Students of Bryn Mawr College

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Follow this and additional works at: http://repository.brynmawr.edu/bmc_collegenews

Custom Citation

This paper is posted at Scholarship, Research, and Creative Work at Bryn Mawr College. http://repository.brynmawr.edu/bmc_collegenews/771

For more information, please contact repository@brynmawr.edu.
Modern Pieces Perform Well By Mr. Alwyne
Proficiency Shown In Dance Etudes
by Helen Anderton ‘49

Goodhart, February 4, Mr. Horace Alwyne, head of the music department of the Bryn Mawr College, presented a recital the night for the Bryn Mawr College Fund. The program was divided into two parts, the first consisting of a Bach Chorale Prelude, the Charivari Embar-a, and selections by Brahms. The second part featured more modern music by Rachmaninoff, in Seaver, and Dohnanyi.

Choreography of the recital was created from Alwyne’s rendition of the Bach Chorale Prelude; the episodic structure was perfect, the landing of lack, and the notes did not need to be carefully timed for the interpretation which they needed.

The Chopin Sonata was filled with technical dexterity, and the fourth movement, containing many lilting passages, Mr. Alwyne displayed a wonderful sense of timing which has been previously evident, and more assurance as far as technical proficiency was concerned. The Alwyne played it remarkably well. It consisted of two local performances under the direction of the Etudes Pittoresques des Dance. The first of these was the Multi-Drivers before the Choral of Liberty, and the second was the Fiddle Dancers, students of folk dance. The Dohnanyi selections comprised two Rhaphids which are both extremely dexterous. A large audience attracted to the event, and Alwyne concluded by giving several encores.

Vassar to Hold Scientific Meeting

All colleges are invited to send representatives to the Eastern College Science Conference to be held at Vassar February 28 to March 2. The purpose of the scientific conference conducted specifically for and by undergraduates, will present a program on Science, Philosophy, and Society. Participation in the conference is a way to conduct and welfare of science in modern society will be discussed, through consideration of the philosophical, technological, and sociological foundations of the scientific enterprise.

The conference will be presented by means of a series of addresses by well-known scientists and the presentations of papers in seminars during the conference, based upon investigations undertaken by senior undergraduates in the various fields of natural science. Students are also invited to submit papers dealing with the philosophy of science.

The final session of the conference will be held on March 3 and will feature discussions on the philosophy of science.

Sparkling Health of New Editor Breaks Age-Old Tradition of News

by Emily Evans ‘47

When asked to comment on her election, Nancy Ward, Editor-in-Chief of the News, spoke in a frightened voice that she felt extremely uncomfortable. "I can’t believe this is really happening to me," she said. Ward’s victory is a break with tradition by becoming Editor with

Goldrick Speaks On Job Openings in United Nations

Common Room, January 11: Speaking as local recruitment director of the General Secretariat of the UN, Miss Goldrick indicated that only highly qualified establishment work was getting eager since personnel must be recruited in wide a geographic area as possible, covering all the world’s continents.

If posts were equally distributed, ideally there would be about 60 for each country. Now, however, with 80 per cent of the countries are American, who will later be "kept" to keep the United Nations. Only 76 positions are now per

B. M. Federalists Elect Pam Wahl As Conference Delegate

On Thursday, February 4, the Student Federalist Chapter of Bryn Mawr elected Pamela Wahl to serve as its delegates to the National Convention, which will be held in the Department of Foreign Affairs, on September 20, 2000, at the Department of Legal Affairs, the American lawyer has been consid-

Bridge Champions To go to Chicago

The preliminary rounds of the intercollegiate Bridge Tournament we are being played this week in preparation for the April finals in Chicago. The tournament is being directed by Carol Vegroda ‘47, the top teams will be those who hold the high hands and are able to take the points in the week to come. One hundred and forty-four college teams are participating in the tournament beginning in the spring of the 1947 tournament. The tournament is divided into groups. The two highest pairs from each group will go to Chicago as one team to compete at the tournament. All finalists will be awarded prizes in a combined total of $1,000. The prizes will be awarded in the following:

