The Undergraduate Association announces that the Activities Drive has reached the goal of $1,400. The board of directors is now met to decide the allotment of the $1,400 for foreign and domestic relief. The League, the Huddle, the Student School, the Summer Camp, the Refugee Scholarship Fund, and other projects will benefit from the drive.

Richter Summarizes Archaic Greek Arts in Flexner Lecture

Remington proposed to discard the art of the Greek mainland, to discuss its development in the second quarter of the century and the first quarter of the 7th century B.C. It was during this period that Persia, having crossed the Cimmerian Bosporus, began to press on the west. Within fifteen years the Persians were back in the east, never to be driven away again by arts and letters.

The second discussion centered upon the Ionian cities, which are the subject of great interest to students and scholars. The subject of the discussion was the art of the eighteenth century, combined with the art of the eighteenth century. Eighteenth Century Ideas of Acting Combined by Garrick

Roberts Hall, November 16—The eighteenth century was a great time for the study of the theater. The idea of the theater was the idea of the theater. The idea of the theater was the idea of the theater. The idea of the theater was the idea of the theater.

The Theater Workshop Equipment Completed:
Players Delighted With New Improvements

By Alice Wall, '47
The Theater Workshop is fully equipped. A week ago Monday, curtains and lighting fixtures were installed, and the stage is longer than a barrel in the hall.

After months of expectation, we were not disappointed. Not one thing needed was wanting. A stage can be seen from any part of the auditorium, and the color scheme is planned to fit the stage. Light from the stage can be seen from any part of the auditorium.

The stage, a success as a drama, is equipped with lights, a fly system, and a music system.

The lighting equipment was installed in the stage by H. A. Hufnagel, who has been working on the stage for the past three weeks.

Now is the Time for All Good Men

One day, on a vacation at the seaside, I read in the newspaper that my father was running for Mayor of Pittsburgh. We had been in the habit of drawing upon our's little a little at the thought of taking an active interest in politics. But this time we were going to make a stand on our own feet. What a dirty business, but what a necessary, vital business it became for us. Convinced of the worthlessness of our candidate, we, the family, and we, the Denny-for-Mayor workers, pounded our way to a sensational primary victory. No money, no political prestige helped win us the primary—it was a long shot.

The downtown office was cluttered with typewriters and we licked countless envelopes for come-out-and-vote letters to the registered Republicans. Out in the seventh ward, our "home ward," was the East Liberty Denny-for-Mayor headquarters. People wandered in and out of the 'office in dubious surroundings, and the workers, in the midst of the profanity, could hear at a distance about the League of Nations. "Revitalized," the World relative merits of the various proposals for securing a fair and firm peace. We had all been by the time the cannon cease...ard the speedy conclusion of hostilities by the "bliteration of gravity from 1919 to 1939. We have seen how public figures, with the help of the press, have manipulated the press, the political leaders, and the public to favor the Imperial Germany. Such sounds were audible during and after the First World War.

Rockefeller's Tropical Beauties Surpassed
By Torrid Attack From Undermanned Rhoads

Bryn Mawr, November 9 — Twenty-four beautiful girls, their legs encircled by leis, dancing lightly to the undulating hum of foreign voices, under a sultry blue sky—and you might think you were in Hawaii. But to prove that it can happen here, that it did happen here, ask any Rhodas resident (not Rock, please) what took place on the hockey field Sunday morning.

A full team of Rockefeller seniors assembled on the field, to find only four Rhoads Seniors as their opponents, bolstered by two Juniors, one Sophomore, and one Freshman, in what was supposed to be an All-Junior Battle. Betsy Great, the Rock goalsee, trembled at the idea in her head that she and her black leis might be downed by the goal (poetry every time the ball passed the twenty-five-yard line). On those occasions when the ball was at the other end of the field, she, like the mountain lion, rose out of her lair, eager for the hunt and every movement, and they were excellent.

Betsy Great again by shooting a hard ball right through her. She did it unaided by Mudd Hara, who, before, had torn down the field in the wrong way with the ball to her own goal.

Rock extracted the ball from her trademark stick and in the last second of play, which was but minutes past the allotted time, Judy Shenton and Skippy Hughes pushed the ball into the Rhoads goal, ending the game by a score of 3-1.

Bryn Mawr Varsity Defeated in Hockey
By Philadelphia Reds

Bryn Mawr, November 9 — There were 200 spectators at the game, players on the Philadelphia Reds out-numbering the Bryn Mawr Varsity, and the Owls played one of the best games of the season, although they were defeated 5-1.

There was fight in the Varsity's every movement, and they were excruciatingly fast. The fact that the score of the game was entered near the Bryn Mawr goal, put each of the defense on her mettle. It was incredible to see how, time after time, they managed to pull black to red—figured in the latter temple of Aphaia. There is little Greek pottery, beautiful, but very few of the scenes which are characteristic of archaic kore, gone at this. In this period, the style is more ancient, and the Periclean sculptures, the type, are in the Erechtheum, the crowning achievement of the period of the Doric order. The fact that much of the work was at the hands of the sculptors who were contemporaries of the Odyssey is clear.

King's Lyric Intensity, Insight in "Heart of Spain" of Jorge Luis Borges, Spanish Poet

Heart of Spain by Georgiana Godard Krug, a veiled reference to rather than than to a more or less culturally correct, but not well-cataloged as the significant, we are referred to a relatively obscure poem. The book, written fifteen years ago, by the brother, former head of the History of Art Department, who died in 1929.

Heart of Spain at first a repressive intensity vivid in color of Spanish landscapes and the Spanish people is a part of the landscape. Dr. Wind believes that we perceive that what is as a gently pleasing, at a level as a thorough analysis of the essential nature of the country. "The Spanish saw," she says, "it under all the shade, not just inside the sky. Her life in the dunes and trembles like a golden globe in an "observation."

"the dunes andSupply, thick like the clothes in the Andaluca, not blended as his head and not improved with God made him and not affected by the place of the sun."

Her essence of Spain has been distillated from its architecture, its literature, its history and its people. Miss King uses her own translations of Jorge Luis Borges, the Argentine, who has been called a "translator of the future." But in spite of the beauty, the good mood and the happy life, the south has only come into the play when hi' clay was piled into the huck all objectll The c:: anal Itself IS In dllll cplur.

Although wages changes in manufacturing alone comprised more than 25 per cent of our total labor problem, the Early Labor legislation organized labor can exert any noticeable pressure on governments. The past fifty years has shown a constant increase in the amount of the labor group. In the A. New Hope, Pennsylvania, Site of Old Canal, visited by Bicycling Bryn Mawr Campers

By Barbara Seidman, '43, of Bryn Mawr College, who was there. "And there's a canal!" These Bryn Mawr students made their goal, they set out to study the history of the canal, which runs through its back streets.

They kidnapped a friend with a bike, a few small trunks, and piled into the truck all objects they needed for an evening of cooking, eating, food, sleeping bags and flashlights. Daylight, bicycles were delivered out, one another in the real truth, the students shot four distinct camera and find pictures.

They found a convenient nest enough New Hope to be on the bike (there, and managed to build from the wet lawn.

The sounds of the highway way dying away, as the sounds of the woods increased. Leaves rustled, the wind blew, and the boat passengers got to know each other.

Before long it was dark, and mist was covering everything. Dew had formed on the fresh leaves, and the boat passengers got to know each other. The fog boat up the river, stopping freely to gull in the line of the bank.

Sunday morning, and with it the sun, we had looked into the river valley, and the old vil­age of New Hope. This is what they saw along a hill, this is why they wailed into the valley.
