An Empty Goodhart

In its last concert of this year with the University of Pennsylvania Saturday night, the Bryn Mawr College Chorus gave a splendid performance. Most of the college seemed completely unaware of the fact despite the posters and publicity given on the concert.

Lectures have been numerous this spring; theatrical productions have been plentiful; and the cloisters are peopled with sunbathers. Empty notebooks and unwritten papers depict a wave of reaction in four years. We the undersigned feel that the annual speech of General Feng of China, to read anyone interested in China, to read an account of the "Real Situation in China," which was the title of the speech.

Dr. McKenzie and Dr. Patterson are two political scientists who have determined the relation of the photo-electric effect (the emission of electrons from metals by the action of light at high temperatures), and 3) a study of light emission from phosphorescent materials. Both are methods of studying the electron behavior of solids and the behavior of electrons. Dr. Patterson will experiment in the study of the photoelectric effect of organic molecules by X-ray diffraction patterns shown by the X-rays reveal the arrangement of the atoms in the molecule and the distances between the atoms.

In the last few decades, India has been an important player in the global political and economic landscape, and there are many reasons why the country is able to maintain its standing in the world. India has a large and diverse population, which provides a rich cultural and linguistic heritage. The country is home to many different religious and spiritual beliefs, which shape the national identity. India is also known for its rich heritage of literature, music, art, and film. The country has a strong tradition of democracy and has made significant progress in terms of social and economic development. Overall, India's ability to adapt and thrive in the face of global challenges is remarkable.

The Vanishing Book
With only three more weeks of classes in which to do "a semester's work", the annual panic has seized Bryn Mawr. Sales of Outline books are soaring; typewriters have taken over the smokers, and the cloisters are peopled with knitters and sunbathers. Empty notebooks and unwritten papers point to the necessity of a shortcut; but too often a shortcut at someone else's expense.

DURING the last three weeks only not have books continued to disappear from the stacks, but the shelves of the re-serve room are being rapidly depleted. Not even the reference room is immune. It is only too evident that the reserve room has a definite purpose—to enable a large number of people to use a limited number of books. When one of these copies "disappears," it is not only cause inconvenience and time, but also the loss of many from "getting through." Unfortunately, the need to meet deadlines has also resulted in the "loss of" notebooks and even of papers. All of us know that integrity of academic work is expected at Bryn Mawr; we have pledged ourselves to respect and observe this principle. In addition to the dishonesty of such activity, it serves only to increase an already growing hysteria. The absurdly small profit to the "borrower" scarcely merits the injustice to the "lender." Let's remember that no matter how much we need a book or note, the owner may need them more!

PRIX DE PARIS
If you are still thinking of a job after college in publishing, fashion, stores, publicity, and that kind of thing, we strongly advise you to enter the Vogue PRIX de Paris Contest. It usually consists of four fairly short assignments or "quizzes" which do not take a great deal of time, and a long article to be submitted by those who have passed the quizzes.

The first prize is a year's job on Vogue, six months in New York, and six months in Paris. The second prize is a six months' job on Vogue in New York.

Honorable mention contestants are given other jobs on other Vogue Next publications which include House and Garden and Glamour. Vogue also provides free employment service to the top hundred, and it has many connections with other magazines, advertising agencies, stores, and so forth.

Even if you do not end up in the first hundred, the experience in writing for a purpose will be very valuable for your future job.
The Washington Public Library may have some summer jobs. See Miss Bates for details.

Ms. MacDonald of the Pennsylvania State Employment Service will come to the college to register students for summer jobs anywhere in the country. He will be in Room H, Taylor Hall, from 2 to 5:

Thursday, April 29th
Tuesday, May 4th
Thursday, May 6th

A scheduling of appointments is posted outside of Room H.

For the Summer and Next Year:
The Republican National Committee has written, asking for volunteers. The Committee is scarcer to enlist as many young women as possible, especially those who have "shown capacity for leadership in non-partisan groups."

Although the Republican Committee is the only one which has made an actual request so far, volunteers who would be equally welcome at Democratic and Progressive Headquarters. See your local committees.

WHAT TO DO

For Next Year:

The Journal of Accountancy, New York. Editorial Assistant. Typing essential, shorthand desirable. Some proof reading, writing, research, editing, etc. "A little economics or business knowledge would be of any harm; a little acquaintance with accounting terminology would be a great help, but unlikely." $50 a week for secretarial competence."

WHY...I smoke Chesterfield

(PRON A SERIES OF STATEMENTS BY PROMINENT TOBACCO FARMERS)

Liggott & Myers buy top quality cigarette tobacco and pay top prices for it. Nobody will save paying more than they do year in and year out.

I've been smoking Chesterfields ever since I've been smoking. I just like them... they have real tobacco flavor.