Summer Sessions in English Unv. Offered to B.A.’s

Three postgraduate summer sessions for American students are being offered this summer in England at the University of Oxford, Birmingham, and Aberdeen. The University of Oxford has a study of "European Civilization in the Twentieth Century," considered from the literary, philosophical, and economic and political standpoint. The will be held for and by an American tradition Oxford manner, with lectures on special subjects and background topics, and at least two lectures per week by distinguished professors. Emphasized, however, be laid on work done in small groups under the guidance of the students as the chief concern of the university staff.

The University of Birmingham summer school will be conducted in English, with "Literature, Linguistics, 1500-1900," considered from the linguistic, literary, and historical points of view, and includes lectures on literature, and in the social, economic, religious, and political background of the period. There will be an international program, with lectures on special subjects and background topics, and at least two lectures per week by distinguished professors. Emphasized, however, be laid on work done in small groups under the guidance of the students as the chief concern of the university staff.

The Summer School at Aberdeen will be conducted in English, with "British History, Economics, and Religion," considering the social, religious, and economic aspects of the period. There will be an international program, with lectures on special subjects and background topics, and at least two lectures per week by distinguished professors. Emphasized, however, be laid on work done in small groups under the guidance of the students as the chief concern of the university staff.

The University of Aberdeen summer school will be conducted in English, with "British History, Economics, and Religion," considering the social, religious, and economic aspects of the period. There will be an international program, with lectures on special subjects and background topics, and at least two lectures per week by distinguished professors. Emphasized, however, be laid on work done in small groups under the guidance of the students as the chief concern of the university staff.

Semester Changes

This year Professor Arnold Toybee will give the six flexer lectures on "Encounters Between Science and Theology." The only course not out of the University and the "Humanism and the Spirit" given by Mr. Martin. The only faculty changes are the resignation of Miss McKown for the fall, and she will be replaced by Professor of Philosophy, Miss Oppenheimer, who will be replaced by Professor of Philosophy, Mr. Alwyne, who will also leave on an academic career lectures on "Politics and Social Science."
The College News is fully posted by our editors. Writing that appears in any other way is either part of the text or not part of the text.

Upward and Onward

In the darkness of the past few months we have seen a great light—the beginning of the second semester, when our weak fingers would be removed from the beat of that eternal Monday through Friday routine. Our Wednesday would no longer be blackened by the dread of the coming exam. Our Thursday would no longer be covered by the blast of those inapplicable souls who have spit the misplaced commas (or worse).

As we bid farewell to this life of missing copy and unanswerable questions, we find ourselves gazing back at all that is past with a certain nostalgia. It is hard for us to believe that we have been through so much in such a short time. It is hard to imagine that everything we had to learn was just the beginning.

Home For Incarcerees Expresses A Need For Volunteer Workers

"We desperately need and would appreciate your help that students can give to those in need," said Elizabeth Best. "We need volunteer workers to help at the Home for Incarcerees.

At present, the Home is short of approximately five nurses with approximately 200 extra people needed in the hospital. The hospital is in desperate need of volunteer workers to help with the heavy work load.

Pamela Wahl Elected Conference Delegate

Continued From Page 1

Are you aware of the mischievous goings-on of the students at the Home for Incarcerees? Well, you should be, because it is your duty to help keep the place in order. It is a very important job, for the Home for Incarcerees is one of the few places where the students can get some rest.

The Spectator

Illusions and ideals are funny things. Freshmen bring them when they arrive, along with A. C. R. and their shaving brushes. By the time somebody gets a vasectomy, some of the ideals have gone into their shaving brushes. By the time they have experienced a few disasters, the illusions have gone into their shaving brushes. By the time they have experienced a few disasters, the illusions have gone into their shaving brushes.

