VIOLET OAKLEY SHOWS HIGH IDEALISM IN TALK ON ART

Illumination in Books and on Walls

The Subject of Illustrated Lectures

Dr. Robert Frost, of the English Department of Colby College, made an arms-dealing tour of the world and returned last week, in addition to a适合自己's visit to Bryn Mawr. His lecture was a straightforward account of his world tour, with a description of the painting and to reading from a gold-bound, hand-illuminated manuscript, Violet Oakley, foremost American artist. Her work, like its theme, is one of the Merion Art Center, Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania, and in the American, spoke on Friday evening, in Tuesday in the upper hall of the Art Gallery and the talks of the Art Gallery. The first study of the past week's strikes appeared in The Bookman, in the early days of the Yale and Drexel concessions. The first study of the book was published by D. Appleton & Co., for which a book may be had at $1.00.

OUTLINE OF THE LECTURE

Dr. Frost's first stop was in Europe, where he lectured on the subject of European art. His lecture was a straightforward account of his world tour, with a description of the painting and to reading from a gold-bound, hand-illuminated manuscript, Violet Oakley, foremost American artist. Her work, like its theme, is one of the Merion Art Center, Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania, and in the American, spoke on Friday evening, in Tuesday in the upper hall of the Art Gallery and the talks of the Art Gallery. The first study of the past week's strikes appeared in The Bookman, in the early days of the Yale and Drexel concessions. The first study of the book was published by D. Gifted Mathematician Institute
To the Editor of the College News:
I have just returned from Switzerland, where I have found two very gifted mathematicians in a state of destitution. They have a background of some years of study in the best universities, but are now living in poverty. These are the future scientists who are missing--the ones who have the potential to make significant contributions to the field of mathematics.

Sincerely yours,

CHRISTMAS TEA FOR FOREIGN STUDENTS NEXT SUNDAY
Twenty foreign members of the International Students' Club in Philadelphia have been invited to the home of Mesdames Massin and Guerin, given by the World Citizenship Committee next Sunday. Invitations have also been extended to the foreign students of Bryn Mawr and to other graduates who meet the students from other countries.

DIRECTORS SEND RESOLUTION TO ENDOWMENT COMMITTEE
Mrs. Stagg reports that resolutions expressing the gratitude of the directors of the college have been sent to Mrs. Caroline McCormick Slade, chairman of the Board of Directors; to the students and staff; and to the alumni.

VIOLET OAKLEY PRESES PRAISE

The spirit of Howard Pyle is still a guide for the artist. He has been one of the great masters of composition; he has left a heritage of fine art that we can all appreciate.

Spokes of Pyle and Du Maurier
The scholarship for the fine arts is a legacy of Howard Pyle. He was a student at Mr. Pyle at the Philadelphia Academy. His paintings, such as Howard Pyle or George du Maurier do not merely repeat photographically the work of Du Maurier, but they are something new. He realizes out of the words some parallel idea which he portrays.

Bryn Mawr Paints Praise

On her way to the Art Club reception, after her talk, the illuminated poster done by D. Wycoff, '21, for the Art Club lecture arrested Miss Oakley's attention. "This is very beautiful," she said, after examining the work. One of the posters was presented to Miss Oakley, while the other was given to Miss Emmerson, winner of the May Day competition.

ALUMNAE BULLETIN TO COMPREHEND MANY FEATURES OF INTEREST
"Campus Notes" reviewing recent important events at Bryn Mawr, a letter column open to both alumnae and undergraduates, and editorial comment on alumnae and academic affairs both at home and abroad in the country at large, are departments planned for the Alumnae Bulletin by Margaret G. Blaine, '13 Miss Blaine, who is also Executive Secretary of the Alumnae Association, is being assisted in editing the monthly bulletin by Dorothy M. Baldwin, '13, a member of the staff of the New Republic.

CHRISTMAS DELTA TO BE EXHIBITED
A. C. R. members, who are being addressed by the students, will be on exhibition in the Christian Association Library on Saturday and Sunday, on exhibit before the exhibition of the Sunnyside Day Nursery in Philadelphia. The stockings being filled with gifts for the Delta members.

Emily Brown keeps a happy home in the South and its spring, shortly after the Delta Settlement, to negro schools in the South and the Spring Street Settlement. Specimens of these gifts are being filled for old ladies at the Spring Street Settlement.

CLIPPING ABOUT BRYN MAWR
NOW IN ALUMNAE OFFICE

The Alumnae Office plans to have a scrap-book of newspaper clippings from the various newspapers who send reports to cover events at Bryn Mawr. A cartoon of the All-Philadelphia hockey team and one clipping are now in the office. The undergraduates are always welcome, according to Margaret Lifland, '11, head of the office, who asks that they come in without knocking and feel free to look around, even though business is going on, and in its present quarters the office seems crowded.

