynamics can help us understand identification and conflict for these larger groups. The seminar will review major theories of group identity and examine several historical or current cases of successful and unsuccessful development of national identity. Prerequisite: PSYC 208 or two semesters of political science. (Ross; cross-listed as POLS B358) Not offered in 2006-07.

PSYC B364 Behavior Analytic Theory
Although behavior analysis is reputed to be a “tough minded” natural scientific approach to psychology, it is also rich in theory. Behavior analysis is as different in what is said and how it is said as in how research is conducted. Readings will be theoretical in nature from behavior analysis and other traditions that apply established principles to everyday concerns such as roommate disagreements as well as to why we are not acting to save the world. Prerequisite: PSYC 201. (Neuman, Division I)

PSYC B395 Psychopharmacology
A study of the role of drugs in understanding basic brain-behavior relations. Topics include the pharmacological basis of motivation and emotion; pharmacological models of psychopathology; the use of drugs in the treatment of psychiatric disorders such as anxiety, depression and psychosis; and the psychology and pharmacology of drug addiction. Prerequisite: PSYC 218. (Thomas) Not offered in 2006-07.

PSYC B396 Topics in Neural and Behavioral Science
(Greif; cross-listed as BIOL B396)

PSYC B398 Cognitive Issues in Personality and Social Psychology: Understanding Genocide
This seminar will focus on issues raised in Why Not Kill Them All? The Logic of Mass Political Murder and Finding Ways to Avoid It (Chirot and McCauley, 2006, Princeton Press). Three contentions will be examined. First, the psychology of genocide is normal psychology: genocide is found in every century and every continent. Second, the psychology of genocide appears in smaller episodes of violence, such as deadly ethnic riots and ethnic cleansing. Third, the imbalance of power that makes genocide possible is much more common than genocide; why is genocide relatively rare? Prerequisite: PSYC 208. (McCauley)

PSYC B401 Supervised Research in Neural and Behavioral Sciences
(Thomas)

PSYC B403 Supervised Research
Laboratory or field research on a wide variety of topics. Students should consult with faculty members to determine their topic and faculty supervisor, early in the semester prior to when they will begin. (staff)

RELIGION

Students may complete a major in Religion at Haverford College.

Faculty
J. David Dawson, Provost and Constance and Robert MacCrater Professor in Social Responsibility
Joshua Dubler, Visiting Assistant Professor
Anne M. McGuire, Associate Professor
Tracey Hucks, Associate Professor and Chair
Terrence Johnson, Visiting Assistant Professor
Kenneth Koltun-Fromm, Associate Professor (on leave 2006-07)
Naomi Koltun-Fromm, Associate Professor (on leave 2006-07)
Sarah Schwarz, Visiting Assistant Professor

The Department of Religion at Haverford views religion as a central aspect of human culture and social life. Religions propose interpretations of reality and shape very particular forms of life. In so doing, they make use of many aspects of human culture, including art, architecture, music, literature, science and philosophy — as well as countless forms of popular culture and daily behavior. Consequently, the fullest and most rewarding study of religions is interdisciplinary in character, drawing upon approaches and methods from disciplines such as anthropology, comparative literature and literary theory, gender theory, history, philosophy, psychology, political science and sociology.
A central goal of the department is to enable students to become critically informed, independent and creative interpreters of some of the religious movements, sacred texts, ideas and practices that have decisively shaped human experience. In their coursework, students develop skills in the critical analysis of the texts, images, beliefs and performances of various religions, including Judaism, Christianity, Islam and Buddhism. Students especially interested in Asian religions may work out a program of study in conjunction with the East Asian Studies department at Haverford and Bryn Mawr and with the Religion department at Swarthmore. Like other liberal arts majors, the religion major is meant to prepare students for a broad array of vocational possibilities. Religion majors typically find careers in law, public service (including both religious and secular organizations), medicine, business, ministry and education. Religion majors have also pursued advanced graduate degrees in anthropology, history, political science, biology, Near Eastern studies and religious studies.

For more information, see the department Web site at (http://www.haverford.edu/relg/index.html.)

Major Requirements

Eleven courses are required for the major in religion. The exact structure of the student's program must be determined in consultation with the major adviser, whom the student chooses from among the regular members of the department. All majors should seek, with their advisers, to construct a program that achieves breadth in the study of various religious traditions, as well as a concentration in one of the department's three areas.

The major program must satisfy the following requirements:

a. Six courses within one of the department's three areas of concentration:

   A. Religious Traditions in Cultural Context. The study of religious traditions and the textual, historical, sociological and cultural contexts in which they develop. Critical analysis of formative texts and issues that advance our notions of religious identities, origins and ideas.

   B. Religion, Literature and Representation. The study of religion in relation to literary expressions and other forms of representation, such as performance, music, film and the plastic arts.

   C. Religion, Ethics and Society. The exploration of larger social issues such as race, gender and identity as they relate to religion and religious traditions. Examines how moral principles, cultural values and ethical conduct help to shape human societies.

These six courses within the area of concentration must include the department seminar in the major's area of concentration: RELG 301 for Area A; RELG 303 for Area B; RELG 305 for Area C. Where appropriate and relevant to the major's program, up to three courses for the major may be drawn from outside the field of religion, subject to departmental approval.
b. Junior colloquium: An informal gathering of the junior majors once each semester.

d. At least four additional half-year courses drawn from among outside the major's area of concentration.

e. At least six of each major's 11 courses must be taken in the Haverford Religion Department. Students planning to study abroad should construct their programs in advance with the department.

f. In some rare cases, students may petition the department for exceptions to the major requirements. Such petitions must be presented to the department for approval in advance.

g. Final evaluation of the major program will consist of written work, including a thesis, and an oral examination completed in the context of the Senior Seminar, RELG 399b.

Requirements for Honors

Honors and high honors in religion are awarded on the basis of the quality of work in the major and in the Senior Thesis (399b).

RELG H101 Introduction to the Study of Religion [A,B,C]

An introduction to the study of religion from three perspectives: overviews of several religions with classroom discussion of primary sources; cross-cultural features common to many religions; theories of religion and approaches to its study and interpretation. Typically offered in alternate years. (staff) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H110 Sacred Texts and Religious Traditions [A]

An introduction to religion through the close reading of selected sacred texts of various religious traditions in their historical, literary, philosophical and religious contexts. (McGuire)

RELG H118 Hebrew Bible: Literary Text and Historical Context [A,B]

The Hebrew Bible, which is fundamental to both Judaism and Christianity, poses several challenges to modern readers. Who wrote it, when and why? What was its significance then and now? How does one study the Bible from an academic point of view? Using literary, historical, theological and archeological interpretive tools, this course will address these questions and introduce students to academic biblical studies. Typically offered in alternate years. (Schwarz)

RELG H121 Varieties of Judaism in the Ancient World [A,B]

From Abraham to Rabbi Judah the Prince, Judaism has been transformed from a local, ethnic religious cult to a broad-based, diverse religion. Many outside cultures and civilizations, from the ancient Persians to the Imperial Romans, influenced the Jews and Judaism through language, culture and political contacts. Absorbing and adapting these various and often opposing influences, the Israelite, and then Jewish community re-invented itself, often fragmenting into several versions at once. This course will study those changes and developments which brought about these radical transformations. Typically offered in alternate years. (Schwarz)
RELG H122 Introduction to the New Testament [A,B]
An introduction to the New Testament and early Christian literature. Special attention will be given to the Jewish origins of the Jesus movement, the development of traditions about Jesus in the earliest Christian communities, and the social contexts and functions of various texts. Readings will include non-canonical writings, in addition to the writings of the New Testament canon. (McGuire)