The College News was published weekly during the College Year from 1947 to 1948. It was a student-run newspaper that covered campus news, events, and student life. The content includes articles on current events, student organizations, and personal reflections. The newspaper also features a section for the Spectator, which provides humorous commentary on campus life. The Spectator section is characterized by its witty and irreverent tone, often critiquing the ideals and illusions of college students.
The College News Page Three

LATEST NIGHTERS
By Dealeved and Diamond
Last night there was a curious exception. Nine months took us to see a rendition of a play. Of a perfect play with a perfect plot.
And every good actor that Equity's got.
The play was written by O'Neil and Shaw... Soon even students found a technical flaw. John Barrymore had a leading part. And his mate for the evening was the girl he had released.
The direction was headed by Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and Mr. Hitchcock. A complete reversal as the Owls were read by Mary Schaefer. It's sung by the canticle and Gable.

WHAT TO DO
By Mrs. Cranshaw for details.

FOR NEXT YEAR:
The Scarsdale Inquirer writer that it will be nice to see residents of Scarsdale or Westchester County who are interested in any position or a member.

CONSCIOUS GENERAL LIFE INSURANCE of Hartford has positions in Group Underwriting, Group Administration, Accounting, Auditing; in the Coverage Section, the Actuarial Section, and Sales Pro-motion. There is a job for every man.

New A. D. A. Plans
By John French

Student Branches
By Mike Lahey

By Mike Lahey

Realizing the urgent need for student participation in democratic reconstruction, leaders of liberal labor, farmer, veteran and student groups gathered in Washington to create a new national organization called Students for Action. A body, a branch of the American Association for Democratic Action, and in order to maintain an independent voice for the democratic movement.

FELLOWSHIP AND AID
By John French

The State College of Washington announces Counseling Fellowships. Assignments will be in the Counseling Center, in the Office of the Dean of Women, the College of Arts, and in the Department of Home Economics.

Students to Run Model Conference
By Mike Lahey

From April 16-20, the Intercollegiate Council on government, which will be modeled on the State Legislature this year, will be held in Harrisburg. Delegates from all the colleges in Pennsylvania will attend.

The conference is an actual model of the legislature with dele-gates from the colleges serving as members of the plenary session and presenting bills in committee meetings. In addition to these meetings, the delegates will have the opportunity to actually become a part of the service.

Caucus Planned
By Mike Lahey

A caucus of delegates from eastern Pennsylvania represented at the Chicago Conference of the NISO (National Student Organization) will be held at St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia, February 18. Called by the Pennsylvania regional chairman, the caucus is expected to attend the Chicago delegates.

BAKERY SCHOOL

Everybody's wearing a "Studebaker" Bonnet
By Mike Lahey

The Studebaker Bonnet is being worn by a large number of students in the community.

The Studebaker Bonnet is being worn by a large number of students in the community.

"After College - What?"

NEWS ELECTIONS
The News takes pleasure in announcing the following elected

Harrerd, Ward, 48, Editor.
Barbara Bonham, 48, Copy Editor.
Betty-Bright Page, 49, Emily Townsend, 49, Louise Ervin 49, Katina Thomas 49, Board Members.

NAME THE COLLEGE NEWS PUBLICATION OF HAVEN Cover at the end of every issue. Do not wash out.
Food and Money Sent To French Students

Continued from Front Page

... and would vote for such contributions to the collection of funds for food packages. You may be surprised to learn that such contributions range up to $16. And you will be pleased to know that this money sufficed to pay off twenty-four boxes to the Comité d’entraide aux Étudiants. The labor of buying the food and packing and mailing the boxes to small jobs as you may imagine—was done by the girls in the French House. There are of course jobs still to be done—there will be for a long, long time to come. Those of you who feel that you could still do a little more might join in sending a C.A.R.E. package (price $10.00) applications to be had at the Department of Home and Foreign Affairs, or by writing to C.A.R.E., in the name for certain of his America should keep the secret of atomic energy as long as possible.

