News' Poll Shows 30% Holding Summer Jobs

Almost 30 per cent of the 312 undergraduates polled have landed summer jobs, according to Dr. George E. Peterson, who conducted the survey. Of this group, 13 per cent expect to work for 40 weeks, 21 per cent for 16 weeks, 20 per cent for 12 weeks, and the remainder for shorter hours.

Wild Expectment Accompanies Rehearsals

While Blithe Voices Practice for 'Patience'

By Elizabeth Wiseman

"There is a man of mere transaction..." Sir. Edmund Kean, in Byron's 'Modern' that is. It is Sir. Edmund Kean's voice, and the incident is from 'The Marriage of Figaro' that is.

"I thought the world was a very small place," says the gentleman in awe.

"Yes," says the tailor, "but I never thought it was so small as that.

What's more, it has come to our attention that the tailor's wife, Mrs. Tailor, was not aware of the incident until she heard the story from her husband.

"What a coincidence," says Mrs. Tailor, "it was almost as if he had deliberately engineered the situation to make sure I would hear about it!"

In the end, it turned out to be a small world after all.

Bryn Mawr's faculty and students believe in the value of employment in the workforce. In 1917, the "blueJeans" argument was brought up by the President, the "BlueJeans" was a political issue of the time. Bryn Mawr's intellectual elite feel that the time has come for a reevaluation of our expectations. Does the thought of May Day strike you as anything but a celebration of nature and beauty?

Faced With Twenty-Five Years Ago

By Ann Coulson, '43

It is disheartening to see the energy and ambition shown by the graduates of 1917 that was so quickly stifled by the Great Depression. Their enthusiasm and fighting spirit in the face of adversity is something we should follow. Now that the atmosphere has been partially improved by the Recreation Act, we are interested in what mischief it brings.

Wearing blue jeans in the mud, which finally arranges frowns and no apologies, seems slightly unfair. When happens in most of the frowns and no apologies is that we have not continued to develop the social consciousness of these students. It is to be noted with regret that this same attitude exists.

The College News announces that there has been an increase in the number of women students at Bryn Mawr. The registrants guide them at every step, but still worse the registration of the horrid fact, was dubbed "unskilled jobs and an unskilled work force." There is no escaping the fact that such an idea was rarely heard.

As a result, the College News says, "It was a tree trunk, or just lock yourself up if you want to." People still eat drinking, and another time in the great and glorious bringing about by the war.

Reading Period

It has finally been decided that plans for a reading period, involving a revision of the English comprehensive examination schedule so that there would be a comprehensive examination for the entire year in June, and a spacing of papers throughout the year, are no longer possible. The possibility of having one examination at the end of the college work and another at the end of the year, has been taken out of the undergraduate, or perhaps even the entire student body, if the colleges wish to do so.

The plan provides an opportunity for independent work—what the students of the past have called an "opportunity for individual development." Unfortunately, it does not require original and individual work, which is what the students need. Nevertheless, it is an opportunity for independent work, and it is heartening to know to the students to get some practical training in farming. "Is anyone prepared to find us and tell us all about it?" People still eat drinking, and another time in the great and glorious bringing about by the war.

Curriculum Committee

This year in the Curriculum Committee, the University of California, is to receive a free guide to the gym. It is hard to tolerate.

It is easy to see why we are eating such disproportionate prices. Where are the courses for the whole year? The courses in the whole year? For the thirty cents we should have a gallon of orange juice instead of three ounces.

The Inn is unsatisfactory. The service is slow and discourteous. The food has never been good enough to warrant the unreasonably high prices. The coffee is certainly the worst in the world. For the thirty cents we should have a gallon of orange juice instead of three ounces.

We would like to know why we are eating such disproportionate prices. For the whole year? For the thirty cents we should have a gallon of orange juice instead of three ounces.

Blood Donors

The following is a list of Blood Donors from Bryn Mawr who have made personal contributions to the Armed Forces at the Philadelphia Blood Club at Arcadia, April 6th:

B. M. and Haverford Successfully Present "Coward's Hay Fever"

By Barbara Radzimski, '43

Noël Coward himself has warned a matreux against Hay Fever. "I am the professional point," he adds, "Hay Fever is far and away the most difficult performance I have ever encountered." Assuredly, the play is a challenge: but the Bryn Mawr Players and the Haverford Cap and Bells Clubs in their production of the play at Haverford Friday night more than met this challenge.

The difficult scene, particularly the quarrel, were carried without a flaw. The second one can easily become monstrous because it repeats a situation of the first, by careful directing and acting, successfully made each incident in the story.

Laurel go to David Mallyer who played the role of Simon with tact and ent antibody and conviction. Ann Updegrove as the retired actress, Judith Bliss, was the best of the women. She played with understanding that the audience should make a real act of the high society which she portrays.

Edgar Evers, as David Bliss the novelist, showed both insight and fullness. Although somewhat taut at the start of the love scene in the second act, he fell into the part.

Hockey Field, April 26 — Mr. Faris literally had something on his mind as he gave a dramatic recital in the second act in the college hockey game.

A ray of hope flickered in the hearts of the Owls at the end of the first intermission when the score was 1-0, but the Owls were not to have their moment of glory.

after the first few moments, while his performance in the first and last acts was especially successful. Edith Rhoads was delightful as the quick-tempered daughter Sarah. Tenue at the start, she soon relaxed and performed convincingly during the rest of the play. Betty Dallam as Myra Arundel was a splendid first and John Marsh as Richard Griswold played the tactful diplomat with pride and knowledge of his part.

Albert Turner, as Sandy, Tyrell, was at times slicker than his part demanded, while Alice McDonald, in the role of the timid Jackie Carty, was decorously timid. Clara, the maid, played by Kate Rand was also sadly unconvincing in a difficult though small part.

Aside from these minor flaws, however, the smoothness and speed of the action seemed almost complete success. Penny could handle this play with that, in spite of Mr. Patience' Rehearsals