RELG H130 Material Religion in America [C]
An introduction to various forms of religious material practices in America. We will examine how persons and communities interact with material objects and media to explore and express religious identity. Topics may include religion and sports, dance and ritual, food and dress, and the visual arts. Typically offered in alternate years. (K. Koltun-Fromm) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H132 Varieties of African American Religious Experience [A]
This course will examine the history of religion in America as it spans several countries. Each week lectures, readings and discussions will explore the phenomenon of religion within American society. The goal is to introduce students to American religious diversity as well as its impact on the shaping of larger historical and social relationships within the united States. This study of American religion is not meant to be exhaustive and will cover select traditions each semester. Typically offered in alternate years. (Hucks)

RELG H201 Introduction to Buddhism (Glassman)

RELG H202 The End of the World as We Know It [A]
Why are people always predicting the coming endtime? This course will explore the genre of apocalypse, looking for common themes that characterize this form of literature. Our primary source readings will be drawn from the Bible and non-canonical documents from the early Jewish and Christian traditions. We will use an analytical perspective to explore the social functions of apocalyptic, and ask why this form has been so persistent and influential. (Schwarz)

RELG H203 The Hebrew Bible and Its Interpretations [A,B]
This course will critically study select Hebrew Biblical passages (in translation) as well as Jewish and Christian Biblical commentaries in order to better understand how Hebrew Biblical texts have been read, interpreted and explained by ancient and modern readers alike. Students will also learn to read the texts critically and begin to form their own understandings of them. Typically offered in alternate years. (N. Koltun-Fromm) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H204 Women and Judaism [C]
Women's roles in Judaism and Jewish life have been defined by the religious precepts and civil laws described in the Bible and interpreted by the rabbis in a patriarchal age. These interpretations have led to an institutionalized hierarchy within the religion, which has limited women's access to religious ritual and education. Nevertheless, women have carved out areas for themselves within the Jewish religious, social and political systems as well as fulfilled the roles prescribed to them. This course will study the women of Jewish history who have participated in and shaped Jewish religious, social and cultural life. (N. Koltun-Fromm) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H206 History and Literature of Early Christianity [A,B]
The history, literature and theology of Christianity from the end of the New Testament period to the time of Constantine. Typically offered in alternate years. (McGuire) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H216 Images of Jesus [A,B]
Critical examination of the varied representations of Jesus from the beginnings of Christianity through contemporary culture. The course will focus primarily on literary sources (canonical and non-canonical gospels; prayers; stories; poems; novels), but artistic, theological, academic and cinematic images of Jesus will also be considered. Typically offered in alternate years. (McGuire)

RELG H221 Women and Gender in Early Christianity [A,C]
An examination of the representations of women and gender in early Christian texts and their significance for contemporary Christianity. Topics include interpretations of Genesis 1-3, images of women and sexuality in early Christian literature, and the roles of women in various Christian communities. Prerequisite: Major declaration or at least one 200-level course and consent of instructor. Typically offered in alternate years. (McGuire) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H222 Gnosticism [A,B]
The phenomenon of Gnosticism examined through close reading of primary sources, including the recently discovered texts of Nag Hammadi. Topics include the relation of Gnosticism to Greek, Jewish and Christian thought; the variety of Gnostic schools and sects; gender imagery, mythology and other issues in the interpretation of Gnostic texts. Typically offered in alternate years. (McGuire)

RELG H231 Religious Themes in African American Literature [B]
This course will explore African American literary texts as a basis for religious inquiry. Throughout the course, we will examine African American novelists and literary scholars using their works as a way of understanding black religious traditions and engaging important themes in the study of religion. Authors discussed may include James Baldwin, Maryse Conde, Zora Neale Hurston, Ishmael Reed and others. (Hucks) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H240 History and Principles of Quakerism [A,C]
(Lapsansky)

RELG H242 Topics in African American Religious History [A]
This course will investigate various traditions of the black religious experience from slavery to the present. Religious traditions examined within the course may include slave religion, black Christianity, Gullah religion, Santeria and Islam. We will examine the relationship of these religious traditions to American social history as well as explore how they adapted over space and time. Typically offered in alternate years. (Hucks) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H245 Topics in American Religion [A]
This course will examine the influence of forms of Islam on the African American community throughout its history. Though the course will begin with the intra-African slave trade and the antebellum period, the bulk of the course will focus on 20th Century persons and events, particularly the Nation of Islam, its predecessors and successors. Offered occasionally. (Hucks)

RELG H256 Zen Thought, Zen Culture, Zen History
(Glassman) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H281 Modern Jewish Thought [C]
Jewish responses to modern philosophy and science that challenge traditional Jewish religious expression and thought. The course examines how Jewish thinkers engage modern debates on historical inquiry, biblical criticism, existentialism, ethics and feminism. Our goal will be to assess those debates, and determine how these thinkers construct and defend modern Jewish identity in the face of competing options. Readings may include Adler, Buber, Cohen, Heschel, Mendelssohn, Rosenzweig and Spinoza. (K. Koltun-Fromm) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H284 American Judaism [A]
An exploration of the cultural, social and religious dynamics of American Judaism. The course will focus on the representation of Jewish identity in American culture, and examine issues of Jewish material, gender and ritual practices in American history. We will study how Jews express identity through material objects, and how persons work with objects to produce religious meaning. (K. Koltun-Fromm) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H299 Theoretical Perspectives in the Study of Religion [A,B,C]
An introduction to the history of the study of "religion" in the modern West. Beginning with Kant’s distinction between natural and revealed religion we will follow the curious and contested history of second-order reflection upon religion as it has been carried out in theological, philosophical, psychological, anthropological and sociological spheres. Readings may include: Benjamin, Derrida, Douglas, Durkheim, Eliade, Foucault, Freud, Geertz, Haraway, Hegel, James, Kant, Marx, Nietzsche, Otto, Schleiermacher, Smith, Tylor and Weber. (staff) Not offered in 2006-07.

All religion department seminars may be repeated for credit with change of content.

RELG H301 Seminar A: Religion and Magic [A]
Magic or miracle? Prayer or spell? Science or superstition? By studying primary sources and modern scholarship, this course will explore the ways in which the boundaries defining and separating the categories of magic and religion have been constructed in Western culture. As this course is a concentration seminar, a central goal will be to develop skills in research and textual analysis, and to work critically with various interpretative approaches. Prerequisite: Major declaration or at least one 200-level course and consent of instructor. (Schwarz)
RELG H303 Seminar B: Evangelicalism, Anti-Slavery and Feminism in Uncle Tom's Cabin [B]
This seminar will explore the themes of 19th-century evangelicalism, chattel slavery, abolitionism and early feminism in the 1852 landmark text Uncle Tom's Cabin. Students will be exposed to primary and secondary literature spanning the 19th to the 21st centuries which document and examine the impact of this classic text on American religious and racial cultures. Pre-requisite: Major declaration or at least one 200-level course and consent of instructor. (Hucks)

RELG H305 Seminar C: Ethical Dimensions of Fieldwork [C]
This seminar will involve close readings of ethnographic studies that explore the area of religious culture. The course will engage themes such as the ethical dimensions of ethnographical fieldwork, race and gender in cultural context, author/subject interaction, religious and cultural analysis and interpretation. Authors discussed may include Karen McCarthy Brown, Clifford Geertz, Marcel Mauss, Robert Orsi, Louis Snow, Victor Turner, Traci West and the anthropological works of Zora Neale Hurston. Prerequisite: Major declaration or at least one 200-level course plus approval of instructor. (Hucks)

RELG H310 Religion and Gender in Modern Pre-Japanese Literature
(Glassman)

RELG H330 Seminar in the Religious History of African-American Women [C]
This seminar will examine the religious history of African American women in the United States. Using primary and secondary texts from the 19th to the 20th centuries, this course will explore the various religious traditions, denominations, sects and religious movements in which African American women have historically participated. The course will also analyze the ways in which specific social conditions such as slavery, migration, racial segregation and class and gender discrimination have historically influenced the religious lives of African American women. (Hucks) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H338 Seminar in American Civil Religion [A,C]
(staff) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H343 Seminar in Religions of Antiquity and Biblical Literature [A,B]
Advanced study of a specific topic in the field. The course may be repeated for credit with change of content. Prerequisite: Consent of instructor. (McGuire) Not offered in 2006-07.