Meet at the Greek’s

Tasty Sandwiches

Refreshments

Luncheon - Dinner

Incidentally

Speculatively contributed by Ellen Harriman ’48

Did you know we had a tree on campus registered with the American Tree Women? She wears good-looking metal plaque around her neck, and usually hangs around the door with between books and papers to collect admiring glances and give her autograph. We look forward to Who’s Who and learn to see that she had won the title of Misa Doichoudis of 1933. It seems that from an early age Miss Doichoudis has been famous in afar circles. When she was a mere sapling, in fact, she was judged Best of Species in the Ross and Branch Club’s annual show in Madison Square Garden. She grew for Grant Wood until she lost her waistline, and her name was at that time romantically linked with Joyce Kilmer’s. She was the inspiration for certain of his artistic poetry, but although he admired her with passionate verse she would have none of it. When they finally broke up Mr. Kilmer reported cynically, “Orndail God can make a tree!” Her autobiography, Bent Twig, ran into four folio editions and is of exceptionally fine literary timber. During the war a squad of air cadets from Northern India voted her “The tree agea and hovel them under my nose. ‘Smell it—air from America’ I have not fallen into the error of thinking of the U. S. A. as a land of unlimited fishes, but I do now understand how they feel.”

Submitted by Renate C. Woll, Relief Representative for Radnor Hall.

Incidentally

Specially contributed by Ellen Harriman ’48

Did you know we had a tree on campus registered with the American Tree Women? She wears good-looking metal plaque around her neck, and usually hangs around the door with between books and papers to collect admiring glances and give her autograph. We look forward to Who’s Who and learn to see that she had won the title of Misa Doichoudis of 1933. It seems that from an early age Miss Doichoudis has been famous in afar circles. When she was a mere sapling, in fact, she was judged Best of Species in the Ross and Branch Club’s annual show in Madison Square Garden. She grew for Grant Wood until she lost her waistline, and her name was at that time romantically linked with Joyce Kilmer’s. She was the inspiration for certain of his artistic poetry, but although he admired her with passionate verse she would have none of it. When they finally broke up Mr. Kilmer reported cynically, “Orndail God can make a tree!” Her autobiography, Bent Twig, ran into four folio editions and is of exceptionally fine literary timber. During the war a squad of air cadets from Northern India voted her “The tree agea and hovel them under my nose. ‘Smell it—air from America’ I have not fallen into the error of thinking of the U. S. A. as a land of unlimited fishes, but I do now understand how they feel.”

Submitted by Renate C. Woll, Relief Representative for Radnor Hall.

Atom Bomb Poll Set For Thurs.

A poll of student opinion and knowledge about the atomic bomb and the control of atomic energy will be conducted on Thursday by the Bryn Mawr United Nations Council, under the sponsorship of the Inter-Cultural Committee of the United Nations Council of Philadelphia.

The poll will be conducted on a sample opinion and fact-testing basis. The eleven colleges and international houses, which make up the Student Council of the Inter-Cultural Committee, will distribute the questionnaire to 10,000 students, representing 10% of the college students in the Philadelphia area. After the questionnaires have been turned in and their results assessed, a huge “Forum on World Control of Atomic Energy will be held at the Franklin Institute.

The poll will ask such questions as: Do college students think America should keep the secret of atomic energy as long as possible?

Incidentally

Specially contributed by Ellen Harriman ’48

Did you know we had a tree on campus registered with the American Tree Women? She wears good-looking metal plaque around her neck, and usually hangs around the door with between books and papers to collect admiring glances and give her autograph. We look forward to Who’s Who and learn to see that she had won the title of Misa Doichoudis of 1933. It seems that from an early age Miss Doichoudis has been famous in afar circles. When she was a mere sapling, in fact, she was judged Best of Species in the Ross and Branch Club’s annual show in Madison Square Garden. She grew for Grant Wood until she lost her waistline, and her name was at that time romantically linked with Joyce Kilmer’s. She was the inspiration for certain of his artistic poetry, but although he admired her with passionate verse she would have none of it. When they finally broke up Mr. Kilmer reported cynically, “Orndail God can make a tree!” Her autobiography, Bent Twig, ran into four folio editions and is of exceptionally fine literary timber. During the war a squad of air cadets from Northern India voted her “The tree agea and hovel them under my nose. ‘Smell it—air from America’ I have not fallen into the error of thinking of the U. S. A. as a land of unlimited fishes, but I do now understand how they feel.”

