Wright Outlines Motives of War, Urges Federalism

Professor of International Relations Opens War Assemblies

Goodhart, March 1.—We can only have a practically organized world politically through continuous anta of the idea of federalism," stated Dr. Quincy Wright, stressing "the inadequacy of man's political organization of the world" as a cause of war. Dr. Wright advocated a system of federalism with "the maximum of independence and autonomy among separate units to maintain peace and moderate freedom of trade." Dr. Wright, professor of international relations at the University of Chicago, opened the series of war assemblies held here with his discussion of some aspects of the cause of war, with specific reference to the present war. War, Dr. Wright asserted, arises not from a "single germ," but from "a veritable cancer," extending through all branches of human activity, and even better sense of satire during the whole evening." The general theme of the show was best pressed by Dr. Harben's statement that "man is a creature from curiosity to butterfly." Current campus life provided the faculty with the theme of the Winter House's Annual and the May Day dance, the DUSO, the Swimming Meet, and Badges Daily Featured.

Nominates Junior Scribner, Brunn, Hedge, and Davis as Head of Athletic Association

Miss Taylor to Give Address on Fascism in Coming Assembly

Fascism: Three Ideologies will be the subject of an address by Mrs. Lily row, head of the Latin Department and Dean of the Graduate School, on March 10, at 12:30, in the Common Room. Miss Taylor will discuss the origin and development of fascist tendencies in Germany, Italy and Japan, explaining the essential similarities and differences in these philosophies, which depend to a large extent on the social and political situation of each country.

Miss Taylor served with the Red Cross in Italy and the Balkans during the reconstruction period after the World War, and later studied in Germany, for some time. She was non-committal on the question of whether the present world crisis is of the same type or not, but it is likely that the major can be changed somewhat. These include Hitler's Mein Kampf, "On the New Germany," and "The Art of War," a pamphlet by Mussolini, and Tsar Hend.

Lucia Hedge

In Sophomore year, Lucia was class representative for the Athletic Association. This year she is vice-president of the Association, having been elected president during the spring of last year. In the absence of the President, Barbara Smith was also on the All-American Board as representative of the Browns Unit and is a representative of the All-American Board, as well as the president of the league.

Elections

Lucia Hedge, as President, has been elected to the Board of the League. The Board is elected for two years and consists of three members of the League. Each student is elected every Monday. The Chairman of the Board.

Evarts, Iseman Retire to Less Hectic Life After Most Outstanding Careers on 'News'

Evarts, who recently announced her retirement, is a former editor of the 'College News' and a long-time member of the Bryn Mawr community. Her contributions to the institution have been significant and enduring.

Iseman, on the other hand, is a distinguished figure in the field of theater and has been a long-time member of the Bryn Mawr community. Her impact on the institution has been profound and lasting.

The retirement of these two individuals marks a significant milestone in the history of Bryn Mawr College. Their accomplishments and contributions will be sorely missed, but their legacies will continue to inspire and guide future generations of students and staff.

Council of Leaders Of Six Organizations Plan Administration

A plan for an undergraduate council is being proposed by the officials of the six leading undergraduate organizations, Self-Government Association, Undergraduate Association, League, Athletic Association, and the College News. The plan for a council provides a more efficient and economical system as a solution to the problem.

The plan will consist of a leader of the six council members who will sit behind the chairman of the president of Undergraduate. It will plan all the functions and activities for the college conferences. Dues for Self-Government Association, League, and Allen will all come from the appropriation of the college, while the League will continue the Activities Drive. The appointment of committees will be made by the Council of Leaders.

The Alliance has found it necessary to make changes in the administration. The large board will consist of the president, who is nominated after the vote of the college, secretary-treasurer, and the six council members appointed by the preceeding board. The college council is now made up of six members of the League, the Athletic Association, and the Self-Government Association.

The planning of new courses or the adjustment of a current one to a class in modern times is a problem that has been brought up before the college.

We decided then to find out what the faculty, specifically the department heads, and the students, especially of the League, the Freshmen, and the Sophomores in the Bryn Mawr Play Center, Labor problems are worked out in the Industrial Group and the Hudson Shoal Group.

Such planning as that which has been suggested is the work of the League and the Administrative Council. The planning of current events is a problem that has been brought up before the college.

Dr. Evan Cites Need Of Nutrition Method As Economic Factor

Specially contributed by Ruth Alice Davis
Delton Hall, February 24—The growing necessity for world-wide reorganization of National Public Health Organizations in the post-war period was emphasized by Dr. Karl Evan in his lecture on Nutrition and Public Health. Dr. Evan, who was the Surgeon General of Public Health in Norway, until the German occupation, discussed not only the importance of nutrition in the war, but also its role as a vital economic and social factor in peacetime.

The Gulf between the actual amount of nutritional knowledge and the means to which it has been applied can be spanned in the development of new methods.

Nutrition Problem
The chief problem is the nutrition of working adults. They require generally healthful foods and are especially in need of vitamins in their daily menus. The Norwegians in general used no animal proteins in their diets, large offices, and other institutional, and a cold noon meal to be much better than a hot noon meal, as the latter causes both a slowing of the heart rate and an increase in accidents.

In order to achieve this type of reorganization, team work is essential in most cases and cooperation between the nutritionists, economists, employers, employees, and housewives. If the housewife is to be educated in the preparation and use of good foods, nutritionists will have to speak in a language that food experts are not in such unintelligible scientific terms as vitamins, calories, etc.

Care of Mothers
Numerous "Instruction stations" for the care of nursing and expectant mothers have been set up. Four nutrient diets during this most important period have been evaluated, not only for the individual mother and child, but for society as a whole. Many counties, have volunteer organizations active in this field, but thus far Russia alone has actually made it a public responsibility.

The Norwegian food problem is by far the most fully developed field as far as a scientifically planned food supply is concerned. School meals were introduced in Norway, as much as an educational measure as a corrective supplement to the children's usually inadequate personal nutrition. Typical foods served are milk, whole wheat bread with butter, whey cheese, pasta, raw carrots, and apples. Through the children, the house wives were scientifically educated to better habits, thus a dual end achieved by this one type of public health endeavor.

Great festivities will take place in the Gym Saturday night for the purpose of reproducing the Meteorology, a branch of the C. S. Army which is studying at Harvard. Sweeping skirts will break the newly-varnished floor for the first time since the gym had to face lifted. It is highly probable that the colorful background will have a psychological effect on the aspirants. It was absolutely impossible that after the dance the men in uniform would leave the ballroom without an appointment for the nextAvailable.

Modern French Art

French modernists were specially featured in a recent exhibition of reproductions. The Art Department formerly used these prints which are of German manufacture, in their courses. This year, after being mounted and finished, they were lent to the Art Club for display.

The selections made by the club for the exhibition include Van Gogh's "Raising of Lazarus," Picasso's "Woman in White," "Dream Composition" by Kandinsky, Gauguin's "Arearea," Degas' "Dance" and Cassatt's "Landscapes from Hillaire.