RELG H399 Senior Seminar and Thesis
Research and writing of the senior thesis in connection with regular meetings with a thesis adviser from the department. Prerequisite: RELG 301, 303, or 305 and the approval of the Department of Religion. (Hucks, McGuire, Schwarz)

RELG H460 Teaching Assistant
(Schwarz)

RELG H480 Independent Study [A]
Conducted through individual tutorial as an independent reading and research project. (staff)
Romance Languages

Students may complete a major in Romance Languages.

Coordinators:
Grace M. Armstrong, E. M. Schenck 1907 Professor of French
Nicholas Patruno, Professor of Italian
María Cristina Quintero, Professor of Spanish

The Departments of French, Italian and Spanish cooperate in offering a major in Romance Languages that requires advanced work in at least two romance languages and literatures. Additional work in a third language and literature is suggested.

Major Requirements
The requirements for the major are a minimum of nine courses, including the Senior Conference or Senior Essay, described below, in the first language and literature (if Italian is chosen as the first language, only eight courses are required) and six courses in the second language and literature, including the Senior Conference in French. Students should consult with their advisers no later than their sophomore year in order to select courses in the various departments that complement each other.

The following sequence of courses is recommended when the various languages are chosen for primary and secondary concentration, respectively (see the departmental listings for course descriptions).

First Language and Literature
French
FREN 101-102 or 101-105; 103-102 or 103-105.; or 001-102 or 005-105.
Four literature courses at the 200 level.
FREN 212 or 260.
Two courses at the 300 level.

Italian
ITAL 101, 102.
ITAL 201 or 205.
ITAL 301.
ITAL 303 or 304.
Two other literature courses at the 200 or 300 level.

Spanish
SPAN 110 or 120.
SPAN 206.
Four courses at the 200 level.
Two courses at the 300 level.

Second Language and Literature
French
FREN 101-102 or 101-105; 103-102 or 103-105.
Two literature courses at the 200 level.
FREN 212 or 260.
One course at the 300 level.

Italian
ITAL 101, 102.
ITAL 201 or 205.
ITAL 301.
One other literature course at the 200 or 300 level.

Spanish
SPAN 110 or 120.
SPAN 206.
Two courses at the 200 level.
Two courses at the 300 level.
In addition to the coursework described above, when the first language and literature is Spanish, majors in Romance Languages must enroll in SPAN 398 (Senior Seminar).* When French is chosen as either the first or second language, students must take one semester of the Senior Conference in French in addition to the coursework described above. When Italian is chosen, students must either select an additional literature course in Italian at the 200 or 300 level or take ITAL 399, offered in consultation with the department. An oral examination (following the current model in the various departments) may be given in one or both of the two languages, according to the student's preference, and students follow the practice of their principal language as to written examination or thesis.

Interdepartmental courses at the 200 or 300 level are offered from time to time by the cooperating departments. These courses are conducted in English on such comparative Romance topics as epic, romanticism or literary vanguard movements of the 20th century. Students should be able to read texts in two of the languages in the original.

* In order to receive honors, students whose first language is Spanish are required to write a senior essay (SPAN 399).

 For students whose first language is French, honors are awarded on the basis of performance in Senior Conference or on a successfully completed thesis.

Russian

_Students may complete a major or minor in Russian._

Faculty

Elizabeth C. Allen, Professor and Chair
Sharon Bain, Lecturer
Dan E. Davidson, Professor (on leave semester II)
Linda G. Gerstein, Professor at Haverford College
Timothy C. Harte, Assistant Professor and Major Adviser
Vladimir Kontorovich, Professor at Haverford College
George S. Pahomov, Professor
Maria Shardakova, Lecturer

The Russian major is a multidisciplinary program designed to provide students with a broad-based understanding of Russian literature, thought and culture. The major places a strong emphasis on the development of functional proficiency in the Russian language. Language study is combined with a specific area of concentration to be selected from the fields of Russian literature, history, economics, language/linguistics or area studies.

Major Requirements

A total of 10 courses is required to complete the major: two in Russian language at the 200 level or above; four in the area of concentration, two at the 200 level and two at the 300 level or above (for the concentration in area studies, the four courses must be in four different fields); three in Russian fields outside the area of concentration; and either RUSS 398, Senior Essay, or RUSS 399, Senior Conference.

Majors are encouraged to pursue advanced language study in Russia in summer, semester or year-long academic programs. Majors may also take advantage of intensive immersion language courses offered during the summer by the Bryn Mawr Russian Language Institute. As part of the requirement for RUSS 398/399, all Russian majors take senior comprehensive examinations that cover the area of concentration and Russian language competence.

Honors
All Russian majors are considered for departmental honors at the end of their senior year. The awarding of honors is based on a student's overall academic record and all work done in the major.

Minor Requirements
Students wishing to minor in Russian must complete six units at the 100 level or above, two of which must be in the Russian language.

RUSS B001, B002 Elementary Russian
Study of basic grammar and syntax. Fundamental skills in speaking, reading, writing and oral comprehension are developed. Nine hours a week including conversation sections and language laboratory work. (Davidson, Harte)

RUSS B101, B102 Intermediate Russian
Continuing development of fundamental skills with emphasis on vocabulary expansion in speaking and writing. Readings in Russian classics and contemporary works. Six hours a week. (Bain)

RUSS B110 Soviet and East European Cinema of the 1960s: War, Politics and Gender Conflicts
This course examines Soviet and Eastern European “New Wave” cinema of the 1960s, which broke new ground in world cinema through its treatment of war, politics and aesthetics. Films from Czechoslovakia, Poland, the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia to be viewed and analyzed include Milos Foreman's Love of a Blonde, Dushn Makavejov's W. R. Mysteries of the Organism, Andrej Tarkovsky's Adrei Rublev and Andrzej Wajda's Ashes and Diamonds. Readings on introductory film theory, film history and the biographies of individual directors will be discussed. All films will be shown with subtitles; no knowledge of Russian or previous study of film required. (Harte, Division I or III)

RUSS B201, B202 Advanced Russian
Intensive practice in speaking and writing skills using a variety of modern texts and contemporary films and television. Emphasis on self-expression and a deeper understanding of grammar and syntax. Five hours a week. (Bain)

RUSS B210 The Golden Age of Russian Literature
Introduces seminal works that formed the foundation of modern Russian literature. Examining texts in a wide range of genres, students read influential fictional works that illuminate not only Russian character, history and society but also European culture in the early 19th century. Considers themes like the nature of freedom, the idea of irrationality, and the complexities of moral judgment. Particular attention is paid to “play” in various forms that Dostoevsky, Gogol, Lermontov, Pushkin, Tolstoy and Turgenev incorporated in their rapid creation of a modern literary tradition. All readings, lectures and discussions are conducted in English. (Allen, Division III)

RUSS B212 Russian Modernism: Early 20th-Century Russian Art and Literature (in translation): Russian Modernism
This course focuses on Russia’s modernist trends in the first three decades of the 20th century. Along with discussion of Russian modernist literature, significant coursework will be devoted to studying the development of Russian “avant-garde” painting (Kandinsky, Malevich, et. al.), ballet and film during this tumultuous, yet fruitful period. No knowledge of Russian is required. (Pahomov, Division III)

RUSS B221 The Serious Play of Pushkin and Gogol
This course explores major contributions to the modern Russian literary tradition by its two founding fathers, Aleksander Pushkin and Nikolai Gogol. Comparing short stories, plays, novels and letters written by these pioneering artists, the course addresses Pushkin’s and Gogol’s shared concerns about human freedom, individual will, social injustice and artistic autonomy, which each author expressed through his own distinctive filter of humor and playfulness. (Allen, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

RUSS B223 Russian and East European Folklore
This interdisciplinary course introduces students to major issues in Russian and East European folklore including epic tales, fairy tales, calendar and life-cycle rituals, and folk beliefs. The course also presents different theoretical approaches to the interpretation of folk texts as well as emphasizing the influence of folklore on literature, music and art. No knowledge of Russian is required. (Bain, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

RUSS B225 Dostoevsky: Daydreams and Nightmares

RUSS B235 The Social Dynamics of Russian
An examination of the social factors that influence the language of Russian conversational speech, including contemporary Russian media (films, television and the Internet). Basic social strategies that structure a conversation are studied, as well as the implications of gender and education on the form and style of discourse. Prerequisites: RUSS 201, 202, may be taken concurrently. (staff, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

RUSS B252 The Masterpieces of Russian and Soviet Cinema
This course explores the major trends and most significant works of Russian and Soviet cinema. Emphasis placed on the wildly disparate phases of Soviet and Russian cinema: Russia’s silent films; the innovations of the 1920s; Stalinist cinema; “thaw” films; and post-Soviet experimentation. All films shown with subtitles; no knowledge of Russian required. (Harte, Division I or III) Not offered in 2006-07.