Submitted by Renate C. Woll, Relief Representative for Radnor Hall.

Going to the Big Dance After Freshman Show?

Tell Your Date to Get Your Corsage

At Jeanett’s

Don’t Forget: Valentine’s Day

February 14

We Have the Card

Whether Soft or Passionate

Richard Stockton’s

Lancaster Ave. - Bryn Mawr

MEET AT THE GREEK’S

Tasty Sandwiches

Refreshments

Luncheon - Dinner

Incidentally

Specially contributed by Ellen Harriman ’48

Did you know we had a tree on campus registered with the American Tree Women? She wears good-looking metal plaque around her neck, and usually hangs around the door with between books and papers to collect admiring glances and give her autograph. We look forward to Who’s Who and learn to see that she had won the title of Misa Doichoudis of 1933. It seems that from an early age Miss Doichoudis has been famous in afar circles. When she was a mere sapling, in fact, she was judged Best of Species in the Ross and Branch Club’s annual show in Madison Square Garden. She grew for Grant Wood until she lost her waistline, and her name was at that time romantically linked with Joyce Kilmer’s. She was the inspiration for certain of his artistic poetry, but although he admired her with passionate verse she would have none of it. When they finally broke up Mr. Kilmer reported cynically, “Orndail God can make a tree!” Her autobiography, Bent Twig, ran into four folio editions and is of exceptionally fine literary timber. During the war a squad of air cadets from Northern India voted her “The tree agea and hovel them under my nose. ‘Smell it—air from America’ I have not fallen into the error of thinking of the U. S. A. as a land of unlimited fishes, but I do now understand how they feel.”

Submitted by Renate C. Woll, Relief Representative for Radnor Hall.

Going to the Big Dance After Freshman Show?

Tell Your Date to Get Your Corsage

At Jeanett’s

Don’t Forget: Valentine’s Day

February 14

We Have the Card

Whether Soft or Passionate

Richard Stockton’s

Lancaster Ave. - Bryn Mawr

MEET AT THE GREEK’S

Tasty Sandwiches

Refreshments

Luncheon - Dinner

Incidentally

Specially contributed by Ellen Harriman ’48

Did you know we had a tree on campus registered with the American Tree Women? She wears good-looking metal plaque around her neck, and usually hangs around the door with between books and papers to collect admiring glances and give her autograph. We look forward to Who’s Who and learn to see that she had won the title of Misa Doichoudis of 1933. It seems that from an early age Miss Doichoudis has been famous in afar circles. When she was a mere sapling, in fact, she was judged Best of Species in the Ross and Branch Club’s annual show in Madison Square Garden. She grew for Grant Wood until she lost her waistline, and her name was at that time romantically linked with Joyce Kilmer’s. She was the inspiration for certain of his artistic poetry, but although he admired her with passionate verse she would have none of it. When they finally broke up Mr. Kilmer reported cynically, “Orndail God can make a tree!” Her autobiography, Bent Twig, ran into four folio editions and is of exceptionally fine literary timber. During the war a squad of air cadets from Northern India voted her “The tree agea and hovel them under my nose. ‘Smell it—air from America’ I have not fallen into the error of thinking of the U. S. A. as a land of unlimited fishes, but I do now understand how they feel.”

Submitted by Renate C. Woll, Relief Representative for Radnor Hall.

Going to the Big Dance After Freshman Show?

Tell Your Date to Get Your Corsage

At Jeanett’s

Don’t Forget: Valentine’s Day

February 14

We Have the Card

Whether Soft or Passionate

Richard Stockton’s

Lancaster Ave. - Bryn Mawr

We’re Open

Early or Late!

Blu Comet

Bryn Mawr

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!

To French Students!