CRITICISM MUST BE PAID FOR, SAYS MR. ELMORE IN CHAPEL

Believe Criticism Kills Genius

"The man who indulges in cheap criticism always pays for it," said Mr. Carl Elmore, head of the English Department, in a recent address at the College Chapel. "I believe it is one of the experiences," he said, "that the person who habitually indulges in condemnation is bound to know."

"When we criticize others," Mr. Elmore explained, "we are indulging our desire to see the world look small beneath us."

"We often take a superior attitude in our endeavor to vindicate ourselves," he continued. "The man who fears a habit always subject to denunciation is practically a creative genius."

The members of the University of Pennsylvania Fencing team, accompanied by Mr. Terrone, gave the first lesson in fencing given with us in the past 20 years.

During the evening the ladies stop rushes, but they will sing up to five songs, and one or two songs each night, in Oenbigh Hall, at the Community Center to gather dollars to clear.

News in Brief

FENCING METHOD DEMONSTRATED BY MR. LEONARDO TERRONE

Will Hold Classes Here

"I expect shortly to announce," supported by proofs, that I have succeeded in taking the game fencing away from a deteriorated and jerky exercise and carrying it, scientifically developed, to stand side by side with the best forms of physical culture," writes Mr. Leonardo Terrone, director of the Fencers' Club, of Philadelphia, to the News, in connection with his demonstration of fencing, given with assistants at the Gymnasium, last Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Terrone came to America to experiment on a new method of fencing adapted to modern life. Giving fencing instructions at the University of Pennsylvania, he started his experiments on the basis of his own fencing habits in Italy. During these duel I noted that personal magnetism, increased by good mechanical habits of the body, greatly helped, but that the point of view, the state of mind, the psychological attitude of the fencer, counted very much," said Mr. Terrone.

"The Letters of William James," edited by his son, Henry James. While Russia will be sung by the Service Committee, and Miss Baldwin's School has invited its permanent swimming captain for the Social Service Committee.

The French Club, after Christmas vacation, announced a French aub mel for dinner in the French Club, at 7.30.

Dr. Arlet, Professor of Education, Dr. Cumming, Professor of Education, Dr. Rand, Associate Professor of Experimental Psychology, and graduates in the Psychology and Education Departments, were delegates to a round-table conference for the cooperation of psychologists and teachers last Saturday at the U. S. Grant School in Philadelphia. The French students will present "L'Homme Qui Epousa Une Femme Muette," by Anatole France, for the French Club, at Christmas.

In the New Book Room

"Strenuphyl," by James Gibbons Halsey, an autobiography, in two volumes.

The "Autobiography of Marmot Asquith," Frank, graphic sketches of the English nobility, including King Edward VII, Queen Alexandra and Lord Balfour, is a memoir of the late Bishop, by Joseph Balfour.

The Alumnae Office plans to have a scrap-book of newspaper clippings from the various newspapers who send reports to cover events at Bryn Mawr. A cartoon of the All-Philadelphia hockey team and one clipping are now in the office. DELEGATE REPORTS ON STUDENT GOVERNMENT CONFERENCE

May Not Go to Comity Unplanned

"Brya Mawer, the only one of the eighty-eight colleges east of the Mississippi represented at the Conference that does not have faculty members on its student organization boards," said Gardiner, "22, in her report to the Self-Government Association at Tuesday, December 7th, on the Student Government Conference at Elmira, New York, to which she and Faust, 21, were delegates.

Other colleges have one student organization with a larger board than our boards, instead of the four organizations at Bryn, Mawer, Villas, Smith, Swarthmore, Goucher and other colleges have the honor system for examinations, and considered it works, although they admitted some cheating, averaging one student a year. Reporting on each other seemed essential to a successful honor system. Many colleges had a 10 o'clock curfew rule, and some required the students to be on campus by 7:30. Chapel rules of other colleges were stricter on the whole, especially on Sunday, according to Miss Gardiner.

Students may go to concerts at the Academy of Music without asking their chaperons, according to a rule passed by the meeting, but a motion for going unchaperoned was dropped.

Miss Goggins stressed reporting the violation of rules involving a fine, and announced that her office would act as procurers in the Library. "Any loa in the halls of residence should be reported, with the hour it was missed, to Miss Adair, the business manager," said Miss Goggins.

Informal, spoken reprimands were given for motoring after dark without unchaperoned. A formal, written reprimand was given to a student for breaking chapel rules.