RUSS B254 Russian Culture and Civilization
A history of Russian culture — its ideas, its value and belief systems — from the origins to the present that integrates the examination of works of literature, art and music. (Pahomov, Division I or III)

RUSS B261 The Russian Anti-Novel
A study of 19th- and 20th-century Russian novels focusing on their strategies of opposing or circumventing European literary conventions. Works by Bulgakov, Dostoevsky, Nabokov, Pushkin and Tolstoy, are compared to Jane Austen’s Pride and Prejudice and other exemplars of the Western novelistic tradition. All readings, lectures and discussions in English. (Allen, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

RUSS B271 Chekhov and the Making of Modernism
A study of the themes, structure and style of Chekhov’s prose and dramatic works and his influence on the literature, theater and film of the English-speaking world in which Chekhov is the most staged playwright after Shakespeare. All readings and lectures in English. (Pahomov, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

RUSS B277 Nabokov in Translation
A study of Vladimir Nabokov’s writings in various genres, focusing on his fiction and autobiographical works. The continuity between Nabokov’s Russian and English works is considered in the context of the Russian and Western literary traditions. All readings and lectures in English. (Harte, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B277)

RUSS B305, B306 Advanced Russian: Syntax, Style
This course focuses on stylistic variations in oral and written Russian. Examples are drawn from contemporary film, television, journalism, fiction and nonfiction. Emphasis is on expansion and refinement of speaking and writing skills. (Harte, Pahomov)

RUSS B310 Old Russian
This advanced undergraduate seminar introduces students to the language and literary activities of Kyivan Rus (11th-14th century). Students will gain a reading knowledge of Old Church Slavonic and Old Russian sufficient for close reading and analysis of such seminal texts as the earliest translations of the Gospels, the Primary Chronicle, Ilarion’s Sermon on Law and Grace, the legend of Boris and Gleb, and others. The political and cultural background of the period will be addressed. Conducted in Russian and English. (Davidson) Not offered in 2006-07.

RUSS B330 The Structure of Modern Russian I
This seminar introduces advanced undergraduates and graduate students to the linguistic structure of contemporary standard Russian. Topics to be discussed include theoretical and practical issues in the description of Russian phonology, phonetics and intonation; verbal and nominal morphology; and accentuation.
Conducted primarily in Russian. Followed by RUSS 331. (Davidson)

RUSS B331 The Structure of Modern Russian II
This seminar introduces advanced undergraduate students to the study of pragmatic norms in contemporary spoken and written Russian. Based on the understanding of language as a series of actions or communicative functions, the course will explore topics in speech act theory, politeness theory and relevance theory. Discussions will also address practical issues for the acquisition of Russian, such as cross-cultural pragmatics, interlanguage pragmatics and the teaching of foreign languages. (staff)

RUSS B335 Intercultural Pragmatics in Second Language Acquisition
This course examines language use in cross-cultural contexts and the acquisition of conversational Russian. Students will compare the linguistic structure of speech acts in Russian and English, such as requests, commands, apologies, complaints and threats, and will explore communication and social relationships between learners of Russian and native speakers. Other topics include the pragmatics of gender, body language and etiquette in Russian. (Bain, Division III)

RUSS B342 Russian Culture Today
This seminar focuses on current cultural trends in Russia, with special emphasis on the interplay between various artistic media and post-Soviet Russia's rapidly developing society. Students will be introduced to contemporary Russian literature, painting, television, film and music while considering such topics as Russia's ambiguous attitude toward the West, the rise of violence in Russian society and Russia's evaluation of the past. Prerequisite: RUSS 102 or the equivalent. (Harte, Division I or III) Not offered in 2006-07.

RUSS B343 Russian Avant-Garde Culture
This seminar focuses on the radical, “avant-garde” transformations that occurred in Russian culture at the beginning of the 20th century. Particular emphasis will be placed on how the interaction of artists in a variety of media resulted in one of Russian culture’s most innovative periods. Seminar discussion will cover the painting, poetry, prose, music, ballet and film produced in Russia between 1890 and 1932. Topics include Russia’s reevaluation of its cultural heritage through neo-primitive art; the Russian avant-garde’s mystical, Eastern underpinnings; the primacy of music for avant-garde artists; and the emergence of abstract, dynamic art. (Harte) Not offered in 2006-07.

RUSS B347 Ethnography: Qualitative Methods in Second Language Acquisition
This course introduces students to qualitative research design and its application in the study of second language acquisition. Considering ethnography as a research paradigm, discussions will critique existing second language acquisition research that is conducted using qualitative methods. This class will also give students an opportunity to apply their theoretical understanding of qualitative methods to the design of their own research project. (Bain) Not offered in 2006-07.

RUSS B360 Identity and Second Language Acquisition
This course introduces the concept of linguistic identity in relation to other identity facets (e.g., gender, ethnicity, class and culture) and explores ways in which acquisition of a second language affects self-conception and self-representation. Employs critical discourse analysis to discuss how second language learners construct identities through socialization into new speech communities. No knowledge of Russian is required. (Shardakova)

RUSS B365 Russian and Soviet Film Culture
This seminar explores the cultural and theoretical trends that have shaped Russian and Soviet cinema from the silent era to the present day. The focus will be on Russia's films and film theory, with discussion of the aesthetic, ideological and historical issues underscoring Russia’s cinematic culture. No previous study of cinema required, although RUSS 201 or the equivalent is required. (Harte, Division III)

RUSS B370 The Acquisition of Russian as a Second Language
This seminar introduces advanced undergraduate students to current theoretical and practical issues of Russian second-language acquisition. Topics to be discussed include formal and informal learning, measurement of competencies, standards and assessment issues, and cultural aspects of second-language acquisition. Conducted primarily in Russian. (Davidson) Not offered in 2006-07.

RUSS B380 Seminar in Russian Literature: Chekhov and Bunin
An examination of a focused topic in Russian literature such as a particular author, genre, theme or decade. Introduces students to close reading and detailed critical analysis of Russian literature in the original language. Readings in Russian. Some discussions and lectures in Russian. Prerequisites: RUSS 201 and one 200-level Russian literature course. (Pahomov, Division III)

RUSS B390/391 Russian for Pre-Professionals
Russian for Pre-Professionals, the capstone of the overall language course sequence at Bryn Mawr, is a year-long course designed to develop linguistic and cultural proficiency in Russian to the "advanced level," preparing students to carry out advanced academic study or research in Russian in a professional field. (Bain, Pahomov, Division III)

RUSS B398 Senior Essay
Independent research project designed and conducted under the supervision of a departmental faculty member. May be undertaken in either fall or spring semester of senior year. (staff) Not offered in 2006-07.

RUSS B399 Senior Conference
Exploration of an interdisciplinary topic in Russian culture. Topic varies from year to year. Requirements may include short papers, oral presentations and examinations. (Allen)

RUSS B403 Supervised Work
(Pahomov)

Haverford College currently offers the following courses of interest to Russian majors:

RUSS H211 The Soviet System and Its Demise (Kontorovich), offered fall 2006
RUSS H244 Russia from 1800-1917 (Gerstein), offered spring 2007
Sociology

Students may complete a major or minor in Sociology.

Faculty

David Karen, Professor and Chair
Mary J. Osirim, Professor (on leave 2006-07)
Judith Porter, Katharine E. McBride Professor
Carla Shedd, Andrew W. Mellon Foundation Postdoctoral Fellow
Ayumi Takenaka, Assistant Professor (on leave 2006-07)
Robert E. Washington, Professor
Nathan Wright, Assistant Professor

The major in Sociology provides a general understanding of the structure and functioning of modern society, its major institutions, groups and values, and the interrelations of these with personality and culture. Students examine contemporary social issues and social problems, and the sources of stability, conflict and change in both modern and developing societies. The department offers rigorous preparation in social theory and problem-driven training in quantitative and qualitative methodologies.

Major Requirements

Requirements for the major are SOCL 102, 103, 265, 302, Senior Seminar (398, 399), four additional courses in sociology (at least one of which must be at the 300 level) and two courses in sociology or an allied subject. Allied courses are chosen from a list provided by the department. Please note: the department is in the midst of a transition to a new set of requirements for the major/minor. As we implement the new plan, all students will be individually counseled to ensure that they can complete the relevant requirements. Please see the chair if you have questions. Further information will be available in Fall 2006 at http://www.brynmawr.edu/sociology/major.shtml.

The Department of Sociology offers concentrations in gender and society, Asian American studies and African American studies. In pursuing these concentrations, majors should inquire about the possibility of coursework at Haverford and Swarthmore Colleges and the University of Pennsylvania.

Concentrations Within the Sociology Major

Gender and Society

Three courses are required for this concentration — at least two of these courses must be in sociology. The remaining course can be in sociology or an allied social science field. Students who pursue this concentration are required to take at least one of the core courses in this area offered by the department: The Study of Gender in Society (SOCL 201) or Women in Contemporary Society: The Southern Hemisphere (SOCL 225). The department encourages students in this concentration to take courses that focus on the study of gender in both northern and southern societies. In addition to taking courses in this field at Bryn Mawr, students may also take courses towards this concentration in their study abroad programs or at Haverford, Swarthmore and the University of Pennsylvania. Any course taken outside of the Bryn Mawr Department of Sociology must be approved by the department for concentration credit. Majors are urged to consult Mary Osirim about this concentration.

Asian American Studies
Students pursuing this concentration are required to take Asian American Communities (SOCL 249), in addition to two other courses. One of them must be either Challenges and Dilemmas of Diversity (SOCL 215) or Immigrant Experiences (SOCL 246). The other course can be in anthropology, East Asian studies or any other relevant field, and must be approved by the department for concentration credit. Please contact Ayumi Takenaka for further information.

African American Studies
Three courses are required for this concentration — at least two of these courses must be in sociology. The remaining course can be in either sociology or an allied field. Students who pursue this concentration are required to take the core course offered by the Bryn Mawr Department of Sociology: Black America In Sociological Perspective (SOCL 229). Students are encouraged to take courses on Black America listed under the Bryn Mawr and Haverford Africana Programs. Courses taken outside the Bryn Mawr Department of Sociology must be approved by the department for concentration credit. Majors interested in this concentration should consult Robert Washington for further information.

Honors
Honors in sociology are available to those students who have a grade point average in the major of 3.5 or higher and who produce a paper in a departmental course during senior year that is judged outstanding by the department. Independent research is possible during the senior year for students with a grade point average in the major of 3.3 or higher.

Minor Requirements
Requirements for the minor are SOCL 102, 265, 302 and three additional courses within the department (but please see note above).

Students may choose electives from courses offered at Haverford College. Bryn Mawr majors should consult their department about major credit for courses taken at other institutions.

SOCL B102 Society, Culture and the Individual
Analysis of the basic sociological methods, perspectives and concepts used in the study of society, with emphasis on culture, social structure, personality, their component parts and their interrelationship in both traditional and industrial societies. The sources of social tension, order and change are addressed through study of socialization and personality development, mental illness, delinquency and modernization. (Porter, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B103 U.S. Social Structure
Analysis of the structure and dynamics of modern U.S. society. Theoretical and empirical study of statuses and roles, contemporary class relations, the distribution of political power, and racial, ethnic and gender relations in the United States; and stratification in education systems, complex organizations, the labor market and the modern family. (Osirim, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B121 Exploring Society by the Numbers
Using a wide range of quantitative sources, the course will explore sociological concepts and develop a sociological perspective on a range of issues — family, politics, education, health, crime, etc. — that can be explored through quantitative data analysis. International, U.S. and Philadelphia databases will be used. (Karen, Division I and Quantitative Skills; cross-listed as CITY B121)

SOCL B160 The United States and International Social Problems
Examining a broad range of social problems (for example, crime, drugs, racism, pollution, etc.), focus is on: how social problems come to be identified as such; how research is conducted and possible policy implications; whether there are categories of problems that may have a common origin; the persistence of some problems; and how problems are structured by the dominant social forces of our society. Race, class and gender will be considered. (Wright, Division I)

SOCL B175 Environment and Society: History, Place and Problems
(Stroud, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B175)

SOCL B201 The Study of Gender in Society
The definition of male and female social roles and sociological approaches to the study of gender in the United States, with attention to gender in the economy and work place, the historical origins of the American family, and analysis of class and ethnic differences in gender roles. Of particular interest in this course is the comparative exploration of the experiences of women of color in the United States. (Osirim, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B205 Social Inequality
Introduction to the major sociological theories of gender, racial-ethnic and class inequality with emphasis on the relationships among these forms of stratification in the contemporary United States, including the role of the upper class(es), inequality between and within families, in the work place and in the educational system. Global stratification is examined as well. (Karen, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B205) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B207 The Nature of Prejudice: Race and Ethnic Relations
Cultural, structural and personality sources of racial and ethnic prejudice; basic theories of prejudice, attitude change and the response of minority communities illustrated by analysis of racism and anti-Semitism in cross-cultural perspective. Topics include comparisons of black-white relations in the United States and South Africa; anti-Semitism in the United States and the Soviet Union; the effect of law in racial-ethnic attitudes; sources of change in intergroup relations; and the effect of prejudice on personality, family and educational processes. (MacDonald-Dennis, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B212 Sociology of Poverty
Analysis of the causes and effects of poverty in the United States. Topics include trends in poverty and the relationship between poverty, the economy, the political system, the family and educational institutions. The culture-of-poverty approach and government programs for the poor, including current programs, are analyzed. (Porter, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B215 Challenges and Dilemmas of Diversity
This course will explore the sociological theories of racial/ethnic prejudice, discrimination and conflict; the historical development of racial/ethnic groups in the United States; and current patterns and problems of racial/ethnic relations and the social policies being proposed to resolve those problems. (Takenaka, Washington, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B217 The Family in Social Context
A consideration of the family as a social institution in the United States, looking at how societal and cultural characteristics and dynamics influence families; how the family reinforces or changes the society in which it is located; and how the family operates as a social organization. Included is an analysis of family roles and social interaction within the family. Major problems related to contemporary families are addressed, such as domestic violence and divorce. Cross-cultural and subcultural variations in the family are considered. (Osirim, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B225 Women in Society
A study of the contemporary experiences of women of color in the developing world. The household, workplace, community and the nation-state, and the positions of women in the private and public spheres are compared cross-culturally. Topics include feminism, identity politics and self-esteem; and tensions and transitions encountered as nations embark upon development. (Osirim, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B227 Sports in Society
Using a sociological, historical and comparative approach, this course examines such issues as the role of the mass media in the transformation of sports; the roles played in sports by race, ethnicity, class and gender; sports as a means of social mobility; sports and socialization; the political economy of sports; and sports and the educational system. (Karen, Washington)

SOCL B229 Black America in Sociological Perspective
This course provides sociological perspectives on various issues affecting black America: the legacy of slavery; the formation of urban ghettos; the struggle for civil rights; the continuing significance of discrimination; the problems of crime and criminal justice; educational underperformance; entrepreneurial and business activities; the social roles of black intellectuals, athletes, entertainers and creative artists. (Washington, Division I)

SOCL B237 Crime, Law and Society
This course critically examines the interplay between crime, law and the administration of justice in the United States and how these are shaped by larger societal factors. Provides a theoretical and empirical overview of the criminal justice system, emphasizing such issues as: the function and purpose of crime control; the roles of the actors/subjects in the criminal justice system; crime and violence as cultural and political issues; racial disparities; and juvenile justice. (Shedd, Division I)

SOCL B242 Urban Field Research Methods
This Praxis course intends to provide students with hands-on research practice in field methods. In collaboration with the instructor and the Praxis Office, students will choose an organization or other group activity in which they will conduct participant observation for several weeks. Through this practice, students will learn how to conduct field-based primary research and analyze sociological issues. (Takenaka, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B242 and CITY B242) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B246 Immigrant Experiences
Introduction to international migration. The course will examine the causes and consequences of immigration by looking at various immigrant groups in the United States in comparison with Western Europe, Japan and other parts of the world. How is immigration induced and perpetuated? How are the types of migration changing (labor migration, refugee flows, return migration, transnationalism)? How do immigrants adapt differently across societies? We will explore scholarly texts, films and novels to examine what it means to be an immigrant, what generational and cultural conflicts immigrants experience, and how they identify with the new country and the old country. (Takenaka, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B258) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B249 Asian American Communities
This course is an introduction to the study of Asian American communities that provides comparative analysis of major social issues confronting Asian Americans. Encompassing the varied experiences of Asian Americans and Asians in the Americas, the course examines a broad range of topics — community, migration, race and ethnicity, and identities — as well as what it means to be Asian American and what that teaches us about American society. (Takenaka, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B249 and CITY B249) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B252 Sociology of Popular Music
This course explores the production, distribution and consumption of popular music, paying particular attention to the interrelationships among artists, fans, the music industry and the societal context. Themes include the tension between mainstream commercial success and artistic independence, popular music and politics, and music consumption and identity, gender and sexuality. (Wright, División I)

SOCL B257 Marginals and Outsiders: The Sociology of Deviance
An examination of unconventional and criminal behavior from the standpoint of different theoretical perspectives on deviance (e.g., social disorganization, symbolic interaction, structural functionalism, Marxism) with particular emphasis on the labeling and social construction perspectives; and the role of conflicts and social movements in changing the normative boundaries of society. Topics will include alcoholism, drug addiction, homicide, homosexuality, mental illness, prostitution, robbery and white-collar crime. (Washington, Division I)

SOCL B258 Sociology of Education
Major sociological theories of the relationships between education and society, focusing on the effects of education on inequality in the United States and the historical development of primary, secondary and post-secondary education in the United States. Other topics include education and social selection, testing and tracking, and micro- and macro-explanations of differences in educational outcomes. This is a Praxis I course; placements are in local schools. (Karen, Division I)

SOCL B262 Who Believes What and Why: the Sociology of Public Opinion
This course explores public opinion: what it is, how it is measured, how it is shaped and how it changes over time. Specific attention is given to the role of elites, the mass media and religion in shaping public opinion. Examples include racial/ethnic civil rights, abortion, gay/lesbian/transgendered sexuality and inequalities. (Wright, Division I; cross-listed as POLS B262)

SOCL B265 Research Design and Statistical Analysis
An introduction to the conduct of empirical, especially quantitative, social science inquiry. In consultation with the instructor, students may select research problems to which they apply the research procedures and statistical techniques introduced during the course. Using SPSS, a statistical computer package, students learn techniques such as crosstabular analysis, correlation and multiple regression. (Wright, Division I and Quantitative Skills)

SOCL B266 Schools in American Cities
(Cohen, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B266 and EDUC B266)

SOCL B267 The Development of the Modern Japanese Nation
An introduction to the main social dimensions central to an understanding of contemporary Japanese society and nationhood in comparison to other societies. The course also aims to provide students with training in comparative analysis in sociology. (Takenaka, Division I; cross-listed as ANTH B267 and EAST B267) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B272 Race and Place in Urban America
Amidst increasing racial and ethnic diversity in the United States there is growing concern that racial and ethnic minorities in American cities will face greater inequalities with respect to housing, resources, educational/employment opportunities, etc. This course will analyze the relationship between race/ethnicity and spatial inequality, emphasizing the institutions, processes and mechanisms that shape the lives of urban dwellers and surveys major political approaches and empirical investigations of racial and ethnic stratification in several urban cities, notably Chicago, Los Angeles and Philadelphia. (Shedd, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B272)

SOCL B275 Introduction to Survey Research Methods
Introduces the student to the many facets of the survey data collection process from start to finish. Topics include proposal development, instrument design, question design, measurement, sampling techniques, survey pre-testing, survey collection media, interviewing, index and scale construction, data analysis, interpretation and report writing. The course also examines the effects of demographic and socio-economic factors in contemporary survey data collection. (Consiglio, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B302 Social Theory
Analysis of classical and modern theorists selected because of their continuing influence on sociological thought. Among the theoretical conceptions examined are: alienation, bureaucracy, culture, deviance, modernization, power, religion and the sacred, social change, social class, social conflict, social psychology of self and status. Theorists include: Durkheim, Firestone, Gramsci, Marx, Mead, Mills and Weber. (Washington, Division I)

SOCL B309 Sociology of Religion
An analysis of the relationship between religion and society, emphasizing the connection between religious systems and secular culture, social structure, social change, secular values and personality systems in cross-cultural perspective. The theories of Durkheim, Freud, Marx and Weber, among others, are applied to analysis of the effect of religion on economic modernization, political nationalism, and social change and stability, and the effect of social class, secular culture and personality patterns on religion. (Wright)

SOCL B310 Sociology of AIDS
An analysis of major sociological issues related to AIDS, including the social construction of the disease, social epidemiology, the psychosocial experience of illness, public opinion and the media, and the health care system. The implications of political and scientific controversies concerning AIDS will be analyzed, as will the impact of AIDS on the populations most affected in both the United States and Third World countries. Must be taken concurrently with SOCL 315. (Porter, Division I)

SOCL B315 Sociology of AIDS Internship
An internship open only to those who are concurrently enrolled in SOCL 310. (Porter, Division I)

SOCL B330 Comparative Economic Sociology: Societies of the North and South
A comparative study of the production, distribution and consumption of resources in Western and developing societies from a sociological perspective, including analysis of precapitalist economic formations and of the modern world system. Topics include the international division of labor, entrepreneurship and the role of the modern corporation. Evidence drawn from Brazil, Britain, Jamaica, Nigeria and the United States. (Osirim; cross-listed as CITY B330) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B346 Advanced Topics in Environment and Society
(Stroud, Division I; cross-listed as CITY B345)

SOCL B350 Movements for Social Justice in the United States
Throughout human history, powerless groups of people have organized social movements to improve their lives and societies. Powerful groups and institutions have resisted these efforts in order to maintain their own privilege. Some periods of history have been more likely than others to spawn protest movements. In American history, we think of the 1930s and 1960s in this way. Will there soon be another period of significant protest? What factors seem most likely to lead to social movements? What determines their success/failure? We will examine 20th-century social movements in the United States to answer these questions. Includes a film series. (Karen, Division I) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B355 Sociology of Deviance
An examination of unconventional and criminal behavior from the standpoint of different theoretical perspectives on deviance (e.g., social disorganization, symbolic interaction, structural functionalism, Marxism) with particular emphasis on the labeling and social construction perspectives; and the role of conflicts and social movements in changing the normative boundaries of society. Topics will include alcoholism, drug addiction, homicide, homosexuality, mental illness, prostitution, robbery and white-collar crime. (Washington) Not offered in 2006-07.

SOCL B375 Women, Work and Family
(Golden, Division I; cross-listed as POLS B375)

SOCL B398 Senior Conference:
Sociology of Culture
Seminar on theoretical issues in the sociology of culture; required of all senior sociology majors. Open to Bryn Mawr senior sociology majors only. (Washington, Division I)

SOCL B399 Senior Seminar
This seminar is required of and limited to Bryn Mawr seniors majoring in sociology. (Karen)

SOCL B403 Supervised Work
Students have the opportunity to do individual research projects under the supervision of a faculty member. (staff)

The major in Spanish offers a program of study in the language, literature and culture of Spain, Latin America and U.S. Latino communities. The program is designed to develop linguistic competence and critical skills, as well as a profound appreciation of the culture and civilization of the Hispanic world.

The language courses provide solid preparation and practice in spoken and written Spanish, including a thorough review of grammar and vocabulary, supplemented with cultural readings and activities. SPAN 120 prepares students for advanced work in literature and cultural studies while improving competence in the language. The introductory literature courses treat a selection of the outstanding works of Spanish and Spanish-American, and U.S. Latino literature in various periods and genres. SPAN 206 is devoted to advanced language training and affords practice in written Spanish. SPAN 240 considers the political, social and cultural history of the Hispanic and Hispanic-American peoples. Advanced literature courses deal intensively with individual authors, topics or periods of special significance.

Students in all courses are encouraged to make use of the Language Learning Center and to supplement their course work with study in Spain or Spanish America either in the summer or during their junior year.

All students who have taken Spanish at other institutions and plan to enroll in Spanish courses at Bryn Mawr must take a placement examination. The exam is administered by the Spanish department during first-year student orientation for the incoming class or on the day before classes begin for returning students.

The Department of Spanish also cooperates with the Departments of French and Italian in the Romance Languages major (see page 273).

Major Requirements

Requirements for the Spanish major are SPAN 120, SPAN 206, four 200-level courses, three 300-level courses and SPAN 398 (Senior Seminar). Students whose pre-college training includes advanced work in literature may, with the permission of the department, be exempted from taking SPAN 120. SPAN 399 (Senior Essay) is optional. This major program prepares students appropriately for graduate study in Spanish.
Please note: the department offers some courses taught in English. In order to receive major and minor credit, students must do appropriate assignments in Spanish. No more than two courses taught in English may be applied toward a major, and only one toward a minor.

Independent research (SPAN 403) is offered to students recommended by the department. The work consists of independent reading, conferences and a long paper.

Honors
Departmental honors are awarded on the basis of a minimum grade point average of 3.7 in the major, the recommendation of the department and a senior essay (SPAN 399).

Minor Requirements
Requirements for a minor in Spanish are six courses in Spanish beyond Intermediate Spanish, at least one of which must be at the 300 level.

Concentration in Hispanic and Hispanic-American Studies
The Department of Spanish participates with other departments in offering a concentration in Hispanic and Hispanic-American Studies (see page 194).

Teacher Certification
The department also participates in a teacher-certification program. For more information see page 130 for a description of the Education Program.

SPAN B001, B002 Elementary Spanish
Grammar, composition, conversation, listening comprehension; readings from Spain, Spanish America and the Hispanic community in the United States. This is a year-long course. One section of this course is intensive and meets nine hours a week. (Arribas, Breña, Koelle)

SPAN B101, B102 Intermediate Spanish
Intensive grammar reviews, exercises in composition and conversation, selected readings from modern Spanish. This is a year-long course. Prerequisite: SPAN 002 or placement. (Breña, Bustamante, Koelle, Quintero, Song)

SPAN B105 Intensive Intermediate Spanish
A thorough review of grammar with intensive oral practice, frequent writing assignments, readings and oral presentations. Prerequisite: Intensive Elementary Spanish or the recommendation of the department. (Arribas)

SPAN B107 Spanish Conversation for Non-majors
Intensive practice in conversational Spanish. This course seeks to enhance speaking proficiency through the development of vocabulary, pronunciation skills and correct grammatical usage. Students participate in daily practice of speaking on wide variety of topics, as well as give formal presentations. This course will not count towards the major or minor. Prerequisite: SPAN 102 or 105. (Song)

SPAN B110 Estudios culturales de España e Hispanoamérica
An introduction to the history and cultures of the Spanish-speaking world in a global context: art, folklore, geography, literature, sociopolitical issues and multicultural perspectives. This course does not count toward the major, but may be counted for the minor. Prerequisite: SPAN 102 or 105, or placement. (Song, Division III)

SPAN B120 Introducción al análisis literario
Readings from Spanish and Spanish-American works of various periods and genres (drama, poetry, short stories). Main focus on developing analytical skills with attention to improvement of grammar. Prerequisite: SPAN 102 or 105, or placement. (Arribas, Division III)

The prerequisite for 200-level courses is SPAN 120, placement or permission of instructor.

SPAN B203 Tópicos en la literatura latinoamericana.
The topics for this course vary. For the Fall 2006, the course will be a survey course on 20th-century Mexican literature. Authors will include: Carlos Fuentes, Elena Garro, Octavio Paz, Elena Poniatowska and Juan Rulfo. Topics will include the literature of the Mexican Revolution, the avant-garde and the performance art of figures such as Guillermo Gómez-Peña and Jesusa Rodriguez. (Bustamante, Division III)

SPAN B206 Composición (nivel superior)
A course designed to develop a student's written expression in Spanish. This course includes a systematic study of the structure of modern Spanish and a variety of frequent written assignments. (staff)

SPAN B208 Drama y sociedad en España
A study of the rich dramatic tradition of Spain from the Golden Age (16th and 17th centuries) to the 20th century within specific cultural and social contexts. The course considers a variety of plays as manifestations of specific sociopolitical issues and problems. Topics include theater as a site for fashioning a national identity; the dramatization of gender conflicts; and plays as vehicles of protest in repressive circumstances. (Quintero, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

SPAN B211 Borges y sus lectores
Primary emphasis on Borges and his poetics of reading; other writers are considered to illustrate the semiotics of texts, society and traditions. (Sacerio-Garí, Division III; cross-listed as COML B212) Not offered in 2006-07.

SPAN B215 “Memoria Negra”: La literatura afro-hispánica
A study of the major works of African and Afro-Hispanic literatures written in Spanish with comparative examples from the literatures of the “Black Atlantic,” including Lusophone African literature. The course considers how racially-marked aesthetic expression (Criollismo, Negritude, the Harlem Renaissance, etc.) fashioned literary Modernism and the ensuing “Black Atlantic” polemic. Representative writers may include Martin Bernal, Lydia Cabrera, Franz Fanon, Edouard Glissant, Nicolás Guíllen, Donoto M’game, Nancy Morejón, Fernando Ortiz, Manuel Rui and Laudino Viera. (Lima, Division III; cross-listed as COML B215) Not offered in 2006-07.
SPAN B223 Género y modernidad en la narrativa del siglo XIX
A reading of 19th-Century Spanish narrative by both men and women writers, to assess how they come together in configuring new ideas of female identity and its social domains, as the country is facing new challenges in its quest for modernity. (Song, Division III)

SPAN B225 La poesía hispanoamericana
Study of poetic language from the Avantgarde movements to the present. Special attention to key figures. (Sacerio-Garl, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

SPAN B226 Cine y sociedad en la España contemporánea
This course studies Spanish culture and society through its cinema since the Civil War and Franco’s dictatorship up to the present. It focuses on Spanish film both as a vehicle for ideological propaganda and as a space for political opposition. It also examines the multiple social changes undergone in Spain as the dictatorship collapsed and democracy was re instituted. Class discussion will address issues surrounding the representation of women, homosexuality and ethnic minorities. (Arribas, Division III; cross-listed as COML B226) Not offered in 2006-07.

SPAN B227 Genealogía de la literatura latina de los Estados Unidos
This course examines the emancipatory and sometimes collusive appropriation of “American” literature by Latina/os. The course begins a genealogical survey of Latino writing and cultural production from the 19th century to the present in order to contextualize the eventual rise of Latino ethnic particularisms from the 1960s. We will analyze how Latina/os, often living inside two languages and cultures, inflect the national landscape by erasing both literal and linguistic “American” borders in a country made up largely of immigrants. We will analyze how the mass media constructs “insiders” and “outsiders” by delimiting access to cultural capital with demands for assimilation. (Lima, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

SPAN B230 La poética del deseo en España e Hispanoamérica
A study of the evolution of the love lyric in Spain beginning with the Renaissance and Baroque periods until the present day. Topics include the origins of amatory lyric in Italy, the representation of women as objects of desire and pretexts for writing: the self-fashioning and subjectivity of the lyric voice; theories of imitation; parody; and the feminine appropriation of the lyric voice. Authors include: Sor Juana Inés de la Cruz, Luis de Góngora, Gabriela Mistral, Pablo Neruda, Francisco Quevedo, Alfonso Sorni and Garcilaso de la Vega. (staff; cross-listed as COML B230)

SPAN B231 El cuento y novela corta en España
Traces the development of the novella and short story in Spain, from its origins in the Middle Ages to our time. The writers will include Pardo Bazán, Cervantes, Clarín, Don Juan Manuel, Zayas and a number of contemporary writers. Our approach will include formal and thematic considerations, and attention will be given to social and historical contexts. Prerequisite: SPAN 120 or placement. (Quintero, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.
SPAN B240 Historia y cultura en América Latina
A brief survey of the political, social and cultural history of Spain and Spanish America. Topics include Spanish nation/state/empire, indigenous cultures, polemics about the "Indians" in the new world, Spanish-American independence, current social and economic issues, Latin America's multiculturalism and Latinos in the United States. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. (Sacerio-Gari, Division III)

SPAN B260 Ariel/Calibán y el discurso americano
A study of the transformations of Ariel/Calibán as images of Latin American culture. Prerequisite: SPAN 110 or 120, or placement. (Sacerio-Gari, Division III; cross-listed as COML B260)

SPAN B265 Escritoras españolas: entre tradición y renovación
Fiction by Spanish women in the 20th century. Breaking the traditional female stereotypes during and after Franco's dictatorship, the authors explore sociopolitical and cultural issues through their creative writing. Topics of discussion include gender marginality, feminist literary theory and the portrayal and role of women in modern society. (Song, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

SPAN B270 Literatura y delincuencia: explorando la novela picaresca
A study of the origins, development and transformation of the picaresque genre from its origins in 16th- and 17th-century Spain through the 21st century. Using texts from Spain and Latin America as well as England, Germany and the United States, we will explore topics such as the construction of the (fictional) self, the poetics and politics of criminality, transgression in gender and class, and the feminine (and feminist) variations of the picaresque. (Quintero, Division III; cross-listed as COML B271) Not offered in 2006-07.

The prerequisite for 300-level courses is one 200-level course in Spanish or permission of instructor.

SPAN B307 Cervantes
A study of themes, structure and style of Cervantes' masterpiece Don Quijote and its impact on world literature. In addition to a close reading of the text and a consideration of narrative theory, the course examines the impact of Don Quijote on the visual arts, music, film and popular culture. (Quintero, Division III)

SPAN B308 Spanish Drama of the Golden Age
A study of the dramatic theory and practice of 16th- and 17th-century Spain. Topics include the treatment of honor, historical self-fashioning and the politics of the corrales and palace theater. (Quintero, Division III; cross-listed as COML B308) Not offered in 2006-07.

SPAN B309 La mujer en la literatura española del Siglo de Oro
A study of the depiction of women in the fiction, drama and poetry of 16th- and 17th-century Spain. Topics include the construction of gender; the idealization and codification of women's bodies; the politics of feminine enclosure (convent, home, brothel, palace); and the performance of honor. The first half of the course will deal with representations of women by male authors (Calderón, Cervantes, Lope, Quevedo) and the second will be dedicated to women writers such as Teresa de Ávila, Ana Caro, Juana Inés de la Cruz and María de Zayas. (Quintero, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

SPAN B310 La condición post mortem: pos/modernidad periférica en la narrativa e historia actual mexicana
A study of the figuration of “death” in Mexican literature and culture as a critique of modernity and as one of Mexico’s principle symbols of cultural identity. Analysis of the counterrevolutionary movements of the 1960s, and the rise of the post-mortem aesthetic as a response to the globalization of Mexican cultural identity. (Lima, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

SPAN B311 Crimen y detectives en la narrativa hispánica contemporánea
An analysis of the rise of the hardboiled genre in contemporary Hispanic narrative and its contrast to classic detective fiction, as a context for understanding contemporary Spanish and Latin American culture. Discussion of pertinent theoretical implications and the social and political factors that contributed to the genre’s evolution and popularity. (Song, Division III; cross-listed as COML B312)

SPAN B318 Adaptaciones literarias en el cine español
Film adaptations of literary works have been popular since the early years of cinema in Spain. This course examines the relationship between films and literature, focusing on the theory and practice of film adaptation. Attention will be paid to the political and cultural context in which these texts are being published and made into films. Prerequisite: A 200-level course in Spanish, SPAN 208. (Song, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

SPAN B321 Del surrealismo al realismo mágico
Examines artistic texts that trace the development and relationships of surrealism, lo real maravilloso americano and magic realism. Manifestos, literary and cinematic works by Spanish and Latin American authors will be emphasized. Prerequisite: a 200-level Spanish course. (Sacerio-Gari, Division III)

SPAN B329 Brown Affect: Narrating Latina and Latino Lives
This course studies the construction of Latino lives in and through autobiographies and autobiographical fiction in the context of the civil rights movement and the rise of Latino nationalism. The course will focus on the Latino subversion of genre from the bildungsroman to its more recent (post)modernist traditions to its more culturally specific grounding in the Latin American crónica. We will study how “feeling brown” has made Latino life-writing a political and literary act of self-creation. Course is taught in English. Students seeking major credit in Spanish must do appropriate assignments in Spanish. Prerequisite: SPAN 220, ENGL 250 or equivalent. (Lima, Division III; cross-listed as ENGL B340) Not offered in 2006-07.

SPAN B350 El cuento hispanoamericano
Special attention to the double, the fantastic and the sociopolitical thematics of short fiction in Spanish America. Authors include Borges, Carpenter, Cortázar, Quiroga, Rulfo and Valenzuela. (Sacerio-Gari, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.
SPAN B351 Tradición y revolución: Cuba y su literatura
An examination of Cuba, its history and its literature with emphasis on the analysis of the changing cultural policies since 1959. Major topics include slavery and resistance; Cuba's struggles for freedom; the literature and film of the Revolution; and literature in exile. (Sacerio-Gari, Division III) Not offered in 2006-07.

SPAN B398 Senior Seminar
The study of special topics, critical theory and approaches with primary emphasis on Hispanic literatures. Topics will be prepared jointly with the students. (Sacerio-Gari)

SPAN B399 Senior Essay
Available to students whose proposals are approved by the department. (staff)

SPAN B403 Supervised Work
Independent reading, conferences and a long paper; offered to senior students recommended by the department. (staff)

Bryn Mawr College does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national or ethnic origin, sexual orientation, age or disability in the administration of its educational policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic and other College-administered programs, or in its employment practices.

In conformity with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, it is also the policy of Bryn Mawr College not to discriminate on the basis of sex in its educational programs, activities or employment practices. The admission of only women in the Undergraduate College is in conformity with a provision of the Act. Inquiries regarding compliance with this legislation and other policies regarding nondiscrimination may be directed to the Equal Opportunity Officer, who administers the College’s procedures, at 610-526-5275.
A Bryn Mawr woman is distinguished by a rare combination of personal characteristics:

~ an intense intellectual commitment

~ a self-directed and purposeful vision of her life

~ a desire to make a meaningful contribution to the world.
